Downtown Awhirl for Sidewalk Days

The bargains of a Maxwell Street and the fun of a Riverview in miniature have turned downtown Arlington Heights into a dreamland for the fun-seeker.

The special occasion is Sidewalk Days, sponsored annually by the Chamber of Commerce Retail Committee. This year's three-day celebration will continue through Saturday.

The bargain items, a number of local merchants have pointed out, are not sub-quality products brought in specifically for the sale. Instead, in most cases, the sale items are the store's regular merchandise, drastically reduced in price.

Sales will be held both inside and outside of the stores.

Participating merchants wearing Sidewalk Days badges, have been preparing for the event for weeks. Flyers have been stuffed in shopping bags and children have been registering for the many contests and shows.

PART OF THE Sidewalk Days fun for children is the fact they are allowed to do many things that are usually taboo.

Anyone for slurping up watermelon? Wolfing down pie? These two contests, the first sponsored by the Jewel Tea Co., Inc., 122 N. Vail Ave., at 10:30 a.m., and the second, sponsored and supplied by the Arlington Cake Box, 15 W. Campbell St., at 2 p.m., will be among the first events of the Sidewalk Days activities today. There will be about 20 participants in the watermelon contest and about 12 in the pie contest.

The bike rodeo, sponsored by the Arlington Heights Park District will be held in the First Arlington National Bank parking lot at Davis Street and Dunton Avenue at 2:30 p.m. Thursday.

A FOURTH attraction on today's calendar is the vaudeville show sponsored by the Delores Eiler School of Dancing. The show, "Hope McFolly," will be held in the parking lot of the First Arlington National Bank at 7:30 p.m.

It will be free. Bleachers will be set up for this show and all other shows to be held in the bank parking lot.

Throughout the three-day period, there will be carnival rides, an art fair at the Countryside Art Center at the corner of Dunton Avenue and Miner Street; a historical exhibit in the window of Sorrentino Tailors, 33 W. Campbell St.; photograph exhibits by Paddock Publications in the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Association, and First Arlington National Bank lobbies; and two barrage balloons flying over the business district, advertising the activities.

The Nike exhibit that was planned has been canceled because it cannot be held in connection with a commercial event.

The Talented Teens will perform Friday at 8 p.m. in the parking lot behind the First Arlington National Bank. Teen groups appearing in the show are the Pumpkin Sisters, the Corals, the Renegades and the Down Beats. There will also be an a go-go contest.

Mouth-to-mouth resuscitation will be demonstrated Friday at a booth set up by the fire department.

IN ADDITION to the regular events, Saturday will have two special shows.

The first of these, a teen fashion show, will be held in the display windows of Marge's Apparel, 10 N. Dunton Ave., at 1 p.m. Mrs. Blanch Dressel, River Forest, will be commentator for the show, and her daughter, Beth, will model in the show. Four Arlington Heights girls also will model.

Models will wear back-to-school clothes.

Immediately following the fashion show, the Northwest Obedience Club will hold its dog show in the parking lot of the First Arlington National Bank. Some 16 dogs will be shown in a presentation that will first show what an advanced dog can do and then demonstrate how a dog is trained to reach this level of obedience.

The dogs will perform in heeling, jumping, retrieving and recalling. Master of ceremonies for the show is Stan Petry, 1521 S. Arlington Heights Road.

THE OWNERS of the dogs to be shown are: Walter Ross, Palatine; Coy Woolridge, Prospect Heights; Joan Botthof, Palatine; Ann Ward, 502 N. Harvard, Arlington Heights; Josephine Murphy, Hoffman Estates; Bob Orr, Cary; Lowell and Cheryll Sandersfeld, 1617 N. Clarence Ave., Arlington Heights; Bob Kretschmer, Medinah; Glenn Faragher, Mount Prospect; LaVerne Stiert, 1080 S. Haddow, Arlington Heights; and Diane Petry.

Garbage Pickup

Laseke Asks Hike in Fee

Laseke Disposal Co. wants to hike its monthly rate for collection of garbage in Arlington Heights to $3.15 per home.

The proposed rate, presented to the village board's finance committee Monday, represents a 65-cent increase over the $2.50 which residents now pay for back-door collection.

Laseke officials went before the committee armed with a two-year audit and projected-income figures which showed the company is losing money at the current rate.

But committee members weren't convinced the collection rate was the sole cause of the losses and asked for further clarification of specific expenses.

LASEKE'S FIGURES, prepared by Arthur Andersen Co., showed a loss of $8,600 in 1965. Donald DuPont, representing the accounting firm, said the projected income study indicated Laseke would lose $15,000 this year, even if a 25-cent increase were put into effect.

With no increase, DuPont asserted, the 1966 loss could go as high as $24,000.

Attorney Paul H. Knott, representing the disposal firm, said the losses were caused by increased labor costs, maintenance expenses and a growing population in the village which demanded expanded service.

"This $2.50-per-month rate has remained while labor costs are increasing," said Knott. Laseke truck drivers are affiliated with the Teamsters Union. The current contract with the union expires in October, and subsequent bargaining is expected to result in a pay hike for the drivers, according to Laseke officials.

Knott maintained the 65-cent increase would give Laseke a

Trustees Set Special Meeting For Utility Tax Discussion

A special village board meeting Tuesday night will be devoted to discussion of what has emerged as Arlington Heights' most prominent issue—the proposed five per cent utility tax.

The meeting was scheduled after a finance committee meeting Monday at which trustees took another long look at how to replenish $159,000 lost when the June tornado destroyed and damaged village trees.

The special meeting begins at 8 p.m. in the village hall. The board will not discuss the issue at its regular meeting Monday.

COMMITTEE members Monday took out their financial paring knives and attempted to "trim" portions of the current village budget, but came up with no concrete suggestions on how to meet the deficit from funds already appropriated.

The committee will prepare a full report on possible measures to replace the losses and present it at the special session.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson told trustees that only $5,000 was available to help pay for the damage.

The committee weighed the possibility of drawing the needed money from the $110,000 in the contingency fund, but was told by Hanson that this money was to be used for snow removal.

Trustees expressed reluctance to draw from funds appropriated for specific capital improvement projects.

NONE OF THE trustees expressed firm opposition to the utility tax. There was apparent agreement that something would have to be done to put the budget back on its feet.

But when and how to go about enacting a utility tax caused a split of opinions.

Committee chairman Carl Mees and Roy Bressler said they thought other measures should be taken before a utility tax is imposed.

"I personally would like to stave off this utility tax until it is absolutely necessary to insure our solvency," Bressler stated.

He and Mees suggested the village should seek a property tax increase before attempting to tax utilities.

HANSON AND Trustees John White and John Walsh disagreed, noting that the money would not be available until August 1967. Moreover, Hanson explained, the current tax ceiling would limit returns to only $38,000.

If the utility tax is enacted, money would be available in March 1967, according to Hanson.

The trustees expressed agreement that the utility tax, if it is necessary, should be enacted with a time limit to insure that it would be lifted after current losses are met.

Hanson asserted that to delay action on the utility tax would mean the village was merely postponing an inevitable solution.

Village Pres. John G. Woods said he thought attempts to trim the budget would not result in adequate funds to make up losses.

"CERTAINLY, THERE is no fat in that budget," Woods stressed.

Hanson submitted a report breaking down tree repair costs. The report showed: labor and equipment — $65,000; overtime and extra labor — $13,000; tree removal and trimming — $54,000; tree replacement — $16,000; miscellaneous expenses — $2,500.

Hanson estimated cost of new trees at $20 each.

Added Tax Source Killed by Senate

State Senate opposition prevented Arlington Heights from having an alternative source of revenue to the utility tax, Rep. Eugenia Chapman said this week.

Mrs. Chapman, Democratic state representative from Arlington Heights, says a proposed optional half-cent increase in the sales tax might have given local trustees another way to raise $159,000 needed to pay tornado damage bills.

THE ADDED half-cent would have more than done it, in fact. The current village budget estimates an income of $300,000 this year from the present half-cent tax.

The added tax also would have brought into village coffers additional income from non-residents shopping here.

Supported by Gov Otto Kerner, Chicago, Mayor Daley and the Illinois Municipal League, the proposed optional half-cent sales tax increase for municipalities' use was approved by the State House of Representatives. The Illinois Senate killed it.

Sprinkling Ban Lifted

A crash program to help curb critical water shortages in Arlington Heights will be presented to the village board Monday by Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson.

The program, announced this week by Hanson in the wake of a ban imposed on non-essential use of water, includes a $25,000 improvement project which will boost the daily village water supply by more than one million gallons.

In the meantime, the village lifted the ban on water usage and announced new regulations governing lawn sprinkling.

Hanson said he will ask the board to approve funds for installation of a 12-inch water main to connect a village well at Arlington Heights and Techny Roads with a main at Arlington Heights and Palatine Roads.

Approximately 2,500 feet of pipeline would be necessary to complete the link, according to Hanson. The well site includes a million-gallon reservoir and a pumping station.

BIDS ON THE project will be taken Monday. If the board approves the expenditure, Hanson explained, work will begin Tuesday morning.

"We contemplate we can finish the job in four days," he said.

The completed hookup would supply additional water to village neighborhoods like Sherwood which underwent severe water shortages over the weekend. Currently, the well supplies water for east and southeast sections of the village.

With the pipeline link, much of the water would go to the more densely populated areas on the village's north side. Hanson indicated the project would not deplete the supply to other areas now receiving water from the well because it is not pumping to capacity.

"I WOULD SAY we are only getting 50 per cent of the value from that well," he explained. Hanson noted there was 40 feet of water in the well's reservoir when water use was restricted Sunday.

The full supply could not be pumped because the pipes were not large enough to stand increased pressure. The well is capable of supplying 2,061,000 gallons daily. This would mean only about one million gallons were being pumped during critical periods over the weekend, according to Hanson's estimates.

He declined to say whether the proposed project would remove the possibility of water shortages later this summer.

Hanson also cited the fact that the village's water resources would have to be expanded in the future to meet the needs of an increasing population. The need will be made clearer in about two months when an evaluative study is completed by the Badger Meter Manufacturing Co.

THE STUDY WAS included in a $38,470 project authorized by the village board June 20 for installation of a supervisory control system on the seven municipal wells. The research will determine future water needs in the village.

BUT VILLAGE officials already are aware that a new well is needed.

"Our draw-down is tremendous," explained Hanson, "and we're going to have to get our sights on another well."

The water supply problem came to the surface Sunday when the elevated tank at Ridge Avenue and Thomas Street went dry.

The village immediately banned all non-essential use of water, such as lawn sprinkling and car washing.

New Rules

Arlington Heights lifted the ban on non-essential water use Tuesday afternoon, but new regulations governing lawn sprinkling were put into effect.

Residents may water their lawns on alternate days only between 8 p.m. and midnight. No watering will be permitted on Sundays.

Homeowners with even-numbered addresses may sprinkle on even-numbered days. Those with odd house numbers are permitted to sprinkle on odd-numbered days.

The regulations go into effect immediately.

Previously, the alternate day rule applied, but no hours were designated and sprinkling could be done on Sundays.

Water Lawn Inch a Week

How much watering does a lawn need in dry weather?

An inch of water once a week is sufficient for most lawns during a drought of two or three weeks, according to the University of Illinois Extension Service.

For example, say extension workers, sprinkling one-fourth inch daily will prove futile. Surface watering does not penetrate to grass roots.

The amount of water can be measured by placing an empty water bucket in the sprinkling area and marking the inside for a height of one inch. Or a water gauge can be sunk into the ground.

Eye on Arlington

Hey, Man, Those Tigers Are 'It'

by DAVE CRIPPEN
News Editor

Have you seen any tigers in Arlington Heights lately?

I don't mean the four-legged variety. I'm talking about the human kind. A tiger is a guy with real cool.

CRIPPEN

You must have seen him somewhere. He drives around town in a car equipped with "tiger paws" and a tiger in its tank. And when he depresses the accelerator, you can hear that big cat growl.

The girls who hang around him are impressed. They look up to him because he's . . . well . . . because he's a tiger.

But he didn't earn this respect because he owns a big, fast car. No sir. He had to prove he was a cool cat by demonstrating his prowess and courage behind the wheel.

He won't drive around corners like the average motorist. The only cool way is to take it fast so those rubber paws screech and leave their black marks on the pavement. Then everyone will know a tiger was there.

Heavy traffic gives him a big chance to test his skill. Like the true tiger that he is, he darts in and out of his traffic lane, weaving his way ahead of those fink drivers who believe in speed limits.

Intersections marked by stop signs or stop lights are great places to see this "man of courage" in action. If he stops at all, he'll let you know he is around by gunning that powerful engine. And when he is through impressing everyone in ear-shot with all that rumbling horsepower, he shoots away like a bullet.

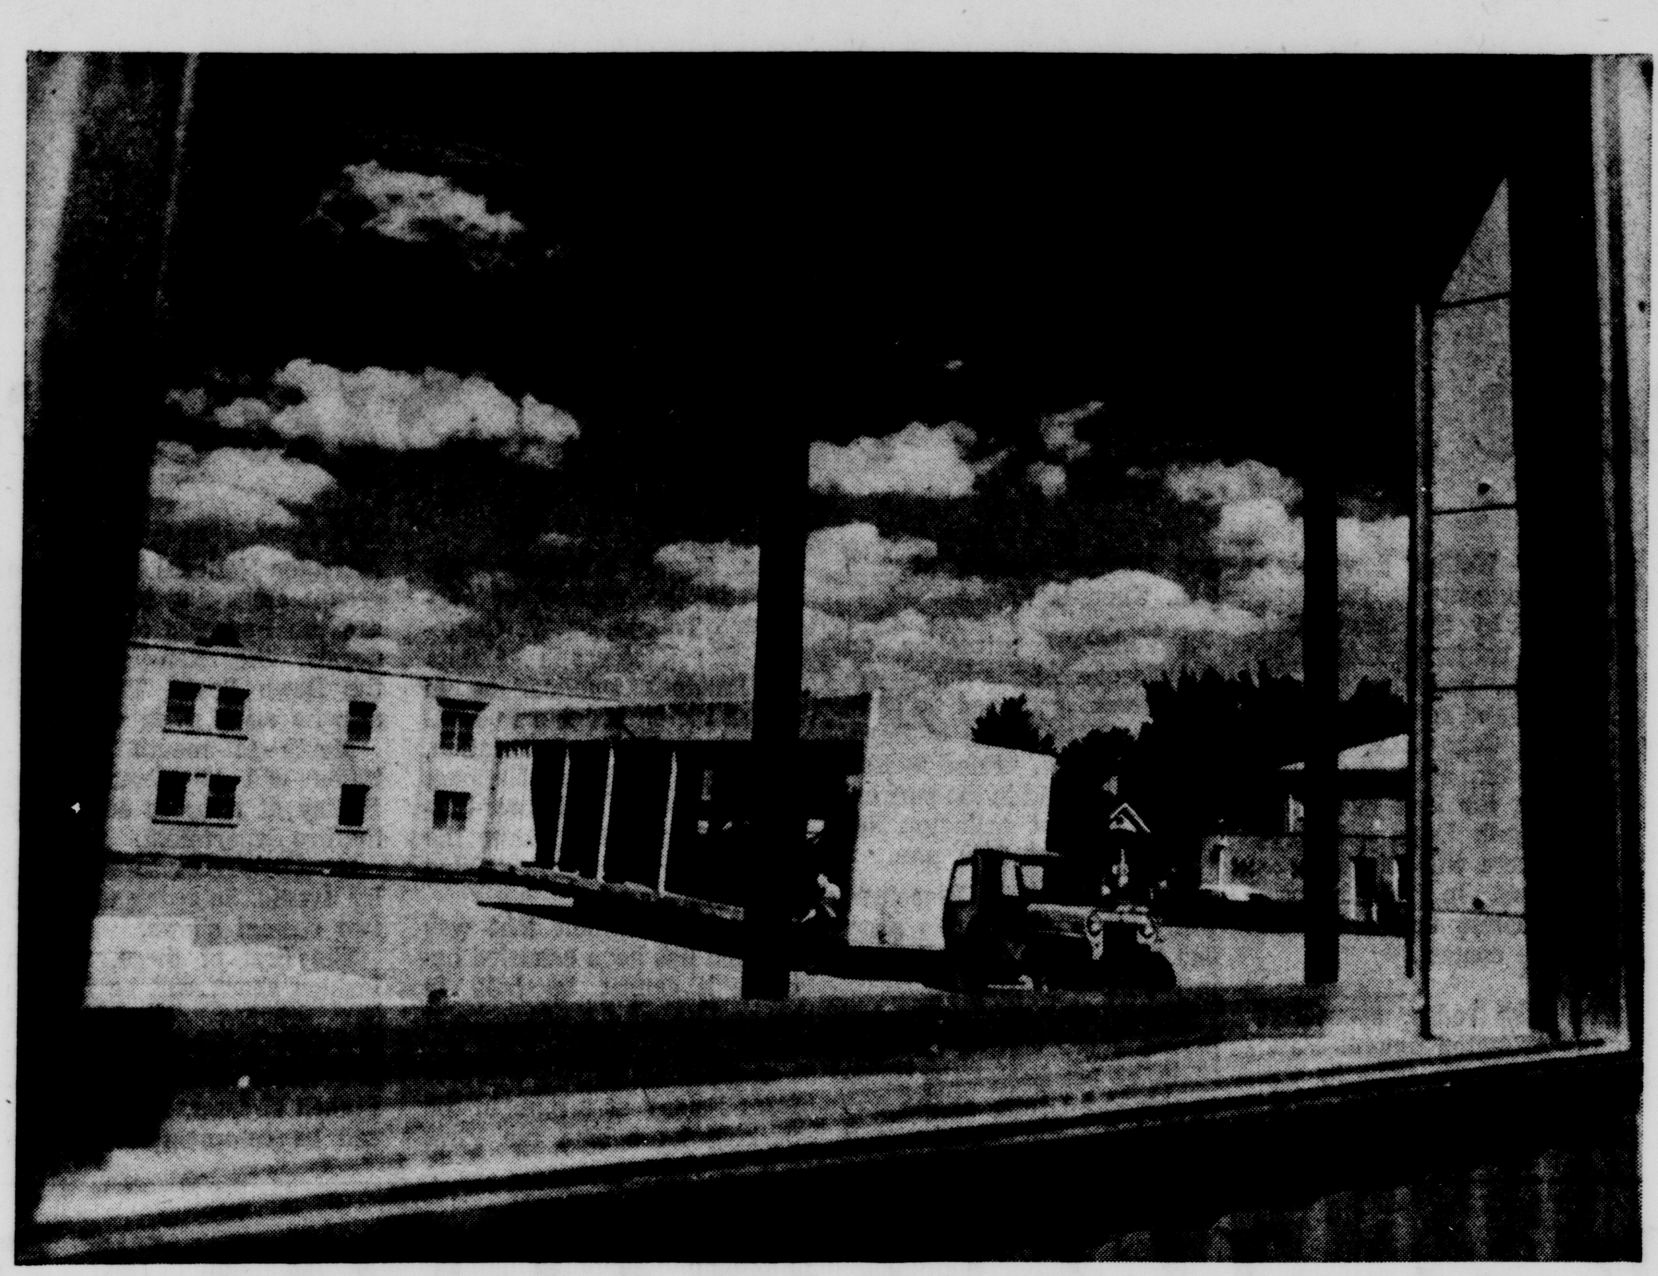
Night is the best time for this cat to show what he really can do. The streets are clearer then—not so many dopey drivers to get in the way.

The quiet neighborhood streets are especially ideal. Racing down the narrow pavement, he transforms residential tranquillity into noisy excitement. And for a few glorious moments, Arlington Heights has its answer to the Bonneville Salt Flats.

Some people would like to dampen this tiger's spirit . . . like the cops. They are always trying to ruin the fun and make the streets safe for everyone. But if this guy is a real tiger, he can disregard traffic laws and still get away—at least part of the time.

You get the picture now, don't you. I mean, this guy is "it." He's the greatest . . . the living end. He's a tiger.

If you would like to meet him, I know where you can get his name and address. They are listed in the accident record down at the police station.



HALF A CLASSROOM—Seen through its mate's window is half of one of the mobile classrooms to be used at Our Lady of the Wayside School this year. Hauled to Arlington Heights by truck, these trailer-like structures are clamped together in pairs to make a temporary classroom for 50 students. The two approved for use at Wayside are already here and have been placed in the school's courtyard. Father John Tapper, assistant pastor, said they would be used for primary classes—but just which ones have not yet been determined. (Staff photo)

Balloon Sale To Boost History Museum Fund

Friends of the Museum for Arlington Heights will stage a fund-raising balloon sale at Sidewalk Days today (Thursday) through Saturday.

Women dressed in long gowns and bonnets will stroll through the streets selling the 9-inch balloons for either a donation or a quarter—whichever the buyer prefers.

In addition to the Sidewalk Days promotion, the group is organizing a formal fund-raising campaign. Some 50 workers are being recruited to carry out the person-to-person phase of the project. These workers, mainly members of the various women's groups in the village, will meet next Thursday to get their assignments.

AT THE FRIENDS' last meeting, Virgil Horath, chairman of the group, announced that some $3,500 in pledges and donations had been received.

At that time Mrs. Stephen Jurco, president of the Arlington Heights Woman's Club, said that her group was pledging a donation of $1,000 to be paid over the next two years.

More funds were promised by the Wheeling Township Women's Republican Club which is going to put on a fund-raising bake sale on August 13.

Explaining the need for a historical museum, Joseph Schneller, chairman of the business division of the drive, noted that European children who live near and are constantly exposed to museums know a great deal more about their community and its historical background than do American children.

"This is something we should give to our children," he said. "You can duplicate things like these historical items, but they're never the same as the originals."

THE FRIENDS group officially kicked off its campaign to raise $40,000 last Friday. At the present time, the museum friends are working to raise the first $10,000 of this goal by August 15 to purchase land for the Heller home at 514 N. Dunton Ave.

The 95-year-old home is now situated on the site the village has purchased for the new library. It must be moved by Sept. 1 to permit library construction to begin.

Three new division chairmen have been named. They are Mrs. Thomas Novotny, 201 N. Yale Ave.; Eugene F. Schlickman, 311 N. Derbyshire Lane, and Dr. John Brouhard, 751 S. Belmont Ave.

Schlickman, newly elected Republican committeeman, will be in charge of contacting all Arlington Heights lawyers. Mrs. Novotny, village clerk, will take all donations from dentists, and Brouhard will head the doctor's division. (A

Linehan Is New Pilot With United

Dennis Linehan, 1011 E. Rockwell St., Arlington Heights, has learned that long before a pilot gets behind the controls of his airplane, he has to spend scores of hours "flying on the ground."

A recent graduate of United Air Lines' training school, Linehan is now assigned as a second officer with the airline flying out of New York's Kennedy International Airport.

ALTHOUGH he had learned to fly in 1960 at the United States Flight Training School in Pensacola, Fla., Linehan was required to take the airline's 13-week course at Denver.

Included in the training program were five weeks of classroom study. During this period the young pilots studied the duties of a co-pilot. Aircraft terminology, simulated flying and the aircraft itself were studied later.

The final eight weeks of the training period also were devoted to second-officer training. This training prepared Linehan for his present job. In this job, he checks all functions of the aircraft, supervises fuel loading and monitors instruments while in flight. (A

Will Solo 'Oodles of Noodles'

Tom Huegerich, a member of the high school band's first cornet section, will play "Sounds from the Hudson" by Clarke.

Among the numbers played by the band will be "Toccata for Band" by Erickson, selections from "Carousel," "Rippling Waters" and "Festival Dance" from "A Czech Suite" and John Philip Sousa's "U.S. Field Artillery March." (A

Expansion Planned For Roto Mercury

Roto Mercury Sales, Inc., 1410 E. Northwest Highway, Arlington Heights, will begin a $300,000 building expansion Monday that will more than double the size of the present operation, according to Dick Roto, president.

New construction includes a two-story addition to the present showroom and service department and additional outside parking spaces for new and preowned automobiles.

The expansion will add about 10,000 square feet under roof for a total of 16,000 square feet. The service area, alone, will be more than tripled in space, and according to Roto, will be equipped with "the latest, most modern facilities."

ROTO MERCURY Sales, Inc. has served the area for 13 years. In October, when the 1967 styles come out, the business will extend to the Lincoln-Continental lines of cars. Roto received the franchise last month.

Expansion is to be completed early next year. Roto said its services would not be hindered during construction.

Presently, the business is staffed by 22 persons.

New construction will be on the former sites of Stonegate Tavern, Master Electric and TV Company and the Arlington Sinclair Oil Station. (A

by DAVE CRIPPEN
News Editor

CRIPPEN

Have you seen any tigers in Arlington Heights lately?

I don't mean the four-legged variety. I'm talking about the human kind. A tiger is a guy with real cool.

You must have seen him somewhere. He drives around town in a car equipped with "tiger paws" and a tiger in its tank. And when he depresses the accelerator, you can hear that big cat growl.

The girls who hang around him are impressed. They look up to him because he's . . . well . . . because he's a tiger.

But he didn't earn this respect because he owns a big, fast car. No sir. He had to prove he was a cool cat by demonstrating his prowess and courage behind the wheel.

He won't drive around corners like the average motorist. The only cool way is to take it fast so those rubber paws screech and leave their black marks on the pavement. Then everyone will know a tiger was there.

Heavy traffic gives him a big chance to test his skill. Like the true tiger that he is, he darts in and out of his traffic lane, weaving his way ahead of those fink drivers who believe in speed limits.

Intersections marked by stop signs or stop lights are great places to see this "man of courage" in action. If he stops at all, he'll let you know he is around by gunning that powerful engine. And when he is through impressing everyone in ear-shot with all that rumbling horsepower, he shoots away like a bullet.

Night is the best time for this cat to show what he really can do. The streets are clearer then—not so many dopey drivers to get in the way.

The quiet neighborhood streets are especially ideal. Racing down the narrow pavement, he transforms residential tranquillity into noisy excitement. And for a few glorious moments, Arlington Heights has its answer to the Bonneville Salt Flats.

Some people would like to dampen this tiger's spirit . . . like the cops. They are always trying to ruin the fun and make the streets safe for everyone. But if this guy is a real tiger, he can disregard traffic laws and still get away—at least part of the time.

You get the picture now, don't you. I mean, this guy is "it." He's the greatest . . . the living end. He's a tiger.

If you would like to meet him, I know where you can get his name and address. They are listed in the accident record down at the police station.

Seek Nursing Home, Office Project OK

A proposed planned development for a 24-office professional building and a 78-bed nursing home will be considered Monday by Arlington Heights Board of Trustees.

The plan commission approved the rezoning request Wednesday for the site of the two institutions, located near Northwest Community Hospital.

The two medically-oriented buildings are part of a 26-acre development southwest of Central Road and Ridge Avenue and east of the Nike Base.

THE PETITIONERS, Chicago Title and Trust Company, are asking for rezoning of 7.4 acres for multiple-family dwellings, About six acres are designated for institutional use.

The proposed medical building, will provide office space for 24 doctors, and will be equipped with an X-ray unit and a drug store. In an architect's sketch of the center, the professional building is sectioned into three main wings, connected by enclosed corridors.

An 86-car parking lot behind the building has access to Central and Ridge Roads.

THE NURSING home, to be constructed and managed by Americana Nursing Homes, Inc. is estimated to cost more than $1.5 million. Construction will get under way early in 1967.

According to Jack Stocking, representative for Americana, the site near a hospital is ideal. Patients would be near medical facilities, and doctors would be more apt to visit nursing home patients, he said.

Americana has 13 similar nursing home facilities in operation in Illinois. The Arlington Heights center will be the first one in Cook County.

Stocking emphasized that Americana "is a management organization skilled in running extended care units or nursing home units." It is not a developer or a promoter, he told commission members.

IN A CLOSE 5-4 vote, the plan commission approved rezoning of 7.4 acres of the property for multiple family dwellings.

According to Howard Borde, attorney for Chicago Title, there is a definite need in the area for apartment units, especially to provide housing for hospital personnel. He also pointed out that the Nike Base radar towers, which are immediately adjacent to the tract, would make building single-family dwellings there unfeasible.

The proposed plans call for about 100 one and two bedroom apartment units to be built on the parcel.

Commission member, Victor Beisler objected to granting the multiple family zoning. He said it would be inconsistant in view of a pending suit by the village board to block a similar zoning by the county on the Gosch property nearby.

Commission chairman Harold Carlson pointed out that the village opposed rezoning of the Gosch property mainly because it was outside of the village, and would not be able to use municipal utilities, that the project was an extremely high density development, and that it was not consistant with village planning. Seek Nursing Home, Office Project OK

A proposed planned development for a 24-office professional building and a 78-bed nursing home will be considered Monday by Arlington Heights Board of Trustees.

The plan commission approved the rezoning request Wednesday for the site of the two institutions, located near Northwest Community Hospital.

The two medically-oriented buildings are part of a 26-acre development southwest of Central Road and Ridge Avenue and east of the Nike Base.

THE PETITIONERS, Chicago Title and Trust Company, are asking for rezoning of 7.4 acres for multiple-family dwellings, About six acres are designated for institutional use.

The proposed medical building, will provide office space for 24 doctors, and will be equipped with an X-ray unit and a drug store. In an architect's sketch of the center, the professional building is sectioned into three main wings, connected by enclosed corridors.

An 86-car parking lot behind the building has access to Central and Ridge Roads.

THE NURSING home, to be constructed and managed by Americana Nursing Homes, Inc. is estimated to cost more than $1.5 million. Construction will get under way early in 1967.

According to Jack Stocking, representative for Americana, the site near a hospital is ideal. Patients would be near medical facilities, and doctors would be more apt to visit nursing home patients, he said.

Americana has 13 similar nursing home facilities in operation in Illinois. The Arlington Heights center will be the first one in Cook County.

Stocking emphasized that Americana "is a management organization skilled in running extended care units or nursing home units." It is not a developer or a promoter, he told commission members.

IN A CLOSE 5-4 vote, the plan commission approved rezoning of 7.4 acres of the property for multiple family dwellings.

According to Howard Borde, attorney for Chicago Title, there is a definite need in the area for apartment units, especially to provide housing for hospital personnel. He also pointed out that the Nike Base radar towers, which are immediately adjacent to the tract, would make building single-family dwellings there unfeasible.

The proposed plans call for about 100 one and two bedroom apartment units to be built on the parcel.

Commission member, Victor Beisler objected to granting the multiple family zoning. He said it would be inconsistant in view of a pending suit by the village board to block a similar zoning by the county on the Gosch property nearby.

Commission chairman Harold Carlson pointed out that the village opposed rezoning of the Gosch property mainly because it was outside of the village, and would not be able to use municipal utilities, that the project was an extremely high density development, and that it was not consistant with village planning. Mental, Physical Rigors Face Police Cadet

Year of Training For All Patrolmen

by NANCY BENCO
Staff Writer

The making of an Arlington Heights policeman is a rigorous process—both mentally and physically.

From the time a young man applies for police work to the time he is appointed a patrolman, he undergoes a year of intensive examinations and extensive training.

At the Arlington Heights police department, the newly-hired man becomes a cadet and begins his training in the radio room.

According to Chief L. W. Calderwood, this cadet program, instituted in 1957, helps to establish a man in the police department.

"It has a two-fold purpose," he said. "It gives the cadet a chance to see if he would like police work and also gives us the opportunity to see how he would fit in the department."

The radio room is an excellent training ground, according to three cadets currently stationed there.

ANSWERING telephone calls introduces them to the wide spectrum of complaints and problems — ranging from dog bite casualties and bicycle thefts to automobile accidents and homicide.

The cadet, in operating the police radio, gets an insight into how the men on the force work and how they react to problems which come up.

In addition, the cadet is responsible for typing the police blotter reports as well as the detailed police reports.

During this cadet interim, the cadet takes the police examination given by the Police and Fire Commission of Arlington Heights. The examinee must be between 21 and 35 years of age, with height and weight standards meeting those required by the commission.

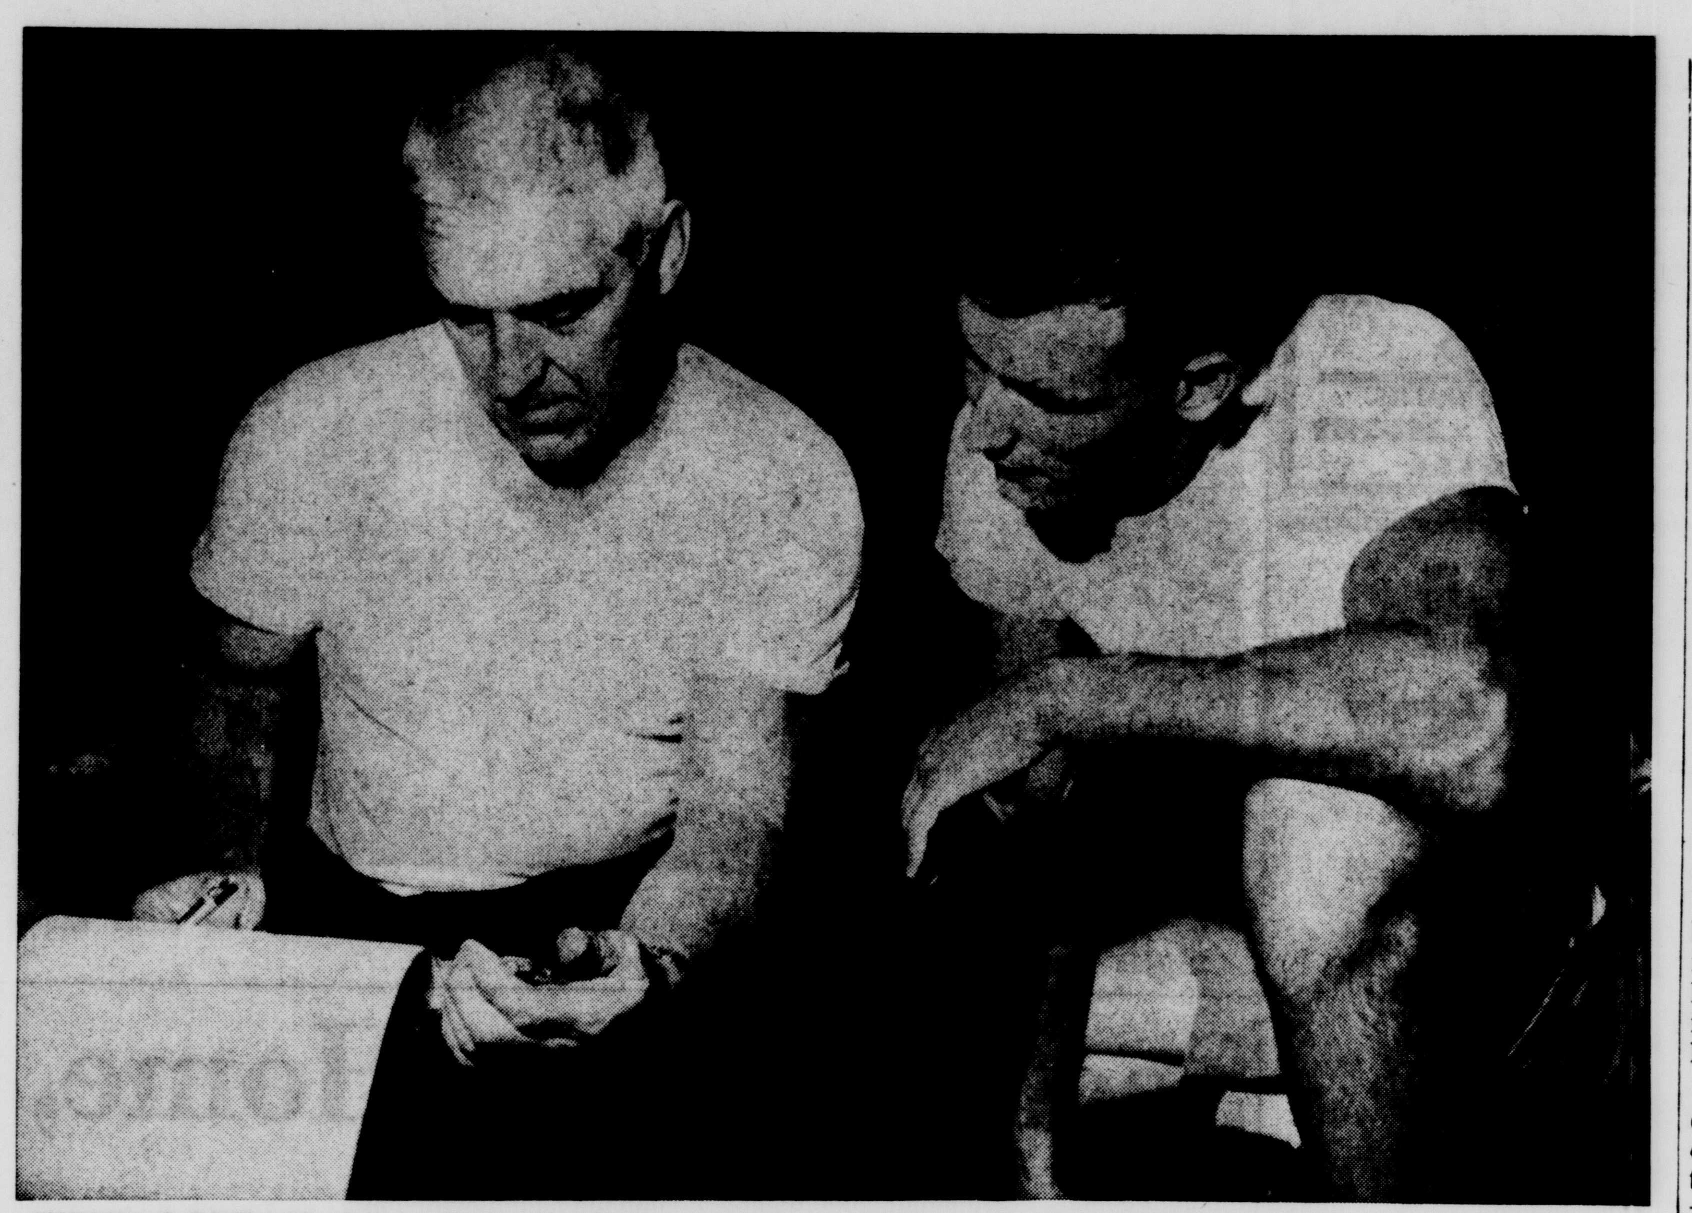
THE WRITTEN test, rated as "very difficult," by most policemen, covers a knowledge of city ordinances, investigative procedures, and general police work.

Other phases of this first comprehensive examining process include an intelligence test, medical and physical examinations, background checks, agility tests, and an oral interview with members of the Police and Fire Commission and the chief of police.

Successfully passing these tests, the cadet is appointed a "probationary" policeman for one year.

His training continues at the Chicago Police Academy, where he is enrolled in an intensive 37-hour a week, 14-week program.

HOUSED IN an aging brick building at 720 W. O'Brien Street, the police academy offers its educational facilities to both suburban and city police departments. It presently has enrolled 630 recruits, 70 of which are cadets. About 35 women are students. Courses offered range from city ordinances and emergency childbirth to telephone courtesy and fingerprinting.



CHECKING RESULTS of the policeman's physical examinations are (left) Sgt. Joseph Osterman and probationary officer Richard Robinson. The physical ability test includes shuttle runs, rope climbing, burpees, sit-ups, pull-ups and standing broad jumps. The agility test was given recently at the Arlington High School gymnasium.

In a breakdown of the recruit curriculum, 42 hours are designated for administration, 90 hours for criminal law, 48 hours for firearms and drill, 35 hours for physical training, 40 hours for social science studies, and 230 hours for police operations.

According to the two Arlington Heights men now enrolled—Patrolman Thomas Osborn and probationary Patrolman Rodney Kath, — the work is rigorous. Clad in spotless khaki uniforms, they attend classes from 8:15 a.m. to 4:10 each day. The round of activities includes lectures by instructors or outside speakers, films, workouts in the gymnasium, firing range practice (either at Soldier Field or at the Chicago police department), and practical application work.

A FULL DAY is spent in watching a mock crime committed and the resultant trial. Two of the 14 weeks are spent in field training where a recruit can apply theory learned in the classroom.

"We try to teach men every area of police work," said Lt. Gerald Pierce, assistant director of training at the academy.

"One man came into my office after a week of classes and resigned," said Pierce. "He admitted all he thought a policeman was trained for was riding a squad car or firing a few times at the range. He was shocked at the amount of work saying 'My eyes have been opened.' "

Classwork is stringent and demanding. If a recruit goes below a 70 per cent mark, he is dropped from the academy and, as a result, may be dropped from his sponsoring police department.

"We bring in wives, sweethearts, and mothers of the recruits to explain to them the amount of work the men have during this 14-week period," he said. "We try to make them understand why, for instance, their husband cannot go shopping with them in the evenings."

ACCORDING to Pierce a man averages between 2½ to 3 hours of homework each evening and eight hours over the weekend. Each man compiles a six to eight-inch thick notebook by the end of training.

Police departments who enroll men in the academy, certified by the Illinois Local Governmental Law Enforcement Officers Training Board, receive state assistance. The department receives 50 per cent of costs for each man during his probationary period. This aid covers tuition, salary, and testing.

What is the value of academy training, which is based primarily on Chicago city ordinances and Chicago police department structures and techniques to the suburban policeman?

According to Kath and Osborn, about 50 per cent of the work involved is directly or indirectly related specifically to Chicago police work.

"However," Kath noted, "even though we will probably never use all that we have learned, we will know about it if we meet it."

CHIEF CALDERWOOD, who estimated that about 70 per cent of the force had had training at the academy or a similar institution, emphasized that the training "puts a man in a position of confidence, he becomes more assured of his grounds."

One additional area which Calderwood would like to see covered at the training school, would be a study of physiology. He feels a policeman should learn about his own anatomy and how much strain he can take. The irregular hours of work and the problems of worrying have made ulcers almost an occupational disease with policemen, he said.

At the end of the one-year probationary period a man's work is reviewed by the Police and Fire Commission for conduct and satisfactory capacity.

Advances from here come in one-year leaps — after two years on the force a man is eligible for the rank of sergeant and after three years, he is eligible for the rank of lieutenant. To qualify, he again must take examinations.

However, Calderwood, pointed out, advancement does depend on whether there is a position open in the department.

"The vast majority, about 75 per cent of the men, stay on with the department," Calderwood said, "and make a career of police work."

ONE OF THE attracting features is a police pension plan which allows a man to retire at the age of 50. With 20 years of service behind him, he can receive 50 per cent of his salary plus one per cent for each additional year above 20 years to a maximum of 60 per cent.

What makes a man go through the long and difficult process of becoming a policeman? The immediate and general response, "It's interesting and challenging work."

Final Bible School Fete Is Tonight

A closing vacation Bible school program will be held tonight (Thursday) at St. Peter Lutheran Church, 111 W. Olive St., Arlington Heights.

The program will be held at 7:30 p.m. in conjunction with the regularly scheduled worship service, conducted by Pastor Robert O. Bartz. Art projects made by the children will be on display in Noack Hall following the service.

THE TWO-WEEK Bible school program, under the direction of Pastor Leonard Martin, minister of education, will end tomorrow.

This year's enrollment of 300 boys and girls represents an increase of 15 per cent over last year's attendance, according to Mrs. Joseph Patanella, Bible school secretary.

Programs of Bible study, devotions, music and art projects have centered around the theme "My Savior and I."

Cause of Palatine Fire Undetermined

Arlington Heights firemen and equipment helped fight a fire that caused an estimated $50,000 worth of damage in Palatine Sunday.

Palatine Fire Chief Orville Helms said the fire started on the enclosed wooden stairs in the rear of Coleman's Pharmacy, 40 N. Brockway. He said the cause was not determined.

The heat broke the windows on Hansen's Hardware Annex, 42 N. Brockway, and the flames spread through the building.

The combined Arlington Heights and Palatine forces had the flames under control in an hour, although the job was not finished until 1 a.m. Two pumpers and an aerial unit were supplied by Arlington Heights department.

HANSEN'S Hardware Annex received the most damage. The fire burned out most of the entire first floor and the rear portion of the second floor.

Fire damage to Coleman's pharmacy was confined to the rear and the second floor.

Hansen's main store at 105 W. Palatine Road, half a block away, remains open. Coleman's Pharmacy is open only for emergencies. (A

At the Arlington Heights police department, the newly-hired man becomes a cadet and begins his training in the radio room.

According to Chief L. W. Calderwood, this cadet program, instituted in 1957, helps to establish a man in the police department.

"It has a two-fold purpose," he said. "It gives the cadet a chance to see if he would like police work and also gives us the opportunity to see how he would fit in the department."

The radio room is an excellent training ground, according to three cadets currently stationed there.

ANSWERING telephone calls introduces them to the wide spectrum of complaints and problems — ranging from dog bite casualties and bicycle thefts to automobile accidents and homicide.

The cadet, in operating the police radio, gets an insight into how the men on the force work and how they react to problems which come up.

In addition, the cadet is responsible for typing the police blotter reports as well as the detailed police reports.

During this cadet interim, the cadet takes the police examination given by the Police and Fire Commission of Arlington Heights. The examinee must be between 21 and 35 years of age, with height and weight standards meeting those required by the commission.

THE WRITTEN test, rated as "very difficult," by most policemen, covers a knowledge of city ordinances, investigative procedures, and general police work.

Other phases of this first comprehensive examining process include an intelligence test, medical and physical examinations, background checks, agility tests, and an oral interview with members of the Police and Fire Commission and the chief of police.

Successfully passing these tests, the cadet is appointed a "probationary" policeman for one year.

His training continues at the Chicago Police Academy, where he is enrolled in an intensive 37-hour a week, 14-week program.

HOUSED IN an aging brick building at 720 W. O'Brien Street, the police academy offers its educational facilities to both suburban and city police departments. It presently has enrolled 630 recruits, 70 of which are cadets. About 35 women are students. Courses offered range from city ordinances and emergency childbirth to telephone courtesy and fingerprinting.

In a breakdown of the recruit curriculum, 42 hours are designated for administration, 90 hours for criminal law, 48 hours for firearms and drill, 35 hours for physical training, 40 hours for social science studies, and 230 hours for police operations.

According to the two Arlington Heights men now enrolled—Patrolman Thomas Osborn and probationary Patrolman Rodney Kath, — the work is rigorous. Clad in spotless khaki uniforms, they attend classes from 8:15 a.m. to 4:10 each day. The round of activities includes lectures by instructors or outside speakers, films, workouts in the gymnasium, firing range practice (either at Soldier Field or at the Chicago police department), and practical application work.

A FULL DAY is spent in watching a mock crime committed and the resultant trial. Two of the 14 weeks are spent in field training where a recruit can apply theory learned in the classroom.

"We try to teach men every area of police work," said Lt. Gerald Pierce, assistant director of training at the academy.

"One man came into my office after a week of classes and resigned," said Pierce. "He admitted all he thought a policeman was trained for was riding a squad car or firing a few times at the range. He was shocked at the amount of work saying 'My eyes have been opened.' "

Classwork is stringent and demanding. If a recruit goes below a 70 per cent mark, he is dropped from the academy and, as a result, may be dropped from his sponsoring police department.

"We bring in wives, sweethearts, and mothers of the recruits to explain to them the amount of work the men have during this 14-week period," he said. "We try to make them understand why, for instance, their husband cannot go shopping with them in the evenings."

ACCORDING to Pierce a man averages between 2½ to 3 hours of homework each evening and eight hours over the weekend. Each man compiles a six to eight-inch thick notebook by the end of training.

Police departments who enroll men in the academy, certified by the Illinois Local Governmental Law Enforcement Officers Training Board, receive state assistance. The department receives 50 per cent of costs for each man during his probationary period. This aid covers tuition, salary, and testing.

What is the value of academy training, which is based primarily on Chicago city ordinances and Chicago police department structures and techniques to the suburban policeman?

According to Kath and Osborn, about 50 per cent of the work involved is directly or indirectly related specifically to Chicago police work.

"However," Kath noted, "even though we will probably never use all that we have learned, we will know about it if we meet it."

CHIEF CALDERWOOD, who estimated that about 70 per cent of the force had had training at the academy or a similar institution, emphasized that the training "puts a man in a position of confidence, he becomes more assured of his grounds."

One additional area which Calderwood would like to see covered at the training school, would be a study of physiology. He feels a policeman should learn about his own anatomy and how much strain he can take. The irregular hours of work and the problems of worrying have made ulcers almost an occupational disease with policemen, he said.

At the end of the one-year probationary period a man's work is reviewed by the Police and Fire Commission for conduct and satisfactory capacity.

Advances from here come in one-year leaps — after two years on the force a man is eligible for the rank of sergeant and after three years, he is eligible for the rank of lieutenant. To qualify, he again must take examinations.

However, Calderwood, pointed out, advancement does depend on whether there is a position open in the department.

"The vast majority, about 75 per cent of the men, stay on with the department," Calderwood said, "and make a career of police work."

ONE OF THE attracting features is a police pension plan which allows a man to retire at the age of 50. With 20 years of service behind him, he can receive 50 per cent of his salary plus one per cent for each additional year above 20 years to a maximum of 60 per cent.

What makes a man go through the long and difficult process of becoming a policeman? The immediate and general response, "It's interesting and challenging work."

Cause of Palatine Fire Undetermined

Arlington Heights firemen and equipment helped fight a fire that caused an estimated $50,000 worth of damage in Palatine Sunday.

Palatine Fire Chief Orville Helms said the fire started on the enclosed wooden stairs in the rear of Coleman's Pharmacy, 40 N. Brockway. He said the cause was not determined.

The heat broke the windows on Hansen's Hardware Annex, 42 N. Brockway, and the flames spread through the building.

The combined Arlington Heights and Palatine forces had the flames under control in an hour, although the job was not finished until 1 a.m. Two pumpers and an aerial unit were supplied by Arlington Heights department.

HANSEN'S Hardware Annex received the most damage. The fire burned out most of the entire first floor and the rear portion of the second floor.

Fire damage to Coleman's pharmacy was confined to the rear and the second floor.

Hansen's main store at 105 W. Palatine Road, half a block away, remains open. Coleman's Pharmacy is open only for emergencies. (A

Revised Chesterfield Plan Satisfies School Officials

A revised plan for public land donation in the proposed 345-acre Chesterfield Builders development has met with satisfactory approval by two school district superintendants.

Chesterfield Builders last week submitted the new plan, which consolidates park and school sites, to Wheeling Community Consolidated District 21 and Prospect Heights District 23 superintendants. The park board did not receive the changed plans but had indicated earlier that it would favor a combined park-school site.

The revised development plan was expected to be presented to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission last night.

In meeting the demands of school and park officials, the developers have combined the original 30-acre "green belt" into two rectangular-shaped tracts. The total land area for public donation land has decreased from 30 acres to 27 acres.

A 20-acre consolidated land donation is proposed for the south-centfal portion of the property north of Hintz Rd. It is expected to be used for two schools for District 21 and a park site.

About seven acres in the southeast corner of the tract south of Hintz Rd. is being donated for a school site for District 23.

The two school superintendants indicated they were satisfied with the new plans, according to Howard Borde, attorney for Chesterfield Builders.

School district officials had opposed the developer's proposal for a "green belt" land donation because it would be inadequate on which to build schools.

According to future projections, District 21 will need both a junior high school and an elementary school to serve an estimated 1,262 new students coming from the proposed subdivision.

District 23 will need one elementary school site for an estimated 339 additional students.

According to park officials, the original plan for a narrow parkway would have created difficulty in maintenance and utilities.

According to Borde, the developers will offer to pay for all subdivision street improvements sites. The question of sidewalks along the public land has not been discussed.

The remaining three acres from the original 30-acre donation has been designated for single-family dwelling use.

All other rezoning requests remain the same, according to Borde. Chesterfield is asking for 7.6 acres for general business use, 77.6 for multiple-family dwellings, 45.3 for two-family dwelling, and 186 acres for single-family dwellings. The 345-acre tract is in an unincorporated area between Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove Roads. The bulk of the property lies north of Hintz Road.

Quotoons

You know a man really trusts his wife if he lets her write the checks at the end of the month.

When it comes to clock-watching, it is hard to be more attentive than a little boy just a few minutes before school's out.

An agile woman is one who can catch a man before he turns 25.

People always get along well with each other when they are in the same fix.

One of the hardest things for a parent to understand is why a child gets such a big kick out of getting up with the birds.

People who are in a run-down condition usually get that way by being too would-up in themselves.

THE NEW MINISTER, his British-born wife, and their four children will be returning to familiar territory when they relocate in the Chicago area. He received his bachelor of divinity degree from Chicago Theological Seminary in 1961 and was ordained by the Freeport Presbytery in 1962.

While a divinity student, he directed the choirs of the University of Chicago and Chicago Theological seminary.

A native of Pennsylvania, the Rev. Mr. Diehl attended Warren Wilson College at Swannanoa, N.C., and graduated cum laude from Maryville (Tenn.) College in 1952. Revised Chesterfield Plan Satisfies School Officials

A revised plan for public land donation in the proposed 345-acre Chesterfield Builders development has met with satisfactory approval by two school district superintendants.

Chesterfield Builders last week submitted the new plan, which consolidates park and school sites, to Wheeling Community Consolidated District 21 and Prospect Heights District 23 superintendants. The park board did not receive the changed plans but had indicated earlier that it would favor a combined park-school site.

The revised development plan was expected to be presented to the Arlington Heights Plan Commission last night.

In meeting the demands of school and park officials, the developers have combined the original 30-acre "green belt" into two rectangular-shaped tracts. The total land area for public donation land has decreased from 30 acres to 27 acres.

A 20-acre consolidated land donation is proposed for the south-centfal portion of the property north of Hintz Rd. It is expected to be used for two schools for District 21 and a park site.

About seven acres in the southeast corner of the tract south of Hintz Rd. is being donated for a school site for District 23.

The two school superintendants indicated they were satisfied with the new plans, according to Howard Borde, attorney for Chesterfield Builders.

School district officials had opposed the developer's proposal for a "green belt" land donation because it would be inadequate on which to build schools.

According to future projections, District 21 will need both a junior high school and an elementary school to serve an estimated 1,262 new students coming from the proposed subdivsision.

District 23 will need one elementary school site for an estimated 339 additional students.

According to park officials, the original plan for a narrow parkway would have created difficulty in maintenance and utilities.

According to Borde, the developers will offer to pay for all subdivision street improvements sites. The question of sidewalks along the public land has not been discussed.

The remaining three acres from the original 30-acre donation has been designated for single-family dwelling use.

All other rezoning requests remain the same, according to Borde. Chesterfield is asking for 7.6 acres for general business use, 77.6 for multiple-family dwellings, 45.3 for two-family dwelling, and 186 acres for single-family dwellings. The 345-acre tract is in an unincorporated area between Arlington Heights and Buffalo Grove Roads. The bulk of the property lies north of Hintz Road.

You know a man really trusts his wife if he lets her write the checks at the end of the month.

When it comes to clock-watching, it is hard to be more attentive than a little boy just a few minutes before school's out.

An agile woman is one who can catch a man before he turns 25.

People always get along well with each other when they are in the same fix.

One of the hardest things for a parent to understand is why a child gets such a big kick out of getting up with the birds.

People who are in a rundown condition usually get that way by being too would-up in themselves.

Redmond Urges State Aid to Local Police

Area News Roundup

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS—Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson has announced plans for a crash program to improve the village's water supply facilities. Hanson will ask the village board Monday for quick approval of the program so it can be started early next week.

Costing $25,000, the project will link a village well at Arlington Heights and Techny Roads with water mains at Arlington Heights and Palatine Roads.

PALATINE—Western Terrace Corp. has brought suit against the village of Palatine in an attempt to have 35 acres adjacent to the Winston Park planned development zoned for apartments. Western Terrace was denied this request in May because it did not conform to the village's master plan. The developers are now asking for a declaratory judgment from the courts to reverse the decision.

ROLLING MEADOWS—Residents have petitioned for a referendum on the question of purchase of a $155,000 downtown civic center site. The petition is an upset in plans for construction of the new public library building, and adds further confusion to plans for expansion of city government quarters.

HOFFMAN ESTATES-SCHAUMBURG — Schaumburg School District 54 may lose 14 classrooms and $226,000 if it can't find a builder who will do the job for $17 a square foot.

WHEELING—Wheeling's long awaited street improvement program will get started next month, Village Engr. Tom Moody said this week. About one fifth of the $825,000 project will be started in August and completed in September.

HANOVER PARK—An appropriations ordinance listing a top village expenditure of $482,775 was approved last week by the Hanover Park Village Board. The appropriation is $130,800 higher than last year's. The levy will come to a vote next month.

MOUNT PROSPECT—The battle to change Mount Prospect's form of government is sure to become livelier. A new group, calling itself Citizens to Keep Village Government, has been formed to oppose the Representative Government Association (RGA). RGA seeks a referendum to change to a mayor-alderman (city) form of government. The Citizens wants to keep the present village-type government. The battle will be decided by Sept. 19.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE—Officials took steps to advance the village timetable for acquiring Chicago water. Recent drops in the water level at village wells and higher than anticipated water consumption necessitated the acceleration of considering obtaining water from Chicago hopefully by the summer of 1968.

BENSENVILLE—Bensenville Grade School District 2 adopted an appropriations ordinance for 1966-67. Then, the school administration was instructed to prepare a tentative budget for 1967-68, have it ready by the last week in September, and justify, if possible, the board's recent decision to increase the transportation tax levy rate.

WOOD DALE—Wood Dale Grade School District 7 board members agreed to provide bus transportation to parochial school students, and mulled the problems of timing, distance of pupils from their respective schools, and a possible increase in buses to be used.

ROSELLE—The village hall is back in the limelight. Roselle Trustees Monday approved a $63,000 bid submitted by Dee Cee Builders of Keeneyville for completion of the village hall remodeling project. Trustees specified, however, that the work be spread out so it could be paid for as funds become available.

ADDISON—Village officials have not reached a decision on whether or not they want to buy a privately owned swimming pool in the village. They plan to give the matter further study and make a decision by August 1.

Bell Office Tells Of Tax Opposition

The Arlington Heights office of Illinois Bell Telephone Co. affirmed its opposition this week to the proposed five per cent utility tax.

Bob Luedtke, community relations manager, said a five per cent tax actually would add more than 50 cents to every $10 of the phone bill. In effect, the tax is more than five per cent because of collection and accounting costs, he said.

"COLLECTION OF such tax also increases the company's accounting cost," said Luedtke. Illinois Bell is permitted by law to charge its customers an amount equal to three per cent of the municipal tax to help these costs.

"We appreciate the local government's need for additional revenue," he continued, "and we are willing to pay our share.

"We all recognize the need for taxes, but no other household utility is taxed as heavily as your telephone service, and the tax is much greater than that borne by purchase of TV sets and radios and other items commonly regarded as less of a necessity than phone service.

Rep. William A. Redmond (D-Bensenville) has advised the Illinois Municipal League that he intends to propose state grants to support municipal and county police departments in the next session of the state legislature.

Vice-chairman of the Judiciary Committee in the 74th session of the General Assembly, Redmond pointed out that the ever-increasing crime rate shows the need for well-trained municipal police departments.

Referring to recently released Federal Bureau of Investigation statistics, Redmond said:

"Crimes in urban areas increased 14 per cent in the first six months of 1966, while those in the suburbs increased 23 per cent during the same period.

"Obviously, concentrated effort on all levels of law enforcement is necessary to reverse these figures."

WILLIAM REDMOND

THE LEGISLATOR said that improvements in roads and transportation facilities are factors in the increasing crime rate and the corresponding necessity for efficient local law enforcement.

"Formerly, crimes were most often committed by local or vagrant offenders who had limited means of escape.

"Modern transportation has made it possible for criminals to leave the area of their activities very quickly," he pointed out.

"It is therefore necessary that all municipal police departments be prepared to deal with offenses that are not of a purely local nature."

REDMOND explained that the municipal police departments serve the whole state in this function of law enforcement.

It is therefore "manifestly unfair to place the full burden of the cost of crime control upon the local communities.

He continued:

"Illinois cities spend $125 million, or about 40 per cent of their total expenditures, on police protection every year.

"Under the current system of revenue procedures, the cities simply do not have adequate means to sustain these expenses or to raise additional funds."

HE CITED several examples of state aid to police departments, including instances of both financial help and improved training facilities for municipal law enforcement agencies.

He mentioned the Louisiana and Virginia grants for police salaries, and the Illinois training schools.

"These are some of the programs which must be studied before the proposal is made.

"A careful analysis of the possibilities, followed by comprehensive provision for state aid, is necessary to insure the high quality of local law enforcement," Redmond said.

ACCORDING TO A report from the U.S. Bureau of Census, City Government Finances in 1963-64, nationwide expenditures per capita for police protection range from $8.74 for cities of less than 50,000 population to $27.31 for cities of 1,000,000 or more.

The Illinois Legislative Council suggested that state aid might take the form of partial reimbursement of salaries.

The Municipal Year Book, 1965, says median entrance salaries of policemen ranged between $4,740 in 623 cities of 10,000 to 25,000 population, and $5,515 in 18 cities over 500,000.

The median maximum salaries ranged between $5,292 and $6,514 for the same population classes.

TAKING A general median salary figure of $5,600, the Illinois Legislative Council applied it to 14,000 full-time local police officers in the state, and determined that city police salaries "may total $78 million."

Sources used in Redmond's study of state grants to municipal and county police departments included:

Auditor of Public Accounts, Statewide Summary of Municipal Finance in Illinois, 1964; U. S. Bureau of the Census, City Government Finances, 1963-64; International City Managers' Association, The Municipal Year Book, 1965; and Illinois Legislative Council File on State Financial Aid for Local Police.

Will Resume Hearings on Lillian St.

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) will resume formal public hearings on the extension of Lillian Street at 8 p.m. today (Thursday).

The proposed extension of the street would run east to Arlington Heights Road, passing between the Market Basket Shopping Center at Palatine and Arlington Heights Roads and the Pure Oil Station to the south of it.

Both the Pure Oil Co. and Nicholas Prassas, owner of the shopping center, have raised opposition to the project.

SOME OF this opposition was eliminated at the June 23 BOLI meeting when the proposed easement for street parkways and sidewalk was pared down by five feet on each side. This reduction cut the easement from a 66-foot width to a 56-foot width.

With this change, the easement is entirely on the Prassas property and lies adjacent to the Pure Oil property's northernmost boundary.

Two Teen Boys Said Missing

Two teenage Arlington Heights boys were reported missing by police Wednesday. The boys, who reportedly went on a fishing trip to Wauconda or Lake Zurich, had been missing since Monday evening.

Reported missing were Robert Reynolds, 14, of 538 S. Lincoln McLane and John Spicer,15, of 116 S. Duton Ave. McReynolds' was wearing a red and white shirt, dark red pants, and glasses when he was last seen. Spicer was dressed in light blue shorts, brown shirt and loafers.

According to Reynolds' father, the boys were supposed to return from the fishing trip Monday. They apparently rode a bus to the lakes.

Military Honor For Woods Son

Military ceremonies Friday at the Arlington Heights Nike Base will honor posthumously Pfc. Jonathan Woods, son of Village Pres. John G. Woods.

The village president will accept a commendation medal for his son, who was killed June 18 in an automobile accident near Blythe, Calif. The medal will be presented by Col. Truman F. Cook, base commander.

The presentation will be part of a retirement ceremony scheduled to begin at 3:30 p.m.

The Department of the Army citation commends Pfc. Woods for meritorious service as a broadcast specialist in the information office, White Sands Missle Range, N.M. He was cited for his "outstanding efforts, highly professional capabilities and devotion to duty."

Fred Burtis Joins Paddock Ad Staff

Robert Y. Paddock, vice president of Paddock Publications, this week announced the appointment of Fred Burtis of Park Ridge to the display advertising department.

Mary Lee Inzerello

Miss America Contest Next for Elk Grove Girl

Miss Illinois, Mary Lee Inzerello of Elk Grove Village, figured she wouldn't win twice on the same stage where she was named Miss Adams County.

"Lightning never strikes twice," the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Inzerello, 371 Laurel, laughingly said in a telephone interview. "I was very surprised . . . I didn't think 'it' was there," she added, "though I tried my best."

Mary Lee admits she prepared herself to be the runner-up. Now this 19-year-old Quincy College sophomore is preparing to enter the Miss America contest in Atlantic City Sept. 10.

BETWEEN THE Miss Adams County and the Miss Illinois contests, Mary Lee learned to "think on her feet" and answer questions naturally. She said her chaperone, Deanne Searls, instructor in personality development at Gem City College, tested her during rehearsal by asking her difficult questions.

In the Miss Illinois contest, Mary Lee had to answer why she chose a small liberal arts college. As she explained it, she didn't want to be "a number" but considered "a person" and she wanted to enjoy all facets of life. Liberal arts also would give her the most opportunity to decide her major, she told the judges.

Mary Lee now is majoring in English with a probable American and British literature concentration in preparation for teaching high school.

ENTERING THE beauty contest was "worth doing," according to the "almost" 5'3" brunette. She believes she has gained self confidence and poise. "It adds to you as a person." She has met girls from throughout the state.

Mary Lee said the only less pleasant side effect she foresees is the necessity to listen to the advice of a variety of people; everyone is anxious to give her advice and it is hard to tell someone that another person's advice will be considered first, she observed.

After her coming year's reign as Miss Illinois, Mary Lee thoughtfully suggested she may find it hard to get used to not being pampered. "It's easy to expect people to do things for you in this position," she said. She has tried to counteract any tendency in this direction by helping the family with whom she is staying while in Quincy.

"I want kids to think of me as Mary Lee, not Miss Illinois, when I get back to school," Mary Lee stressed. The twin — who is one of eight children — has been told that she'll be deluged with dates. She admitted some skepticism and suggested her title might scare away some potential dates. She dates "three to four fellows" regularly and occasionally adds new acquaintances.

MARY LEE anticipates having to study harder to keep up when she returns to Quincy College this fall. She can limit her appearances if it affects her school work, she said. Her first official appearance will be Aug.

"I'm as clothes conscious as anyone," Mary Lee added.

Though she may cut down on extras occasionally, she's one of those who can eat without counting calories.

As a result of her victory in the Miss Adams County contest, Mary Lee received a $500 savings bond. She received $1,000 from Pepsi Cola for winning the state competition and a $1,20 at a beauty pageant in Danville.

Mary Lee has worked during to stop that school job because of conflict with expected appearances, she said. Her earnest preparation for the Miss America contest means she is quitting her job with a Quincy department store, her original sponsor.

In the talent part of the state contest, Mary Lee performed a modern dance to "Grey Goodby" from "Soldier in the Rain." She got the idea when she saw an Orchesis show at Forest View High School, her alma mater. After talking to the Orchesis teacher, she adapted to one part the four-part dance she had seen.

This number evolved from the sad dance she did in the Miss Adams County contest to a more dramatic, emotional dance in the Miss Illinois contest.

Mary Lee plans to take formal dance lessons before the Miss America contest. These will be her first professional lessons; her previous dance experience was as a member of Orchesis at Forest View for three years.

OF THE troublemakers coming from outside the school rather than from the student body itself, Jenness said, "If these were in Chicago, you'd call them hoodlums."

Jenness and Arlington High citizens have assumed that because District 214's building principals want policemen in the school that "the kids are out of hand."

"Nothing could be further from the truth," he emphasized.

Policemen are wanted, said Janness and Arlington High assistant principal John Rowe, to handle the problems that school personnel are either not trained to handle (such as theft investigations) or don't have time for. Traffic supervision would fall in the latter category.

UNDER A preliminary agreement worked out by Jenness, Arlington High Principal Bruno Waara, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson and Police Chief L. W. Calderwood, the school system would pay five-sixths of the salary and fringe costs of each officer assigned to the high schools.

That same preliminary agreement would have the safety officer, while a part of the police force, be responsible to the assistant principal for administrative services during school time.

The matter of uniforms was not mentioned in the agreement, but Calderwood has made it clear at earlier District 214 meetings that he favors having school safety officers wear uniforms, including guns.

The uniform — and the carrying of firearms — has been questioned by school board members and was also discussed at Tuesday's village committee session.

"I would favor uniforms," said Trustee Frank Palmatier. "I bounced this idea off my three high school kids. They don't like the idea of being spied upon," a feeling they said they would get with plainclothesmen.

Heavy Rains Cause Floods

Heavy rains late Tuesday night and Wednesday caused extensive flooding in Arlington Heights homes and streets.

Police and fire department officials reported they had received numerous calls from residents complaining that their basements were flooded.

Flooding was reported at Waterman Road and Gregory Street, at Highland Avenue and Sigwalt Street, and in some sections of Greenbrier.

WEDNESDAY morning the village public works department reported the extent of the flooding had not yet been determined. The department said it had no indications of damage to village propery.

No extensive damage to power lines was reported. Commonwealth Edison Co. officials said only one power line was downed in Arlington Heights. The trouble was corrected within an hour.

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. reported no damage to any of its Arlington Heights facilities. (AF net annual profit of five per cent.

"WE'RE GOING to be out of business unless we get an increase," Knott claimed.

The owner of the scavenger service, Henry Laseke Sr., said the village's requirement that collectors pick up all garbage set out by residents has boosted expenses.

Uniform back - door pickup, which was initiated after an opinion survey last May, also has resulted in added expenses because more men had to be hired, Laseke officials maintained.

Garbage collectors currently pick up an average of four 30-gallon cans per household. Garbage is collected twice a week. Laseke officials would like to limit the number of cans for each pickup to two.

COMMITTEE members expressed concern over the amounts which the disposal company claimed it spent on dues and subscriptions, professional services, advertising and promotion, and officers' life insurance.

Trustee John Walsh asked for an explanation of $6,200 listed as spent for advertising and promotion.

"I con't know how I could justify $6,200 for advertising to the taxpayer when you are on a contract," Walsh remarked. Committee concern also was voiced over $11,000 reportedly paid to another scavenger service in return for rights to collect garbage in Arlington Gardens.

Laseke said the scavengers' association required this payment when his company took over collection after the village annexed the subdivision.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson contended this payment was not necessary.

"I THINK there is too much cash taken out of your business," said Hanson. "That's where you're in trouble."

Laseke representatives agreed to further itemize the company's expenses for the committee. Much more scrutiny of the firm's claims that it is losing money is expected before the committee prepares a recommendation for the village board.

Last March Laseke requested a 25- to 50-cent increase in its collection rate. The current two-year contract between the village and the company expires in November.

2 Hearings Wednesday

The Arlington Heights Plan Commission will hold two rezoning hearings Wednesday. Both petitioners are asking for rezoning from single-family to multiple family classifications.

At the 8 p.m. hearing, petitioner David Shoberg will request rezoning of a six-lot parcel at the southwest corner of Thomas and Evergreen Avenues from single-family to multiple-family dwellings. He is proposing a two-story apartment house with 15 units. There are seven one-bedroom units and two-bedroom units in the pr and eight two-bedroom units in the proposal.

HOLLYWOOD Builders is requesting rezoning of a 48-acre property north of Rand Road and west of Arlington Heights Road. The petitioners are asking for rezoning from single-family dwellings to multiple-family dwellings for the tract.

The land is just south of the Edison Co. highline.

The hearing is scheduled for 9 p.m.

Redmond Urges State Aid to Local Police

Rep. William A. Redmond (D-Bensenville) has advised the Illinois Municipal League that he intends to propose state grants to support municipal and county police departments in the next session of the state legislature.

Vice-chairman of the Judiciary Committee in the 74th session of the General Assembly, Redmond pointed out that the ever-increasing crime rate shows the need for well-trained municipal police departments.

Referring to recently released Federal Bureau of Investigation statistics, Redmond said:

"Crimes in urban areas increased 14 per cent in the first six months of 1966, while those in the suburbs increased 23 per cent during the same period.

"Obviously, concentrated effort on all levels of law enforcement is necessary to reverse these figures."

THE LEGISLATOR said that improvements in roads and transportation facilities are factors in the increasing crime rate and the corresponding necessity for efficient local law enforcement.

"Formerly, crimes were most often committed by local or vagrant offenders who had limited means of escape.

"Modern transportation has made it possible for criminals to leave the area of their activities very quickly," he pointed out.

"It is therefore necessary that all municipal police departments be prepared to deal with offenses that are not of a purely local nature."

REDMOND explained that the municipal police departments serve the whole state in this function of law enforcement.

It is therefore "manifestly unfair to place the full burden of the cost of crime control upon the local communities.

He continued:

WILLIAM REDMOND

"Under the current system of revenue procedures, the cities simply do not have adequate means to sustain these expenses or to raise additional funds."

HE CITED several examples of state aid to police departments, including instances of both financial help and improved training facilities for municipal law enforcement agencies.

He mentioned the Louisiana and Virginia grants for police salaries, and the Illinois training schools.

"These are some of the programs which must be studied before the proposal is made.

"A careful analysis of the possibilities, followed by comprehensive provision for state aid, is necessary to insure the high quality of local law enforcement," Redmond said.

ACCORDING TO A report from the U.S. Bureau of Census, City Government Finances in 1963-64, nationwide expenditures per capita for police protection range from $8.74 for cities of less than 50,000 population to $27.31 for cities of 1,000,000 or more.

The Illinois Legislative Council suggested that state aid might take the form of partial reimbursement of salaries.

The Municipal Year Book, 1965, says median entrance salaries of policemen ranged between $4,740 in 623 cities of 10,000 to 25,000 population, and $5,515 in 18 cities over 500,000.

The median maximum salaries ranged between $5,292 and $6,514 for the same population classes.

TAKING A general median salary figure of $5,600, the Illinois Legislative Council applied it to 14,000 full-time local police officers in the state, and determined that city police salaries "may total $78 million."

Sources used in Redmond's study of state grants to municipal and county police departments included:

Auditor of Public Accounts, Statewide Summary of Municipal Finance in Illinois, 1964; U. S. Bureau of the Census, City Government Finances, 1963-64; International City Managers' Association, The Municipal Year Book, 1965; and Illinois Legislative Council File on State Financial Aid for Local Police.

Area News Roundup

ARLINGTON HEIGHTS—Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson has announced plans for a crash program to improve the village's water supply facilities. Hanson will ask the village board Monday for quick approval of the program so it can be started early next week.

Costing $25,000, the project will link a village well at Arlington Heights and Techny Roads with water mains at Arlington Heights and Palatine Roads.

PALATINE—Western Terrace Corp. has brought suit against the village of Palatine in an attempt to have 35 acres adjacent to the Winston Park planned development zoned for apartments. Western Terrace was denied this request in May because it did not conform to the village's master plan. The developers are now asking for a declaratory judgment from the courts to reverse the decision.

ROLLING MEADOWS—Residents have petitioned for a referendum on the question of purchase of a $155,000 downtown civic center site. The petition is an upset in plans for construction of the new public library building, and adds further confusion to plans for expansion of city government quarters.

HOFFMAN ESTATES-SCHAUMBURG — Schaumburg School District 54 may lose 14 classrooms and $226,000 if it can't find a builder who will do the job for $17 a square foot.

WHEELING—Wheeling's long awaited street improvement program will get started next month, Village Engr. Tom Moody said this week. About one fifth of the $825,000 project will be started in August and completed in September.

HANOVER PARK—An appropriations ordinance listing a top village expenditure of $482,775 was approved last week by the Hanover Park Village Board. The appropriation is $130,800 higher than last year's. The levy will come to a vote next month.

MOUNT PROSPECT—The battle to change Mount Prospect's form of government is sure to become livelier. A new group, calling itself Citizens to Keep Village Government, has been formed to oppose the Representative Government Association (RGA). RGA seeks a referendum to change to a mayor-alderman (city) form of government. The Citizens wants to keep the present village-type government. The battle will be decided by Sept. 19.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE—Officials took steps to advance the village timetable for acquiring Chicago water. Recent drops in the water level at village wells and higher than anticipated water consumption necessitated the acceleration of considering obtaining water from Chicago hopefully by the summer of 1968.

BENSENVILLE—Bensenville Grade School District 2 adopted an appropriations ordinance for 1966-67. Then, the school administration was instructed to prepare a tentative budget for 1967-68, have it ready by the last week in September, and justify, if possible, the board's recent decision to increase the transportation tax levy rate.

WOOD DALE—Wood Dale Grade School District 7 board members agreed to provide bus transportation to parochial school students, and mulled the problems of timing, distance of pupils from their respective schools, and a possible increase in buses to be used.

ROSELLE—The village hall is back in the limelight. Roselle Trustees Monday approved a $63,000 bid submitted by Dee Cee Builders of Keeneyville for completion of the village hall remodeling project. Trustees specified, however, that the work be spread out so it could be paid for as funds become available.

ADDISON—Village officials have not reached a decision on whether or not they want to buy a privately owned swimming pool in the village. They plan to give the matter further study and make a decision by August 1.

Bell Office Tells Of Tax Opposition

The Arlington Heights office of Illinois Bell Telephone Co. affirmed its opposition this week to the proposed five per cent utility tax.

Bob Luedtke, community relations manager, said a five per cent tax actually would add more than 50 cents to every $10 of the phone bill. In effect, the tax is more than five per cent because of collection and accounting costs, he said.

"COLLECTION OF such tax also increases the company's accounting cost," said Luedtke. Illinois Bell is permitted by law to charge its customers an amount equal to three per cent of the municipal tax to help these costs.

"We appreciate the local government's need for additional revenue," he continued, "and we are willing to pay our share.

"We all recognize the need for taxes, but no other household utility is taxed as heavily as your telephone service, and the tax is much greater than that borne by purchase of TV sets and radios and other items commonly regarded as less of a necessity than phone service.

Will Resume Hearings on Lillian St.

The Arlington Heights Board of Local Improvements (BOLI) will resume formal public hearings on the extension of Lillian Street at 8 p.m. today (Thursday).

The proposed extension of the street would run east to Arlington Heights Road, passing between the Market Basket Shopping Center at Palatine and Arlington Heights Roads and the Pure Oil Station to the south of it.

Both the Pure Oil Co. and Nicholas Prassas, owner of the shopping center, have raised opposition to the project.

SOME OF this opposition was eliminated at the June 23 BOLI meeting when the proposed easement for street parkways and sidewalk was pared down by five feet on each side. This reduction cut the easement from a 66-foot width to a 56-foot width.

With this change, the easement is entirely on the Prassas property and lies adjacent to the Pure Oil property's northernmost boundary.

Two Teen Boys Said Missing

Two teenage Arlington Heights boys were reported missing by police Wednesday. The boys, who reportedly went on a fishing trip to Wauconda or Lake Zurich, had been missing since Monday evening.

Reported missing were Robert Reynolds, 14, of 538 S. Lincoln McLane and John Spicer,15, of 116 S. Duton Ave. McReynolds' was wearing a red and white shirt, dark red pants, and glasses when he was last seen. Spicer was dressed in light blue shorts, brown shirt and loafers.

According to Reynolds' father, the boys were supposed to return from the fishing trip Monday. They apparently rode a bus to the lakes.

Military Honor For Woods Son

Military ceremonies Friday at the Arlington Heights Nike Base will honor posthumously Pfc. Jonathan Woods, son of Village Pres. John G. Woods.

The village president will accept a commendation medal for his son, who was killed June 18 in an automobile accident near Blythe, Calif. The medal will be presented by Col. Truman F. Cook, base commander.

The presentation will be part of a retirement ceremony scheduled to begin at 3:30 p.m.

The Department of the Army citation commends Pfc. Woods for meritorious service as a broadcast specialist in the information office, White Sands Missle Range, N.M. He was cited for his "outstanding efforts, highly professional capabilities and devotion to duty."

Fred Burtis Joins Paddock Ad Staff

Robert Y. Paddock, vice president of Paddock Publications, this week announced the appointment of Fred Burtis of Park Ridge to the display advertising department.

Burtis will work primarily in DuPage County.

A graduate of Chicago schools, Burtis also took training at the Northwest School of Commerce, the National Academy of Art, and the Chicago Academy of Fine Arts.

He spent 11 years with Pioneer Newspapers, headquartered in Oak Park, eight of which were served as advertising manager of the Austinite, and two as general sales manager of all Pioneer newspapers.

PRIOR TO joining Paddock, he helped establish a shopping guide for the Village Economist in Oak Park.

He and his wife, Arline, have two children — a daughter, Mrs. Donna Wade of Elk Grove Village, and a son, William, an officer for the Mount Prospect police department.

For relaxation, Burtis is a spectator sports fan. He was associated with the National Football League for nine years. (A15

Miss America Contest Next for Elk Grove Girl

Miss Illinois, Mary Lee Inzerello of Elk Grove Village, figured she wouldn't win twice on the same stage where she was named Miss Adams County.

"Lightning never strikes twice," the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Inzerello, 371 Laurel, laughingly said in a telephone interview. "I was very surprised . . . I didn't think 'it' was there," she added, "though I tried my best."

Mary Lee admits she prepared herself to be the runner-up. Now this 19-year-old Quincy College sophomore is preparing to enter the Miss America contest in Atlantic City Sept. 10.

BETWEEN THE Miss Adams County and the Miss Illinois contests, Mary Lee learned to "think on her feet" and answer questions naturally. She said her chaperone, Deanne Searls, instructor in personality development at Gem City College, tested her during rehearsal by asking her difficult questions.

In the Miss Illinois contest, Mary Lee had to answer why she chose a small liberal arts college. As she explained it, she didn't want to be "a number" but considered "a person" and she wanted to enjoy all facets of life. Accident Prone Corners Reported

Six multiple-accident intersections have been pinpointed for Arlington Heights trustees in a report of "Yield" marked corners.

Probably themost dangerous, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson told a Tuesday meeting of the public safety committee, is the Ridge-Park intersections.

With traffic on Ridge given the right of way, the intersection was the scene of six accidents since December, 1964.

The Prindle and Miner intersection had a higher number of accidents—seven—but only two the end of 1964.

HANSON TOLD the trustees' committee, asked to review the general subject of "Yield" signs —considered a traffic hazard themselves by some trustees—that he would recommend that Park at Ridge be marked for a "stop" instead.

The public safety committee, headed by Jack Walsh, reaffirmed its general support of the policy of placing yield signs at corners as recommended by the engineering department.

They asked Hanson to review his recommendations for "Yield" markers at seven intersections brought before trustees July 18 and referred by them to committee.

Walsh noted that the "Yield" recommendations are based on traffic count alone and do not take into account other circumstances such as poor visibility.

"YIELD" recommendations to be reviewed include: South to yeidl for Dunton, Dwyer to yield for Grove, Evergreen to yield for Fremont, Highland to yield for South, Fremont to yield for Vail, St. James to yield for Vail, and Grove to yield for Gibbons.

Hanson told trustees he would probably drop his recommendation for both South Street of these have occurred since markers.

Also to be reviewed before the revised recommendations go again to trustees in ordinance form include the "Yield" markings for Hawthorne at Belmont, Olive at Dunton, Dwyer at Sigwalt and Mitchell at Sigwalt.

All have had three or more accidents since the "Yield" SIGNS WENT IN.

Trustees Note Slow Progress on Report

Slowness in completing Arlington Height's comprehensive traffic survey was noted by trustees Tuesday at a public safety committee meeting.

Trustee Jack Walsh pointed out that the survey, involving quadrant-by-quadrant study of traffic on each street and through each intersection, was started 2½ years ago—and is only half completed.

The survey was to provide a basis for recommending location of "Stop" and "Yield" signs—the subject of Tuesday's committee meeting.

SURVEY OF THE southwest and northwest quadrants was completed some time ago, but data is still not all in on the northeast quadrant—with another quarter of the village still to go.

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson blamed the delay on continuing manpower shortages in the engineering department.

New Parish Stresses Methodist Expansion

"Expansion" and not "competition" is the key to the establishment of the new South Arlington Heights Methodist Church, according to local Methodist churchmen.

The new church, comprised of 60 parishioners led by the Rev. William Miller, has been holding Sunday services at Dunton School, 1200 S. Dunton Ave., since the first week in June.

"Attendance has exceeded even our fondest hopes," Miller said as he noted that the church has yet to have fewer than 40 present for services.

SPEAKING OF THE need for an additional Methodist church, Dr. Amos A. Thornburg, pastor of the First Methodist Church, 1903 E. Euclid St., pointed out that his parish now has over 3,000 members. It is so large, he said, that he will be conducting three services each Sunday beginning this fall.

The new church might be looked upon as an outgrowth of the older parish. Much of its support is coming from a group of First Methodist Church members who have taken special memberships in it.

A person taking a special membership is in reality taking a one-year leave of absence from his own church to support the new church. The special members, along with new members, have made up the parish of the new church.

The Rev. Mr. Miller commented on the fact that most of his parishioners had been Methodists before coming to the new church.

"We are starting a Methodist church with Methodist people," he said, "and for us, this was the best way."

HE EXPLAINED that it was "the best way" because the problem of educating the congregation in the government and traditions of Methodism had not been added to the many difficulties encountered in forming a new church.

The Rev. Mr. Miller spoke enthusiastically of his hopes and plans for the new church. He said he feels that a new parish was much more amenable to experimentation than were some of the more firmly established churches.

Regarding experimentation, he said that he had had a guitarist play during the children's portion of the service one Sunday. If the congregation were agreeable to the ideas, he said, he would like to try some other new approaches to religious services.

The new minister was reluctant to emphasize the congregation's need for a church building.

HE SAID THE church had purchased 4.8 acres of land on Golf Road just west of Arlington Heights Road in 1961. At that time, the Church Federation of Chicago had designated that area for Methodist Church construction. This land will be the eventual site of the church building.

However, the Rev. Mr. Miller said he did not want construction of a building to become the sole goal of the congregation.

"We're hoping," he said, "that a building can come as a result of our work."

He added that no plans for a building had yet been made.

The name "South Arlington Heights Methodist Church" is a temporary name. The church's official name will be decided upon before October 9. At that time, the church will be formally incorporated.

THE CHURCH is holding no Sunday school classes this summer. The Rev. Mr. Miller said he has incorporated a children's program into the regular Sunday services and has stressed family worship more than anything else.

In the fall, however, Sunday school classes will begin.

The Rev. Mr. Miller, his wife, Shirley, and three children, Eric, Anita and DeAnne, live in the church's parsonage, 1406 S. Evergreen Ave. They have been in Arlington Heights since January.

The new minister is a graduate of Dakota Wesleyan University, Mitchell, S. D., and did his graduate work at Wesley Theological Seminary in Washington, D. C.

Rain Key to Work On Haddow Sewer

Men began work Wednesday to rapair the faulty sanitary sewer system in the 1200 block of S. Haddow.

"If it stops raining long enough today (Wednesday), it will be cleared up today," said Joseph C. Terzo, a superintendent from the Pine Construction Co. "If not," he added, "it will be repaired whenever it stops raining."

TERZO SAID the problem actually was minor.

The Pine Construction Co. built th sewer system serving the Haddow Street residents under a permit issued in 1960. The 1960 permit stipulated that the company would be responsible for the maintenance of the sewer system until that responsibility was assumed by a utility or another organization.

Frank Dalton, chief engineer of the Metropolitan Sanitary District, said a telegram was sent to the construction company Monday to remind it of its commitment.

The telegram, Dalton said, notified the company that its failure to comply with the 1960 agreement could lead to a fine of $100 per day for each day after July 28 in which the work was not done.

THE SEWAGE problem is not a new one for the Haddow Street residents. It involves the 20 homes that are served by the sanitary district's interceptor sewer at Central Road and Douglas Ave. The homes are in Pinehurst, an unincorporated area.

Area residents complained of similar sewage flooding in March. (A

Accident Prone Corners Reported

Six multiple-accident intersections have been pinpointed for Arlington Heights trustees in a report of "Yield" marked corners.

Probably themost dangerous, Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson told a Tuesday meeting of the public safety committee, is the Ridge-Park intersections.

With traffic on Ridge given the right of way, the intersection was the scene of six accidents since December, 1964.

The Prindle and Miner intersection had a higher number of accidents—seven—but only two the end of 1964.

HANSON TOLD the trustees' committee, asked to review the general subject of "Yield" signs—considered a traffic hazard themselves by some trustees—that he would recommend that Park at Ridge be marked for a "stop" instead.

The public safety committee, headed by Jack Walsh, reaffirmed its general support of the policy of placing yield signs at corners as recommended by the engineering department.

They asked Hanson to review his recommendations for "Yield" markers at seven intersections brought before trustees July 18 and referred by them to committee.

Walsh noted that the "Yield" recommendations are based on traffic count alone and do not take into account other circumstances such as poor visibility.

"YIELD" recommendations to be reviewed include: South to yeidl for Dunton, Dwyer to yield for Grove, Evergreen to yield for Fremont, Highland to yield for South, Fremont to yield for Vail, St. James to yield for Vail, and Grove to yield for Gibbons.

Hanson told trustees he would probably drop his recommendation for both South Street of these have occurred since markers.

Also to be reviewed before the revised recommendations go again to trustees in ordinance form include the "Yield" markings for Hawthorne at Belmont, Olive at Dunton, Dwyer at Sigwalt and Mitchell at Sigwalt.

All have had three or more accidents since the "Yield" SIGNS WENT IN.

The Les Schranks, 908 N. Ridge, held a double celebration for their offspring on July 15 at the Martinique Restaurant in Evergreen Park. It was Lee's 21st and Jan's 16th birthday. Joining the family for the occasion was Lee's fiancee, Doris Reno.

Home after two weeks on the road are the Robert Buechners, 1012 N. Fernandez. Their itinerary included two days at Grand Teton National Park, two days at Yellowstone National Park, a day on a dude ranch, where the boys did some horseback riding, and some sightseeing in the Black Hills and Badlands in South Dakota, Billings, Mont. and the Twin Cities in Minnesota.

THE CURTIS Haines, 716 N. Ridge, are enjoying a visit with Flora's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Heelan. They are residents of Sun City, Ariz., and will be here for a month.

The John Herrmanns, 910 N. Illinois, went Sante Fe all the way on June 27 when they traveled to Los Angeles for a stay at the home of her father and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. LaDouceur. Their sightseeing included Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm, Ocean Park, Marineland and various beaches. They were accompanied on their trip to Marineland by friends from Hawthorn, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. George Warwick. Marie on the Montreal River for a week doing some fishing three weeks ago. After a week at home, Richard and Karen took off for Potowatomie State Park in Door County, Wis., the week end of July 16 to do some fishing, swimming and boating. They were joined by Karen's cousin, Donna Rembowski, and Richard's brother-in-law, Leo Rembowski.

The Richard Schumann family of 833 N. Princeton spent the July 16 weekend at a cottage in Waupaca, Wis. Besides relaxing, they did some fishing and swimming.

The Gary Entwhistle family is together again at 928 N. Ridge now that Joanne and the children managed to get home from California. They all flew there to visit their families, with Gary returning after 10 days and Joanne staying on for a longer visit. Her visit was extended, courtesy of the air line strike, but she enjoyed herself visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Slinkman, and Gary's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Entwhistle, both of Anaheim. Whhen she did return home she brought her sister, Sherri, with her to be their guest for the rest of the summer.

After being stationed in Germany for two years, the Fred Snells' son, Lt. Gary Snell, and his wife returned home to resume civilian status. The Snells live at 1511 W. Oakton.

After five days of sightseeing in San Francisco, they went to Carmel for a few days and then to Yosemite Park, where they did a little hiking.

The house guest of Bonnie and Bart Stull at 833 N. Yale is Bonnie's cousin, Debbie Leischsenring. She arrived from Amana, Iowa, the week of the 17th for a two-week stay.

From there, together with two of Kim's cousins, they flew to Los Angeles for a three and one half week vacation, compliments of their grandmother. Besides visiting other relatives, Mrs. Burham took them on trips to Catalina Island, Marineland, Disneyland and Knott's Berry Farm. Their transportation home was provided by Dick's brother, Bob, and his wife, Tish, who had driven there for a vacation.

A SHORT three day drive along the Mississippi was taken by the David Mills family of 814 N. Kennicott on July 19. Stops included Galena, for a look at Grant's home; Prairie du Chien, the town that time passed by; and Winona, Minn.

'Born Free' On Screen At Golf Mill

Billed as "perfect family entertainment," the screen version of "Born Free," the story of Elsa the lioness by Joy Adamson, begins tomorrow (Friday) at the Golf-Mill Theatre.

The film possesses not only the exhilaration, humor and suspense of the best selling story but also the grandeur, beauty and loneliness of the African lands where lions are born free.

TOLD IN Panavision and Technicolor, "Born Free" reveals the life of a young couple who lived with a lion for eight months and then have to train her to return to the jungle when she becomes too large to be a pet any longer. After a while, Elsa returns to her human family and proudly displays three young cubs. Then the couple realize the lioness is free and can survive in the jungle.

The picture was filmed in Kenya.

YOU PAY YOUR MONEY

by ED LANDWEHR

When you buy a bag of groceries or have the family car repaired, you have a pretty good idea about the price and value received. But, most often it isn't that way with television.

The greater number of people understand little or nothing about TV. They just pay the bill and hope they got their money's worth.

This is one of the reasons that LANDWEHR TV, 218 N. Dunton, Arlington Heights, itemizes your service bill and explains the servicing details. Our customers get the assurance that they will be satisfied. And, if you are going to be a new customer, you'll particularly notice that we give you all the understandable details. Phone CLearbrook 5-0700 next time and see the difference.

Ridge Park—Sherwood

FROM RIDGE PARK

Guests for the summer at the Mike Pighini home at 943 N. Kennicott are Mary's nieces, Adriane and Doriane Wiser of Montvale, N.J. To celebrate their fifth wedding anniversary, Mike and Mary served coffee and cake to some of their neighbors, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Benedix, Mr. and Mrs. Gary Baker and Mrs. Mary Anderson.

A family celebration was held July 14 in honor of their son, Ricky's, first birthday. July 17 a larger party was held at a picnic in Bellwood Memorial Park. Guests included his great-grandmother, his grandparents, great-aunts and aunts and uncles.

The Les Schranks, 908 N. Ridge, held a double celebration for their offspring on July 15 at the Martinique Restaurant in Evergreen Park. It was Lee's 21st and Jan's 16th birthday. Joining the family for the occasion was Lee's fiancee, Doris Reno.

Home after two weeks on the road are the Robert Buechners, 1012 N. Fernandez. Their itinerary included two days at Grand Teton National Park, two days at Yellowstone National Park, a day on a dude ranch, where the boys did some horseback riding, and some sightseeing in the Black Hills and Badlands in South Dakota, Billings, Mont. and the Twin Cities in Minnesota.

THE CURTIS Haines, 716 N. Ridge, are enjoying a visit with Flora's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Heelan. They are residents of Sun City, Ariz., and will be here for a month.

The John Herrmanns, 910 N. Illinois, went Sante Fe all the way on June 27 when they traveled to Los Angeles for a stay at the home of her father and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Robt. LaDouceur. Their sightseeing included Disneyland, Knott's Berry Farm, Ocean Park, Marineland and various beaches. They were accompanied on their trip to Marineland by friends from Hawthorn, Calif., Mr. and Mrs. George Warwick. Other stops included a couple of days at Santa Ana with June's friends, Mr. and Mrs. Jim McCaffery, and former residents of 911 N. Illinois, the Richard Croaks, now of Woodland Hills, Calif.

Members of the Richard Platt family, 806 N. Kennicott, have been on the go lately. Richard and Terrence were 90 miles north of Sault Ste. Marie on the Montreal River for a week doing some fishing three weeks ago. After a week at home, Richard and Karen took off for Potowatomie State Park in Door County, Wis., the week end of July 16 to do some fishing, swimming and boating. They were joined by Karen's cousin, Donna Rembowski, and Richard's brother-in-law, Leo Rembowski.

The Richard Schumann family of 833 N. Princeton spent the July 16 weekend at a cottage in Waupaca, Wis. Besides relaxing, they did some fishing and swimming.

The Gary Entwhistle family is together again at 928 N. Ridge now that Joanne and the children managed to get home from California. They all flew there to visit their families, with Gary returning after 10 days and Joanne staying on for a longer visit. Her visit was extended, courtesy of the air line strike, but she enjoyed herself visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Orville Slinkman, and Gary's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harold Entwhistle, both of Anaheim. Whhen she did return home she brought her sister, Sherri, with her to be their guest for the rest of the summer.

After being stationed in Germany for two years, the Fred Snells' son, Lt. Gary Snell, and his wife returned home to resume civilian status. The Snells live at 1511 W. Oakton.

JoANNE KIECA and her family, the Frank Kiecas, enjoyed smorgasbord at the Sweden House on July 21 to celebrate her birthday. When they returned home Barb made a baked Alaska to show JoAnne and some of her neighborhood friends how it was done.

On July 17 the Elmer Carlsons of 1711 W. Oakton drove to Grand Rapids, Mich., to visit their son, Richard, who is working on the Grand Rapids Press. From there they went on to Muskegon and then back home through Holland.

Home after ten days in California are the John Mowatts of 1002 N. Patton. Luckily they had tickets on the right airlines and so experienced no transportation trouble. After five days of sightseeing in San Francisco, they went to Carmel for a few days and then to Yosemite Park, where they did a little hiking.

The house guest of Bonnie and Bart Stull at 833 N. Yale is Bonnie's cousin, Debbie Leischsenring. She arrived from Amana, Iowa, the week of the 17th for a two-week stay.

On July 21 the Stulls attended the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors golf outing, followed by a Polynesian dinner dance, at Elmhurst Country Club.

THE FRED Sullivans of 928 N. Kaspar are enjoying a visit with Gladys' mother, Mrs. Minniear, who is here from Danville, Ill., for two weeks. On July 24 they drove to Waukesha, Wis. to do some visiting.

The Len Sundquist family, 804 N. Fernandez, went to Starved Rock State Park on July 21 to spend two days taking in the sights.

It was old home week at Northwest Community Hospital last week for four Ridge Parkers, three of them from the same block. Mary Vetter of 813 N. Patton, Ronnie Lanzon of 814 N. Patton, Edith Terry of 732 N. Patton and Mary Louise Burkhardt of 941 N. Ridge were temporary residents, but are all home again.

Vicki and James Ungaro and their baby are keeping the home fires burning at 824 N. Fernandez, along with John, while the elder Ungaros are down in Panama City, Fla., with the rest of their offspring. They left July 15 to spend a week and a half visiting Vicki's mother, Mrs. Crawford Robinson.

Kim Burham, the daughter of the Richard Burhams, 1001 N. Princeton, flew to Des Moines, where she was met by her grandmother, Mrs. Florence Burham. From there, together with two of Kim's cousins, they flew to Los Angeles for a three and one half week vacation, compliments of their grandmother. Besides visiting other relatives, Mrs. Burham took them on trips to Catalina Island, Marineland, Disneyland and Knott's Berry Farm. Their transportation home was provided by Dick's brother, Bob, and his wife, Tish, who had driven there for a vacation.

A SHORT three day drive along the Mississippi was taken by the David Mills family of 814 N. Kennicott on July 19. Stops included Galena, for a look at Grant's home; Prairie du Chien, the town that time passed by; and Winona, Minn.

The Roy Splitt family returned July 23 from a trip to their home-away-from-home at a resort in Berrien Springs, Mich. It has been an annual event for the past eleven years for them and three other families who have known each other since childhood. Indulging in the summer activities with the Splitts were the Tom Turk family of Chicago, the Ted DePalma family of Roselle and Velda's brother's family, the Tony Wagners, also of Roselle.

A quiet family party was held July 24 at 803 N. Kennicott, the home of the Joseph Urbanowicz family, in honor of Joey's tenth birthday. The evening before they also celebrated by attending St. James Holy Name Society annual barbeque.

Some other Ridge Parkers who joined in the fun at St. James included Mrs. Claire Bakowski, 716 N. Kennicott; the Arthur Hughes, 647 N. Kaspar; the Richard Lanzons, 814 N. Patton; the James Ringels, 722 N. Ridge; the George Wojtkiewiczes, 920 N. Ridge; the Norman Walls, 836 N. Ridge; the Robert Waymans, 924 N. Ridge; the Jack Furlongs, 1003 N. Ridge; the Eugene Doyles, 831 N. Kaspar; the Joseph Dunnes, 106 N. Illinois; and the Edward Koois, 904 N. Kaspar.

Lucky Marty Kooi had left when his name was called, but he will still get his portable television set, as will Francis Bichl Jr. of 1014 N. Patton, who also won a portable television.

924 N. Ridge was the scene of a double birthday celebration on July 22. The Robert Waymans' son, David, turned 10 on July 4 and Bobby was 9 on the 23rd. Enjoying hot dogs and hamburgers with the birthday boys were Corky Mirs, Jason Slezak and Mary Alice, and Billy, Jimmy and Geebee Wojtkiewicz.

Gone from Ridge Park are the Edward Ackleys, formerly of 1022 N. Yale, who are now living in Palatine.

Leaving Ridge Park on August 1 are the Thomas Birds of 725 N. Fernandez. Their new address in Arlngton Heights will be 444 S. Evergreen.

Newcomers to Ridge Park are Althea and Walter Schuler Jr. and their children, Russell, 2, Dawn Ellen, 1, and Todd, one month, now living at 926 N. Kennicott. Walter is with Buckeridge Door Co., in the service end of the business. The Schulers are members of St. Peter's Lutheran Church.

Richard and Donna Harris, now of 912 N. Salem, moved here from Des Plaines. Richard is a market research director with Symons Manufacturing Co. in Des Plaines.

From Indianapolis, Ind., to 930 N. Kennicott came Milly and Richard Swisher. Their offspring number five and are as follows; Ricky, 12; Janet, 10; the twins, Jimmy and Diane, 9; and Caren, 7. Richard is a hard board specialist with U. S. Plywood.

FROM SHERWOOD

The Roger Frocks, 1115 N. Patton, sold their house the Fourth of July weekend and took a trip east to do some house hunting, returning home on July 20. They will be leaving here around Aug. 10 and, before settling down in their new home in Westport, Conn., will spend a month visiting Roger's relatives near Hanover, Pa. and in Westminster, Md.

In the East they visited Niagara Falls, Boston and New Jersey. On their return trip they were accompanied by Roger's cousin, Mrs. John Bush, and her two children, Wesley and Randy, of Westminster, Md. They will visit here for about three weeks until the Frocks leave, then will drive back east together.

Inner City Kids Take a Look at Suburbs

BY NANCY BENCO
Staff Writer

Eight area suburban families are making their homes a "friendly town" for children from the inner city during July and August.

The experience is as "eye-opening" to the suburbanites as it is to the young visitors from Chicago.

"The parents must be wonderful people to make them survive in the city," said Mrs. William B. Wood, 242 Milan Lane, Hoffman Estates. Her guest is eight-year old Pam Green from South Chicago.

"When Gregory said, 'Why do you all have such a big house for so few people?' we felt quite humbled," commented Mrs. Don Evenson, 440 S. Dale Ave., Arlington Heights. Six-year old Gregory Hall comes from the riot-torn west side area.

Mrs. Josiah S. Turner, 242 Milan Lane, Hoffman Estates, said:

"STRANGENESS breeds fear — and this is what we want to avoid in the thinking of our children." Her guest is nine-year-old Jonathan Lee, from the near north side of Chicago.

The two - week "Friendly Town" visitations are arranged by the Chicago Missionary Society and local churches. The Countryside Unitarian Universalist Fellowship in Palatine and St. John United Church of Christ in Arlington Heights are the participating churches in the area.

While the families are learning more about inner-city life, the youngsters are having a heyday with bicycles, pets and swimming pools in suburban neighborhoods.

Energetic Jonathan is "mad about the racer bike," said Mrs. Turner.

Jonathan entertains the neighborhood children with his professional-like singing. He doesn't giggle or become bashful like the other kids when he's singing, said Mrs. Turner.

THEN JONATHAN went into a finger-snapping, foot-tapping version of a popular song.

Down the street, Pam Green is visiting with the Woods family. A well-mannered, mature girl, Pam helps to settle spats between the younger children, according to Mrs. Woods.

SWINGING TO THE TREES and perched on top of the sliding board are Pam Green and Jonathan Lee, two youngsters from the city. Both are visiting families from the same neighborhood in Hoffman Estates. The two-week city-to-suburb visitation program is called "Friendly Town" and is sponsored by the Chicago City Missionary Society. (Staff photo)

"She even made us a delicious tuna salad one evening," Mrs. Woods said.

In Arlington Heights, little Gregory Hall is learning to ride a two-wheeler bicycle. And, according to Mrs. Evenson, he has made great friends with a brown mallard duck, a pet in the Evenson household. "He talks with the duck and says the duck talks back to him," Mrs. Evenson noted.

The Friendly Town program is divided into three two-week sessions: July 16 to 30; July 23 to August 6, and August 6 to 20.

OTHER FAMILIES participating in the program are: the Robert Chaney family, 406 W. Kirchoff Road, Arlington Heights; the Roger Bardwell family, 2929 Briar Drive, Arlington Heights; the Gerhardt Wallies family, 112 N. Russell, Mount Prospect; the Paul Reynolds family, 2512 Cedar Glen Drive, Arlington Heights; and the Neil Bennett family, 544 White Pine Road, Buffalo Grove.

The families pick up the children at Casa Central, a family service center at 40 N. Ashland. They return the child to his home, at that time, meeting the parents.

This summer, Friendly Town will entertain nearly twice as many youngsters as last year and will enroll nearly a thousand families in eight states. Friendly Towns extend as far as Montana, where 100 Chicago children will visit this summer.

All children receive a complete medical examination before qualifying for Friendly Town visits, and the Chicago City Missionary Society provides a sickness and accident policy on each child.

THE HOST families are responsible for the maintenance and entertainment of the child while he is visiting.

The families interviewed expressed a concern with the small number of families participating.

"PEOPLE JUST don't know about the program, and that's a reason for the small participation," said Mrs. Woods.

Commenting on the program as a whole, Mrs. Turner said, "This is a great way, without imposing on the neighbors, to do something for the community."

Clairol Carousel Visitors Pleased

By MAGGIE IRWIN

"That was great!" "I've gotten good ideas on how to wear my hair and what shade of makeup to use." "Wasn't it fun seeing yourself as a blonde, or redhead, or brunette?"

Such are the comments that are heard as the ladies come out of the Clairol Carousel. Everyone seemed pleased, and why not; they had just received expert guidance in ways to make themselves more attractive.

How many times have you wished you could change the color of your hair but didn't have the nerve to do so because you thought the color you like would not look good on you.

You still have time to get a pretty good idea of what you would look like with different color hair, by going through the Clairol Color Carousel. The Carousel will be on the Randhurst mall until Saturday, July 30, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. It's fun going through, and who knows, it may open up a whole new world for you.

IF YOU ARE going south this fall or winter and need additional clothing, now is a good time to purchase clothes suitable to that climate and best of all, there are many bargains to be found in the sales most Randhurst stores are having.

There are signs that fall is approaching. . .just take a look in the store windows at Randhurst. I don't know if you feel the way I do,but I'm tired of the hot weather and the limp look and am looking forward to the change of the season and the new clothes it brings. Our stores are well stocked with beautiful new fall merchandise. . .need I say more?

We urge you and your family to come to Randhurst to see the Meister Brau Westphalian Stallion Hitch. These beautifully groomed horses will be at Randhurst for one day only for just a few hours, from noon until 4 p.m., Friday, July 29, and as a souvenir of your visit, you will be given a picture of these powerful horses. If your children ask you why the horses are so big, have such broad backs and large hoofs, you can tell them this interesting bit of information, that this breed of horse was used in carrying knights of armor to battle.

Randhurst Cinema is continuing thier first anniversary celebration by showing "Cast a Giant Shadow," for two weks, starting July 29, through August 11. For further information, please call 392-9393.

OTHER FAMILIES participating in the program are: the Robert Chaney family, 406 W. Kirchoff Road, Arlington Heights; the Roger Bardwell family, 2929 Briar Drive, Arlington Heights; the Gerhardt Wallies family, 112 N. Russell, Mount Prospect; the Paul Reynolds family, 2512 Cedar Glen Drive, Arlington Heights; and the Neil Bennett family, 544 White Pine Road, Buffalo Grove.

The families pick up the children at Casa Central, a family service center at 40 N. Ashland. They return the child to his home, at that time, meeting the parents.

This summer, Friendly Town will entertain nearly twice as many youngsters as last year and will enroll nearly a thousand families in eight states. Friendly Towns extend as far as Montana, where 100 Chicago children will visit this summer.

All children receive a complete medical examination before qualifying for Friendly Town visits, and the Chicago City Missionary Society provides a sickness and accident policy on each child.

THE HOST families are responsible for the maintenance and entertainment of the child while he is visiting.

The families interviewed expressed a concern with the small number of families participating.

"PEOPLE JUST don't know about the program, and that's a reason for the small participation," said Mrs. Woods.

Commenting on the program as a whole, Mrs. Turner said, "This is a great way, without imposing on the neighbors, to do something for the community."

Clairol Carousel Visitors Pleased

By MAGGIE IRWIN

"That was great!" "I've gotten good ideas on how to wear my hair and what shade of makeup to use." "Wasn't it fun seeing yourself as a blonde, or redhead, or brunette?"

Such are the comments that are heard as the ladies come out of the Clairol Carousel. Everyone seemed pleased, and why not; they had just received expert guidance in ways to make themselves more attractive.

How many times have you wished you could change the color of your hair but didn't have the nerve to do so because you thought the color you like would not look good on you.

You still have time to get a pretty good idea of what you would look like with different color hair, by going through the Clairol Color Carousel. The Carousel will be on the Randhurst mall until Saturday, July 30, from 9:30 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. It's fun going through, and who knows, it may open up a whole new world for you.

IF YOU ARE going south this fall or winter and need additional clothing, now is a good time to purchase clothes suitable to that climate and best of all, there are many bargains to be found in the sales most Randhurst stores are having.

There are signs that fall is approaching. . .just take a look in the store windows at Randhurst. I don't know if you feel the way I do,but I'm tired of the hot weather and the limp look and am looking forward to the change of the season and the new clothes it brings. Our stores are well stocked with beautiful new fall merchandise. . .need I say more?

We urge you and your family to come to Randhurst to see the Meister Brau Westphalian Stallion Hitch. These beautifully groomed horses will be at Randhurst for one day only for just a few hours, from noon until 4 p.m., Friday, July 29, and as a souvenir of your visit, you will be given a picture of these powerful horses. If your children ask you why the horses are so big, have such broad backs and large hoofs, you can tell them this interesting bit of information, that this breed of horse was used in carrying knights of armor to battle.

Randhurst Cinema is continuing thier first anniversary celebration by showing "Cast a Giant Shadow," for two weks, starting July 29, through August 11. For further information, please call 392-9393.

Strike Puts Crimp in Plans of Vacationers

Sidelights Of Arlington Heights

Arlington Heights, Scarsdale & Estates, Stonegate

Natalie Fairhead 392-5654 — Mary O'Leary CL 9-3827

This week's activities in the Sidelights area consists mostly of "welcome homes" to wandering vacationers.

However, many would-be travelers had a damper put on their plans by the air lines strike, which left some unfortunates eager to take off for distant places, but lacking the means to get there. Maybe with pressure from the President, the strike will be halted and Arlington Heights vacationers can resume their journeys as planned.

This writer's family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Martin O'Leary and their seven children (Mary, Kathy, Vince, Betty, Carol, Sheila, and Mike) returned last weekend from a seven-day motor trip. The general route included the states of Illinois (starting point), Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio (again), Indiana (likewise), and finally, back home in Prospect Heights. High points of the trip were Valley Forge, seaside swimming, Williamsburg, Jamestown, the Allegheny Mountains, seeing the wild ponies at Chincoteague, and swimming in the motel pools. This was the fourth such trip the O'Leary family has made, and, since all nine have managed to enjoy themselves and emerge in one piece each time, next summer's schedule will probably include plans for a fifth trip.

The Orient called and Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Erickson, 916 E. Euclid, along with 673 other Shriners, answered. The group, originating from Medinah Temple, took off from O'Hare field aboard a Northwest Airlnes plane and set out for Japan. A similar group also took off for the same destination from San Francisco. In the course of their great circle route, they stopped in Anchorage, Alaska. Both groups eventually assembled in Tokyo and Hong Kong for the Shriner convention. Those attending succeeded in completely filling the Tokyo Hilton and the Hong Kong Hilton for the two week duration of the convention.

ALL, HOWEVER, was not business for the Ericksons, who were among those staying at the Tokyo Hilton. Tourist attractions, "musts" for visitors to Japan, kept them busy in those "in-between times." They visited Shinto temples, Buddhist shrines, and marvelled at the cities of sampans, houseboats which are only afloat during high tide — left stuck in the mud during ebb tide.

During their visit, they formed a few opinions of the people in Japan and Hong Kong — the Japanese seemed friendly, clean, and courteous, whereas in Hong Kong they observed more ignorance and greed, perhaps due to the fact that education is not free and fewer people, as a result, have had formal schooling. One particular "breed" of Chinese, the huccas, dress in black and smoke opium pipes (men and women alike). So high is the incidence of dope addiction that most of the men are periodically taken to the prison compound hospital where officials try to break them of their habit.

The Ericksons brought home chopsticks, hoppi coats for their grandchildren, and kimonas with obis as souvenirs from the Orient.

Ah! Jamaica! The tropical island, sun, and sea spelled two weeks of paradise for Mr. and Mrs. Alex Drimba and their two daughters, Laurie and Dawn, of 102 S. Brighton. The Drimbas rented a home in Ocho Rios (eight rivers, all of which empty into the Atlantic Ocean) on a mountainside, complete with its own freshwater pool.

ON JUNE 30, the Drimbas set out for Miami via automobile. While there, they visited Mr. Drimba's folks, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Drimba, and those of Mrs. Drimba, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Riley. From Miami, they flew to Jamaica.

As this was the Drimbas' second trip to Jamaica, they picked up where they had left off last year. In their motor trips around the island, they put 1,000 miles on a rented car that carried them to Kingston, the straw market, a banana plantation, a site where bananas were being loaded onto ships for transport, Dunn River Falls (which they climbed), and an on-location filming site of a sequel to "Our Man Flint." While in Jamaica, the Drimbas met actor Peter Finch, who is building a home there, and found him a very friendly, all-around nice guy.

Last, but by no means least, the entire family spent much time swimming in the ocean (80 to 85 degrees) and in the fresh-water pools below Dunn River Falls (a refreshing 70 degrees).

The Drimbas stopped again in Miami on their return trip and arrived home July 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Cordova, 213 S. Stratford, had guests this past week from Sherman Oaks, Calif. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Shireman and their daughter, Janet, stopped in Arlington Heights to visit their old friends, the Cordovas, for a day or two, as part of a cross-country tour they are making with family and trailer.

The Cordovas' daughter, Coreen, flew to Cedar Rapids, Ia., last weekend to visit the family of her sorority sister, Sally Novak (both girls are members of Pi Beta Phi sorority).

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jedd, 108 S. Brighton, just returned from a week in Pittsford, N. Y. While there, they visited Mr. Jedd's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Jedd.

The five Joneses spent two weeks in a rented cabin in Minneapolis, their former home town. Mr. and Mrs. William Jones, 215 S. Stratford Road, made the trip with their three children, Greg, Kathy, and Laura. (A

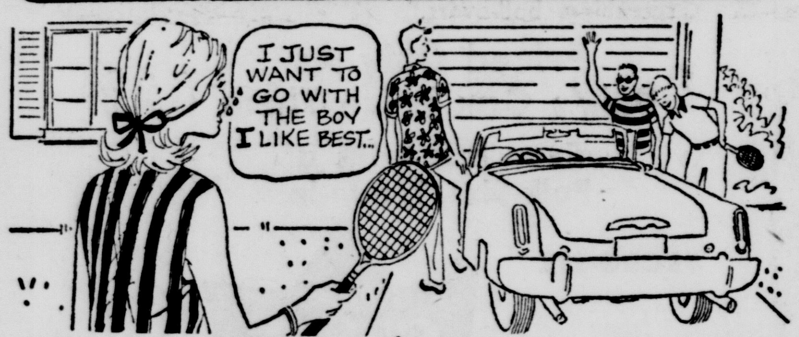
For And About Teenagers



I JUST WANT TO GO WITH THE BOY I LIKE BEST...

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS: "I never dated until I was nearly sixteen. One of my first dates was a very nice boy who was a year or so older than myself. We went steady for a year and I dropped him for a silly boy I had a crush on — who turned out to be a "monster" who always wanted to go parking. I couldn't tell my mother the reason I disliked the second boy, so I continued dating him. The boy with whom I had gone steady asked me for a date and I was going to accept, until mother said "no." I went out with him behind her back. She didn't find out but, if I mention his name, she takes away privileges and tells me I am immature. The first boy does not want to date behind my mother's back. He wants to talk to my parents and ask if we can go steady — but I know it will not do any good. Mother doesn't like him because he is out of school and does not intend to go to college (which I will do). She likes the second boy because he has already been accepted by a college which, incidentally, accepts students with low I Q's. I have given all the other boys a chance. I've dated them all, from the best athlete down to the class drunk. I just want to go with the boy I like best, to finish college, and eventually marry the boy I love."

OUR REPLY: You can tell your mother why you do not like the second boy. You are not doing her (nor yourself) any favors when you continue to date him. You should take your problem to your parents, just as you presented it to this column. No. 1 boy should have a college education, if such is possible but, if he is as you describe him, he is a No. 1 guy.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS. COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE. FRANKFORT, KY.

does your watch have the "Summer Blues"?

Natalie Fairhead

Mary O'Leary

This week's activities in the Sidelights area consists mostly of "welcome homes" to wandering vacationers.

However, many would-be travelers had a damper put on their plans by the air lines strike, which left some unfortunates eager to take off for distant places, but lacking the means to get there. Maybe with pressure from the President, the strike will be halted and Arlington Heights vacationers can resume their journeys as planned.

This writer's family, consisting of Mr. and Mrs. Martin O'Leary and their seven children (Mary, Kathy, Vince, Betty, Carol, Sheila, and Mike) returned last weekend from a seven-day motor trip. The general route included the states of Illinois (starting point), Indiana, Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Kentucky, Ohio (again), Indiana (likewise), and finally, back home in Prospect Heights. High points of the trip were Valley Forge, seaside swimming, Williamsburg, Jamestown, the Allegheny Mountains, seeing the wild ponies at Chincoteague, and swimming in the motel pools. This was the fourth such trip the O'Leary family has made, and, since all nine have managed to enjoy themselves and emerge in one piece each time, next summer's schedule will probably include plans for a fifth trip.

The Orient called and Mr. and Mrs. Gustav Erickson, 916 E. Euclid, along with 673 other Shriners, answered. The group, originating from Medinah Temple, took off from O'Hare field aboard a Northwest Airlnes plane and set out for Japan. A similar group also took off for the same destination from San Francisco. In the course of their great circle route, they stopped in Anchorage, Alaska. Both groups eventually assembled in Tokyo and Hong Kong for the Shriner convention. Those attending succeeded in completely filling the Tokyo Hilton and the Hong Kong Hilton for the two week duration of the convention.

ALL, HOWEVER, was not business for the Ericksons, who were among those staying at the Tokyo Hilton. Tourist attractions, "musts" for visitors to Japan, kept them busy in those "in-between times." They visited Shinto temples, Buddhist shrines, and marvelled at the cities of sampans, houseboats which are only afloat during high tide — left stuck in the mud during ebb tide.

During their visit, they formed a few opinions of the people in Japan and Hong Kong — the Japanese seemed friendly, clean, and courteous, whereas in Hong Kong they observed more ignorance and greed, perhaps due to the fact that education is not free and fewer people, as a result, have had formal schooling. One particular "breed" of Chinese, the huccas, dress in black and smoke opium pipes (men and women alike). So high is the incidence of dope addiction that most of the men are periodically taken to the prison compound hospital where officials try to break them of their habit.

The Ericksons brought home chopsticks, hoppi coats for their grandchildren, and kimonas with obis as souvenirs from the Orient.

Ah! Jamaica! The tropical island, sun, and sea spelled two weeks of paradise for Mr. and Mrs. Alex Drimba and their two daughters, Laurie and Dawn, of 102 S. Brighton. The Drimbas rented a home in Ocho Rios (eight rivers, all of which empty into the Atlantic Ocean) on a mountainside, complete with its own freshwater pool.

ON JUNE 30, the Drimbas set out for Miami via automobile. While there, they visited Mr. Drimba's folks, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Drimba, and those of Mrs. Drimba, Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Riley. From Miami, they flew to Jamaica.

As this was the Drimbas' second trip to Jamaica, they picked up where they had left off last year. In their motor trips around the island, they put 1,000 miles on a rented car that carried them to Kingston, the straw market, a banana plantation, a site where bananas were being loaded onto ships for transport, Dunn River Falls (which they climbed), and an on-location filming site of a sequel to "Our Man Flint." While in Jamaica, the Drimbas met actor Peter Finch, who is building a home there, and found him a very friendly, all-around nice guy.

Last, but by no means least, the entire family spent much time swimming in the ocean (80 to 85 degrees) and in the freshwater pools below Dunn River Falls (a refreshing 70 degrees).

The Drimbas stopped again in Miami on their return trip and arrived home July 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Reuben Cordova, 213 S. Stratford, had guests this past week from Sherman Oaks, Calif. Mr. and Mrs. Donald Shireman and their daughter, Janet, stopped in Arlington Heights to visit their old friends, the Cordovas, for a day or two, as part of a cross-country tour they are making with family and trailer.

The Cordovas' daughter, Coreen, flew to Cedar Rapids, Ia., last weekend to visit the family of her sorority sister, Sally Novak (both girls are members of Pi Beta Phi sorority).

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Jedd, 108 S. Brighton, just returned from a week in Pittsford, N. Y. While there, they visited Mr. Jedd's brother and sister-in-law, Dr. and Mrs. Frank Jedd.

The five Joneses spent two weeks in a rented cabin in Minneapolis, their former home town. Mr. and Mrs. William Jones, 215 S. Stratford Road, made the trip with their three children, Greg, Kathy, and Laura.

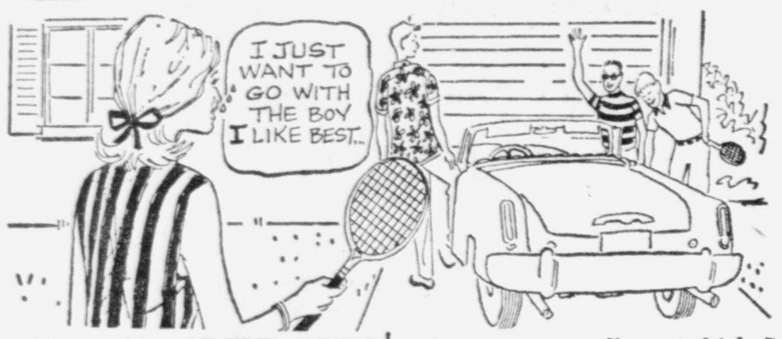
For And About Teenagers



I JUST WANT TO GO WITH THE BOY I LIKE BEST...

FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS: "I never dated until I was nearly sixteen. One of my first dates was a very nice boy who was a year or so older than myself. We went steady for a year and I dropped him for a silly boy I had a crush on — who turned out to be a "monster" who always wanted to go parking. I couldn't tell my mother the reason I disliked the second boy, so I continued dating him. The boy with whom I had gone steady asked me for a date and I was going to accept, until mother said "no." I went out with him behind her back. She didn't find out but, if I mention his name, she takes away privileges and tells me I am immature. The first boy does not want to date behind my mother's back. He wants to talk to my parents and ask if we can go steady — but I know it will not do any good. Mother doesn't like him because he is out of school and does not intend to go to college (which I will do). She likes the second boy because he has already been accepted by a college which, incidentally, accepts students with low I Q's. I have given all the other boys a chance. I've dated them all, from the best athlete down to the class drunk. I just want to go with the boy I like best, to finish college, and eventually marry the boy I love."

OUR REPLY: You can tell your mother why you do not like the second boy. You are not doing her (nor yourself) any favors when you continue to date him. You should take your problem to your parents, just as you presented it to this column. No. 1 boy should have a college education, if such is possible but, if he is as you describe him, he is a No. 1 guy.

If you have a teenage problem you want to discuss, or an observation to make, address your letter to FOR AND ABOUT TEENAGERS. COMMUNITY AND SUBURBAN PRESS SERVICE. FRANKFORT, KY.

HOMECOMING YEAR

TWO SWEDISH GUESTS bid farewell to Arlington Heights Rotary club president Bob Paddock. Ann-Charlotte Hultcrantz and Helena Wadsten presented an entertaining insight into "Sweden Today." They attended a myriad of Rotary-sponsored activities in the Chicago area for the week, including a television interview on the Today show.

Overcome Lack of Money

Swedish Girls Tour U.S. with Rotary Aid

Desire and determination overcame obstacles of a deflated Swedish pocketbook, resulting in a tour of the U.S., Arlington Heights Rotarians were told Thursday of last week.

Speaking were two Swedish girls, fresh from the old country, though their appearance belied the truth of any substance to the "old." Helena Wadsten studies law at the University of Stockholm, and works for Radio Sweden's television branch. She's 23 years of age, and a brunette.

Ann-Charlotte Hultcrantz studies economy at Stockholm School of Business. A blue-eyed blonde, runner-up in a beauty contest a year ago, she just turned 22.

THE GIRLS wanted to see the U.S., but had no money. They determined to "let those with money pay for our trip." Quick meeting with the U. S. Embassy brought suggestion that Rotarians might help, and the girls were on their way.

Other problems were solved including passage on the Swedish-American line, use of a new SAAB automobile while in this country, and gas to go with it. They also acquired six travel outfits each, courtesy of clothing manufacturers, plus a big supply of brochures of Sweden.

Rotarians and Rotary clubs are helping the girls cross the country this summer, with the pair presenting a two-voiced slide presentation on "Sweden Today" before the local Rotary club. Members had invited their wives for the occasion.

THE SLIDES revealed Sweden's cities and suburbs are almost duplicates of the U. S., though skyscrapers aren't as high. "We were going to brag about our tall buildings, then we saw New York."

The girls fielded a host of questions on several topics:

Marriage — "The girls don't get married 'til they're 24 because it takes that long just to find an apartment, and you certainly can't get married without a place in which to live, can you?"

TAXES — "THEY'RE very high in Sweden, almost as much as here. Our sales tax is a flat 10 per cent on everything."

Traditions — "We honor traditions in Sweden with special May pole dances, etc., on special occasions, though life is just like here, except we drive on the left side of the street, though that's going to change this fall."

English — "Youngsters used to start learning how to speak English in sixth grade, now it is taught in first grade, same as Swedish."

Morals — "It is about the same as here, though some of the things you read about happen because of a tax situation whereby two single persons can take a larger tax deduction than one married couple."

Fears of Russia — "We're not afraid of Russia because if they attempted to take over our country, Great Britain and the U. S. would help us, Russia knows this, and so do we."

Return visit — "Oh, we'll be happy to come back and visit you again, as soon as you want us to." (A

The Herald, Aug. 3, 1901

Arlington Heights is no longer a country village but has taken a new lease on life and will soon be in line with other up-to-date young cities. Her progressive citizens are in the ascendancy and "move forward" is their motto. This is the largest town between Woodstock and Chicago, and she will keep in the lead. First-class sewerage and water works systems and electricity are not far away.

San Antonio, Tex., July 26—Four soldiers of the Eighth Illinois Infantry, the "all black" regiment, were wounded when a riotous crowd of 50 or 60 of them were fired on by the provost guard at Fort Sam Houston. The guard fired low and four of the five shots hit marks. All the men wounded were hit in the legs and none was seriously hurt. The Negro soldiers were out on passes.

TWO SWEDISH GUESTS bid farewell to Arlington Heights Rotary club president Bob Paddock. Ann-Charlotte Hultcrantz and Helena Wadsten presented an entertaining insight into "Sweden Today." They attended a myriad of Rotary-sponsored activities in the Chicago area for the week, including a television interview on the Today show.

Overcome Lack of Money

Swedish Girls Tour U.S. with Rotary Aid

Desire and determination overcame obstacles of a deflated Swedish pocketbook, resulting in a tour of the U.S., Arlington Heights Rotarians were told Thursday of last week.

Speaking were two Swedish girls, fresh from the old country, though their appearance belied the truth of any substance to the "old." Helena Wadsten studies law at the University of Stockholm, and works for Radio Sweden's television branch. She's 23 years of age, and a brunette.

Ann-Charlotte Hultcrantz studies economy at Stockholm School of Business. A blue-eyed blonde, runner-up in a beauty contest a year ago, she just turned 22.

THE GIRLS wanted to see the U.S., but had no money. They determined to "let those with money pay for our trip." Quick meeting with the U. S. Embassy brought suggestion that Rotarians might help, and the girls were on their way.

Other problems were solved including passage on the Swedish-American line, use of a new SAAB automobile while in this country, and gas to go with it. They also acquired six travel outfits each, courtesy of clothing manufacturers, plus a big supply of brochures of Sweden.

Rotarians and Rotary clubs are helping the girls cross the country this summer, with the pair presenting a two-voiced slide presentation on "Sweden Today" before the local Rotary club. Members had invited their wives for the occasion.

THE SLIDES revealed Sweden's cities and suburbs are almost duplicates of the U. S., though skyscrapers aren't as high. "We were going to brag about our tall buildings, then we saw New York."

The girls fielded a host of questions on several topics:

Marriage — "The girls don't get married 'til they're 24 because it takes that long just to find an apartment, and you certainly can't get married without a place in which to live, can you?"

TAXES — "THEY'RE very high in Sweden, almost as much as here. Our sales tax is a flat 10 per cent on everything."

Traditions — "We honor traditions in Sweden with special May pole dances, etc., on special occasions, though life is just like here, except we drive on the left side of the street, though that's going to change this fall."

English — "Youngsters used to start learning how to speak English in sixth grade, now it is taught in first grade, same as Swedish."

Morals — "It is about the same as here, though some of the things you read about happen because of a tax situation whereby two single persons can take a larger tax deduction than one married couple."

Fears of Russia — "We're not afraid of Russia because if they attempted to take over our country, Great Britain and the U. S. would help us, Russia knows this, and so do we."

Return visit — "Oh, we'll be happy to come back and visit you again, as soon as you want us to." (A

The Herald, Aug. 3, 1901

Arlington Heights is no longer a country village but has taken a new lease on life and will soon be in line with other up-to-date young cities. Her progressive citizens are in the ascendancy and "move forward" is their motto. This is the largest town between Woodstock and Chicago, and she will keep in the lead. First-class sewerage and water works systems and electricity are not far away.

50 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Herald, July 28, 1916

San Antonio, Tex., July 26—Four soldiers of the Eighth Illinois Infantry, the "all black" regiment, were wounded when a riotous crowd of 50 or 60 of them were fired on by the provost guard at Fort Sam Houston. The guard fired low and four of the five shots hit marks. All the men wounded were hit in the legs and none was seriously hurt. The Negro soldiers were out on passes.

25 YEARS AGO THIS WEEK

The Herald, Aug. 1, 1941

Residents of Arlington Heights and neighboring communities will have the opportunity for a three-day period, starting Friday, to select prior to public offering a half-acre home site in the new Scarsdale Estates which is now being subdivided.

The new property adjoins Scarsdale, is within walking distance of public schools, field house, swimming pool, the churches and the Arlington Heights business district . . .

Association Gives $1000 For Museum

Fund-raising efforts by the Friends of a Museum for Arlington Heights were given a boost this week when the Arlington Heights Federal Savings and Loan Association added its contribution of $1,000.

According to Melvin L. Kurtz, 805 S. Mitchell Ave., treasurer of the group, other contributors are: Daniel Baumann, managing editor of Paddock Publications; Lucile Paddock; The Arlington Day; St. James Catholic Church; The Bank of Arlington Heights; John G. Woods, village president, $100; the Salt Creek Questors; Marjorie Allen, president of the Historical Society of Arlington Heights; Emily Schneberger; C. M. Don't Let Summer's Heat Mask Furnace's Importance

If you're shopping for a home this summer, don't forget to check on the quality of the heating system. Many home buyers gloss over this factor, especially if they're shopping for their first home. The reason is understandable: It's summer time, it's hot, and the heating system is shut down.

However, the plumbing-heating-cooling information bureau points out, the quality of the system is important, not only to the comfort and convenience of the family but to its health as well, Moreover, it represents at least 10 per cent of the home's value and resale value, so it becomes a major financial consideration as well.

Few homeowners can look at a heating system and evaluate it for quality. Will it offer clean, draft-free, noiseless, even heat throughout the house, or will there be cold spots that your family will have to avoid all next winter? If you've picked out a home that you're seriously thinking of buying, it will be worth the small expenditure to call in a qualified heating contractor to look over the heating plant.

The quality and location of the thermostat is something alse the potential home buyer should check. For just a little more money, you can get controls that can be set back at night for cool sleeping and to save on fuel, and which automatically return to a higher setting at a predetermined time in the morning, so that the house is toasty warm by the time the family gets up.

THE THERMOSTAT should never be set near a television set, a lamp or where heat can affect it, so that it will not truly record the heat of the room.

The ultimate in quality is zoned heating. This means that the house is divided into logical areas or zones, each with its own temperature, according to the area's use. Thus bedrooms, or seldom used guest rooms, can be on one zone, bathrooms on another, the active living area on still another, and so on. All the equipment is the same as in a nonzoned system except that each zone has its own thermostat, and there's a valve at the boiler for each zone, actuated by its thermostst.

Another thing the potential home buyer may give serious consideration to is central air conditioning. There's a real boom in summer comfort cooling. There are four ways that central air conditioning can be installed in a hot water-heated home. Your heating-cooling contractor can advise you which one to adopt. All four types can be added any time the homeowner desires, but it's naturally easier to provide for it at the outset, when the home is being built.

40-Week Program Planned

The Northwest Cook County Opportunity Council (Norwesco) doesn't plan to drop the ball when its summer Headstart program for pre-schoolers ends three weeks from now.

Norwesco's Headstart Dir. David Fankhouser is already planning a 40-week school year program to start this fall.

Funding of the program, through the Office of Economic Opportunity, has not yet been asked.

But Fankhouser says, "We have every reason to believe we will be able to operate a 40-week program."

LATE FUNDING OF the summer Headstart program — a typical hazard with federally-financed projects — will make early operation of the school year Headstart program possible.

Fankhouser says he will be able to operate through October on monies allotted under the present $46,000 anti-poverty grant.

The current Norwesco program has been praised by Frederick E. McLendon, executive director of the Cook County Office of Economic Opportunity.

McLendon wrote Ethan Janove, Norwesco chairman, "My staff as well as other individuals, from observations made thus far, think that Mr. David Fankhouser, the director, as well as his entire staff is doing an excellent job."

McLendon's letter added, "The superintendents in your area are to be congratulated for their help and cooperation."

IF CONTINUED AS planned, the northwest suburban program would be one of three Headstart projects operating in suburban Cook County during the coming school year. The other two will be in Evanston and in the Robbins area.

While Norwesco's summer program has been primarily for 4 and 4-year-olds, the school-year program will be for the youngsters ages 3 and 4.

To keep the project going, Fankhouser is already arranging for staff for fall. He plans to add six to eight persons, including a secretary.

Particularly sought are more Spanish-speaking aides and more cooks for the lunch-and-breakfast program, used both to improve the children's nutrition and as a teaching tool.

PERSONS interested should contact the Norwesco Headstart office at Elk Grove. The number is 439-4495. (B10

$30,000 Revenue Loss

Sheriff's Investigation Reveals Truck Violations

Acting Cook County Sheriff Edmund J. Kucharski announced last week that an investigation of Illinois trucking violations during the previous week revealed a loss in revenue to the State of Illinois of more than $30,000.

"Of the 250 trucks stopped last week by sheriff's police, 65 per cent were found to be operating illegally," Kucharski stated. "In some cases, the same driver, using the same truck was picked up for the same violation for which he was arrested previously."

Truck "checks" — set up in both suburban Cook County and parts of Chicago — were reinstituted by the sheriff's police as a result of complaints by labor unions and trucking associations.

THE COMPLAINTS emphasized that both Illinois and out-of-state trucking firms were continuing to operate illegally, even after the May-June crackdown which netted a total of 31 offenders.

Kucharski pointed out that the $30,000 loss estimate was based on the department's arrest statistics. The statistics support preliminary disclosures of the Better Government Association which estimate the total loss of revenue to Illinois at more than $1 million a year, he said.

"The drivers are merely the fall guys for unscrupulous trucking outfits that pile violation upon villation," Kucharski said.

"It's the company that buys the license—schedules the pick-ups and controls the weight load for the vehicles it operates. It should also be the company that is investigated when flagrant and repeated violations appear on their record.

"OUR ARESTS have just scratched the surface in this type of fraud. I am sure that in checking closely, the records of these repeater companies will uncover a multitude of violations — violations which will run into the millions in both lost revenues and fines.

"However, responsibility for checking the books and records rests with the secretary of state's office and the Illinois Commerce Commission. They have both the manpower and the legal means at their disposal to handle such an operation.

"I have directed that all information secured by our department during last week's operation be turned over to the secretary of state's office for further action. In addition, we will continue to spot check trucks at periodic intervals to make sure these flagrant violators either pay up or go to jail."

THE FINAL breakdown on the week's arrest statistics show 39 truckers arrested for failure to display proper Illinois tractor identification; 10 for overweight on axel; nine for overweight on license — the average of which was 25,000 pounds over maximum; and four arrests for driving on a tax-mileage stamp with mileage meter (odometer) disconnected.

Other arrests included: eight for driving without or with the wrong type of chauffeur's license; 10 for operating a truck without a state plate; seven for misuse of state plates; two for failure to display state reciprocity plate; one for no license on trailer; one for operating unsafe equipment; one for failure to carry proper safety equipment; one for not displaying valid safety sticker; and one for improper and incorrect information on vehicle.

In addition to arrests made during the week by Cook County sheriff's men, complete reports were made on 49 other truckers operating in Illinois with out-of-state license plates.

"There is some question as to the legality of the sheriff's office handling matters which are quasi-interstate in nature," Kucharski said.

"AS A RESULT, the reports were made on those vehicles operating in Illinois with out-of-state plates to provide the proper agency with basic preliminary information necessary to launch a full-scale investigation in this mater."

Detail copies of the week's activities were also sent to the state's attorney's offices in both Cook and DuPage counties for possible use in criminal actions taken against licensing violators. (B10

$30,000 Revenue Loss

Sheriff's Investigation Reveals Truck Violations

Acting Cook County Sheriff Edmund J. Kucharski announced last week that an investigation of Illinois trucking violations during the previous week revealed a loss in revenue to the State of Illinois of more than $30,000.

"Of the 250 trucks stopped last week by sheriff's police, 65 per cent were found to be operating illegally," Kucharski stated. "In some cases, the same driver, using the same truck was picked up for the same violation for which he was arrested previously."

Truck "checks" — set up in both suburban Cook County and parts of Chicago — were reinstituted by the sheriff's police as a result of complaints by labor unions and trucking associations.

Houseguest in the East Olive Street home of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Epsky for the past month was his mother, Mrs. William Epsky of Browerville, Minnesota. During her stay grandmother Epsky joined the family for shopping trips and visiting friends and relatives in Chicago. A train trip home last Wednesday ended her visit.

July proved to be a month of travel for members of the Len Brune family of North Dryden Avenue. Mr. and Mrs. B., son Paul and daughters Beth and Joyce motored to West Point, Ia., for a week's visit with grandmother, Mrs. G. B. Snaadt, and other relatives nearby. Their return in mid-July was in time to greet Mr. and Mrs. Richard McGuckin, and their daughters, Denise and Michelle of Akron, Ohio, who visited for two days while on vacation in Illinois.

On Tuesday of last week, daughter Sue and a friend, Miss Jill Swanson, began their motor trip to Iowa for a week's vacation visit with relatives in Fairfield and West Point. Last week-end, son Jeff and Dennis Zitzer, a friend and former neighbor, headed for Akron, Ohio, and a two-day visit with aunt, Miss Adelaide Brune, and friends in the area.

RETURNING TO their North Beverly Lane home on Wednesday of last week, the George Roby family ended a three-day motor trip to Lafayette, Ind., where they visited former neighbors, the John Mundells. The family also spent one day touring the University of Kentucky campus at Lexington, where daughter Arlene will attend.

A two-week vacation in the St. Louis area ended last Friday for Jeff Reed of North Hickory Avenue, who went along on a business trip with his dad. Touring Silver Dollar Mine, sightseeing, swimming and relaxing at Table Rock Lake were fitted into the schedule.

More vacation returnees last Thursday evening were the Leslie Shannons of North Hickory Avenue. While their mobile home in northern Wisconsin's Springstead area was headquarters for most of the three wek vacation, they spent two days as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Warren Sutter at Lac Court d'Oreilles, near Hayward, and another two days in Michigan's upper peninsula visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Dave Vivian in their Lake Emily summer home.

ROUND ROBIN bridge for Hickory Meadows couples ended early in July, closing the current season. High scorers for the year were Mr. and Mrs. J. DeLuca with 42,610; Mr. and Mrs. A. Pavlovics with 40,140 and Mr. and Mrs. John Rogers with 39,750.

Return to their East Marion home on Monday of last week ended a two-wek western camping trip for the Roger Snow family. After overnight stays and sightseeing at Grand Canyon and Mesa Verde, they reached Orange, Calif., where they spent several days visiting Mr. and Mrs. Homer Braggrin. Special treats for the children, Audrey, Susan and David, were trips to Disneyland and Knitts Berry Farm nearby. After an overnight stay at Sequoia National Park, the family headed homeward, stopping to sightsee and enjoy Yosemite, Yellowstone and the Black Hills. Family opinion after their first camping trip was "just great."

THE GOLDEN YEARS

OUT IN RETIREMENT LAND — WHAT PEOPLE ARE THINKING

It seems fitting on occasion to forego writing a column, an essay, or a report on retirement and simply have a talk with you who read what I write.

This is such a talk.

A lot of you are writing me letters, as a lot of you know. And your preoccupation, as always, is money. About 70 per cent of the letters ask what to do with savings, how to live on a retirement income, and what it costs to live in sunshine country.

Your second major interest, if your letters are a gauge, is your children. They don't pay much attention to you. For what consolation it is to you, very few children pay very much attention to retired parents. Apparently not because they don't love you, and not because you failed somewhere in rearing them. But because your children, usually in their 40's are barreling down their super-highways to SUCCESS and don't pay much attention to anybody who can't help them. You can't help much. Unless maybe you've got an inheritance hidden away.

Some of you were confused by the term "Tangerine Towns" in a recent column on where retired couples were living on small incomes. This was a short way of saying Arizona, Florida, Southern California, and South Texas, which is where the citrus fruit grows. "Sunshine Country," "Grapefruit Land," and "Shuffleboard Heaven" all mean the same.

A surprising number of you were shaken up when the column on Mutual Funds said your savings in banks and savings & loan would look pretty sad if serious inflation came. This didn't mean somebody was going to snatch your money, but that your savings were static and couldn't grow in face value, as other investments would, during inflation. Don't you remember how much more a dollar would buy in 1936 than it will now?

The columns on the perils of joint ownership of anything by a retired husband and wife seem to have led many of you to make some changes in your financial setup. But I'm still getting scolding letters from some of you who say you talked to your banker about a freeze on your joint bank accounts in case one of you dies, and the banker said I was nuts. Which could be. But the smartest thing, still, that any retired couple can do is to have the banker write them a letter, on a bank letterhead, saying the survivor can cash in a joint account, without delay, if the husband or wife dies.

Many of you seem to think that if you have signed up for Medicare you've got it made. You haven't. You'll need a doctor to recommend you to a hospital. And doctors aren't going to be inclined to recommend strangers above their regular patients. You'd better become a regular patient of some doctor, even if it costs you a $5 a month for office calls.

No matter what Washington says, or what welfare people profess, or what some of your outraged letters tell me, retired couples can live and are living in "Tangerine Country" on incomes of $200 to $250 a month. And doing it in good health and happiness. We wouldn't have to argue this point any further if you would go have a look. I've been.

Most of you men between the ages of 55 and 64 who are reading this are reading it as a nice woman reads a sexy novel — in private. You don't want anybody to know you are getting close to retirement, and you certainly don't want anybody to think you need any advice on how to retire.

And, incidentally, I get a few letters from you saying the column is helpful. To other retired people, of course. You have no problem, naturally.

For the GOLDEN YEARS 36-page booklet, send 50c in coin (no stamps), to Dept. CSPS, Box 1672, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Suffers Cut Lip

A 6-year-old Arlington Heights girl was injured slightly Thursday afternoon in an accident at Cherryhill Drive and Jonquil Terrace in Arlington Heights.

Kathleen Neacy, 2048 Evergreen Terrace, was treated for a cut lip and released from Northwest Community Hopital after the bicycle she was riding stuck a car driven by Ervin T. Allison, 50, of 641 N. Dulles Road, Des Plaines.

The Allison auto was turning into Cherryhill Drive when the bicycle hit the side and tipped over, police said.

OUT IN RETIREMENT LAND — WHAT PEOPLE ARE THINKING

It seems fitting on occasion to forego writing a column, an essay, or a report on retirement and simply have a talk with you who read what I write.

This is such a talk.

A lot of you are writing me letters, as a lot of you know. And your preoccupation, as always, is money. About 70 per cent of the letters ask what to do with savings, how to live on a retirement income, and what it costs to live in sunshine country.

Your second major interest, if your letters are a gauge, is your children. They don't pay much attention to you. For what consolation it is to you, very few children pay very much attention to retired parents. Apparently not because they don't love you, and not because you failed somewhere in rearing them. But because your children, usually in their 40's are barreling down their super-highways to SUCCESS and don't pay much attention to anybody who can't help them. You can't help much. Unless maybe you've got an inheritance hidden away.

Some of you were confused by the term "Tangerine Towns" in a recent column on where retired couples were living on small incomes. This was a short way of saying Arizona, Florida, Southern California, and South Texas, which is where the citrus fruit grows. "Sunshine Country," "Grapefruit Land," and "Shuffleboard Heaven" all mean the same.

A surprising number of you were shaken up when the column on Mutual Funds said your savings in banks and savings & loan would look pretty sad if serious inflation came. This didn't mean somebody was going to snatch your money, but that your savings were static and couldn't grow in face value, as other investments would, during inflation. Don't you remember how much more a dollar would buy in 1936 than it will now?

The columns on the perils of joint ownership of anything by a retired husband and wife seem to have led many of you to make some changes in your financial setup. But I'm still getting scolding letters from some of you who say you talked to your banker about a freeze on your joint bank accounts in case one of you dies, and the banker said I was nuts. Which could be. But the smartest thing, still, that any retired couple can do is to have the banker write them a letter, on a bank letterhead, saying the survivor can cash in a joint account, without delay, if the husband or wife dies.

Many of you seem to think that if you have signed up for Medicare you've got it made. You haven't. You'll need a doctor to recommend you to a hospital. And doctors aren't going to be inclined to recommend strangers above their regular patients. You'd better become a regular patient of some doctor, even if it costs you a $5 a month for office calls.

No matter what Washington says, or what welfare people profess, or what some of your outraged letters tell me, retired couples can live and are living in "Tangerine Country" on incomes of $200 to $250 a month. And doing it in good health and happiness. We wouldn't have to argue this point any further if you would go have a look. I've been.

Most of you men between the ages of 55 and 64 who are reading this are reading it as a nice woman reads a sexy novel — in private. You don't want anybody to know you are getting close to retirement, and you certainly don't want anybody to think you need any advice on how to retire.

And, incidentally, I get a few letters from you saying the column is helpful. To other retired people, of course. You have no problem, naturally.

For the GOLDEN YEARS 36-page booklet, send 50c in coin (no stamps), to Dept. CSPS, Box 1672, Grand Central Station, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Suffers Cut Lip

A 6-year-old Arlington Heights girl was injured slightly Thursday afternoon in an accident at Cherryhill Drive and Jonquil Terrace in Arlington Heights.

Kathleen Neacy, 2048 Evergreen Terrace, was treated for a cut lip and released from Northwest Community Hopital after the bicycle she was riding stuck a car driven by Ervin T. Allison, 50, of 641 N. Dulles Road, Des Plaines.

The Allison auto was turning into Cherryhill Drive when the bicycle hit the side and tipped over, police said.

Notes from Arlington Acres

Arlington Acres is welcoming a new family into its boundaries. Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gowan and their college sophomore son, Skippy, owners of the former Donovan home at 524 S. Prindle. Jack is with the Michigan Chemical Company and was transferred here from St. Louis, Mich. He and his wife, Trudy, have a son and daughter-in-law and two small grandsons in Royal Oak, Mich.

Patty Schmidt, who tried out both a cast and crutches earlier this year for two different ankle injuries, is again sporting a cast, this time for a broken arm, sustained while romping with the family dog. Patty, daughter of the Carl Schmidts, 515 S. Gibbons, finds that the arm hurts less than the curtailment of swimming activities.

Lacking a specific event to celebrate, a just-for-fun slumber party was given July 18 by Pam, Sandy and Debbie Kunz, 505 S. Forrest. The first phase of the party was swimming, where they worked up appetites for the pizza-making session which followed, and the rest of the evening passed listening to records and talking, talking and talking. Guests were Gail Bensen, Nancy Cerva, Kris and Margie Knutsen, Jamie Kessner and Joan and Nancy Selvaggio.

HOUSE GUESTS of the Lyle Longries, 429 S. Forrest, for the past week are Helen's sister and brother-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William Ebert of Los Alamos, New Mex. Many of the activities usually planned when out of town guests are visiting were dropped because the women were visiting their mother, Mrs. Mary Karkocki of Elmwood Park, who recently underwent surgery and is confined to Wesley Memorial hospital in Chicago. Between times, the Longrie home was a focal point for family get-togethers to greet the guests.

Because vacation plans of the guests interfered with celebrating Jimmy Moller's first birthday July 15, his parents, the senior Jim Mollers, 416 S. Prindle, marked the red-letter event with a supper party last Sunday. Guests included grandparents, the Frank Mollers of Mount Prospect, aunts and uncles, the Merel Marines of Brookfield, the Jim Hudecs and the Kemphi family of Cicero. Mrs. Kemphi and Jim Hudec are Jimmy's godparents. Julie, Keith and Scott Moller joined the cousins present in making the party lively.

The Archie Loch family, 2124 E. Park, marked two birthdays last week. Timmy was 10 on July 21 and Kathleen observed her first birthday July 24. Since the Lochs have seven other children, no outside reinforcements are needed to add zest to the "Happy Birthday" chorus which has become a part of every birthday party in the Loch home.

Bill Van Sky, 1915 E. Grove, marked his 16th birthday at a quiet celebration at home with his family last Saturday. The night before, he received the best wishes of many of his friends at a supper party given in his honor at the home of a girl friend in Arlington Heights.

JACK CHRISTIANSEN, 428 S. Waterman, is working too hard during the summer between high school and college to take time out to celebrate his July 22 birthday. For the same reason he did not accompany his parents, sisters Linda and Cindy and brother Dickie on a recent three-day excursion to the Dells for a capsule vacation.

The Jack Cains, 536 S. Waterman, have joined the camping enthusiasts in the area and spent a week of their vacation at a campsite in southern Minnesota, introducing their children, Cathy, Laurie and Steven, to the joys of outdoor living. On the way home the family stopped at West Salem, Wis., to visit Jack's parents and to enjoy a few days of water skiing.

The Robert Morgans took their children, Lisa, Michael and Lesley, with them when they flew to Corning, N.Y., to visit his parents, the Raymond Morgans, at their home there. They spent a pleasant ten days enjoying water sports and seeing many of Bob's old friends before they flew back home last week. The Morgans live at 412 S. Forrest.

ANOTHER AREA couple who took their children "home" to see grandparents were Mr. and Mrs. Dan Switzer, 413 S. Gibbons, whose children, Darcy and Todd, accompanied them to Ottumwa, Ia., to spend five days with Mary Ann's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben Bowne. An incentive to making the trip at this time was the reunion of her high school class, which Mary Ann attended.

Beth Ann Briscoe, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Boyd Briscoe, 433 S. Forrest, entertained several of her friends at a bowling party Saturday afternoon in honor of her ninth birthday July 24. The girls who enjoyed cake and ice-cream at the Briscoe home before leaving for Beverly Lanes were Julie Moller, Cathy Hanson, Linda Gryzik, Kathy Wright and Jessica Bruce.

After the wind-up of Beth Ann's festivities, her parents decided to celebrate Joan's July 23 birthday by having dinner at Simonini's in Algonquin with their neighbors, the Don Cervas, and Boyd's brother and sister-in-law, the Curt Briscoes of Arlington Heights.

A happy birthday is wished to Tom Thorstad, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Thorstad, 412 S. Phelps, who was 10 on July 18.

People May Sleep on Sidewalks!

It is believed by some that people will be sleeping on the sidewalks in Arlington Heights on Wednesday evening. It is our understanding that the "Sidewalk Days Sale" on Thursday, Friday and Saturday is going to be so fantastic that customers may sleep outside the stores so that they will be first in line.

We at Montgomery Wards are concerned with the comfort of these people and are offering $9.50 virgin ACRILAN ACRYLIC BLANKLETS for only $6.99.

The village cannot allow the curbs to be used as headrests, so we are also offering a DACRON PILLOW and embroidered zip pillow protector for only $5.28—regular price $7.28.

One person was quoted as saying, "If I sleep on the sidewalk in this heat, I certainly don't need a blanket!" It is apparent no one told him our "Aire-Cell" thermal weave keeps you cooler in the summer as well as warmer in the winter! Stop in during Sidewalk Days—we may have a few left!

LET'S LOOK AT THE RECORDS

BY LINDA NORRIS

Franz Schubert composed over 600 songs and at one time his devotees complained at not hearing more than 20 or 30 of them . . . That situation has been rectified nowadays with a helping hand from the phonograph record and from Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau . . . In fact, Schubert and Fischer-Dieskau have become practically synonymous — and yet, although he has recorded at least six other Schubert albums for Angel alone, the first time the singer has recorded any of these songs is in Schubert: — The Trout and Other Songs . . . They are mostly songs of nature, both joyful and melancholy, and several are great favorites, including the title song, which Schubert used for a melody in his Trout Quintet . . . Gerald Moore accompanies at the piano.

Hungarian Songs by the Kodaly Girls' Choir, features contemporary settings of folk song texts to music by Zoltan Kodaly and Bela Bartok . . . The performing choir is a group of girls aged between 13 and 18 from the Lebvei Klara School in Budapest . . . Miss Ilona Andor, their music mistress and conductor, has trained her school choir to such a pitch of perfection that in 1949 Kodaly granted his name in recognition of its outstanding achievements . . . The album was recorded in London in the summer of 1965 when the choir appeared as the sensation of Benjamin Britten's Aldenburg Festival, a concert which was in honor of Kodaly and which also marked the first time that the choir was heard in western Europe.

WOULDN'T YOU RATHER HAVE MONEY...

than a bunch of dust catchers taking up valuable storage space around your home?

Take the attic, for instance. There's that old chair . . . still sturdy, but never used any more . . .

and the stove you replaced years ago . . .

and the trunk Dad took to college . . .

wash tubs you haven't used since you got your automatic . . .

the bicycle no one has ridden in ages . . .

and the radio that hasn't been turned on since TV.

There's probably a lot more, too . . . all of it in good condition . . .

"But who wants it?" you say!

LET'S LOOK AT THE RECORDS
BY LINDA NORRIS

Franz Schubert composed over 600 songs and at one time his devotees complained at not hearing more than 20 or 30 of them . . . That situation has been rectified nowadays with a helping hand from the phonograph record and from Dietrich Fischer-Dieskau . . . In fact, Schubert and Fischer-Dieskau have become practically synonymous — and yet, although he has recorded at least six other Schubert albums for Angel alone, the first time the singer has recorded any of these songs is in Schubert: — The Trout and Other Songs . . . They are mostly songs of nature, both joyful and melancholy, and several are great favorites, including the title song, which Schubert used for a melody in his Trout Quintet . . . Gerald Moore accompanies at the piano.

Hungarian Songs by the Kodaly Girls' Choir, features contemporary settings of folk song texts to music by Zoltan Kodaly and Bela Bartok . . . The performing choir is a group of girls aged between 13 and 18 from the Lebvei Klara School in Budapest . . . Miss Ilona Andor, their music mistress and conductor, has trained her school choir to such a pitch of perfection that in 1949 Kodaly granted his name in recognition of its outstanding achievements . . . The album was recorded in London in the summer of 1965 when the choir appeared as the sensation of Benjamin Britten's Aldenburg Festival, a concert which was in honor of Kodaly and which also marked the first time that the choir was heard in western Europe.

Never Saw Elephant Before Zoo Trip

'Headstart' Gives Kids 'Even Break'

260 Enrolled For Program

by MARY SCHLOTT
Staff Writer

Some of them didn't even know what an elephant was.

Now, after Tuesday's Operation Headstart trip to Lincoln Park Zoo, 26 disadvantaged Arlington Heights pre-schoolers not only will know what elephants, tigers and zebras are—but be able to talk about them.

And they'll understand when teachers tell stories of elephants once they reach public school.

It is for these reasons—not just for the fun of junketing—that the Northwest Cook County Opportunity Council (Norwesco) urges frequent field trips for the 260 youngsters enrolled in its Headstart program.

Funded with a $45,000 federal anti-poverty grant, the Headstart program is in operation this summer at five Norwesco centers — Arlington Heights' First Presbyterian Church, the Church of the Good Shepherd in Prospect Heights, Community Presbyterian Church in Wheeling, Bethel Lutheran Church in Palatine and the Church of the Holy Spirit in Elk Grove Village.

Associated with the Norwesco program, but receiving separate funding is an identical program at St. Mary's parochial school in Buffalo Grove.

Miss Beth Black, Palatine kindergarten teacher who is in charge of the Arlington Heights center, thinks "Headstart" may be a misnomer.

"OPERATION Even Break" would be a better name, she thinks, for a program designed to give disadvantaged preschoolers the background most middleclass youngsters pick up naturally in homes with books and mothers with time to help them.

At the First Presbyterian Church, a typical center, the summer Headstart program for the morning group starts with breakfast.

Afterwards, the children play with blocks and other nursery equipment, have a chance to paint and color and cut, hear stories read and talk about them.

In addition to paid teacher aides Miss Barbara Bodzewski, Miss Connie Lewis and Miss Pamela Short, Miss Black this week has two teenagers—Ileen Hansen and Carolyn Hughes — assisting her. And she can always use more volunteers.

"ONE OF THE BIG things we're trying to do is build up these children's vocabulary — and to give them as much individual attention as possible. A one to one, adult to child ratio will be ideal," Miss Black explains.

Vocabulary-building is particularly valuable for the 75 per cent of the Norwesco Headstart youngsters of Latin-American descent. Many hear only Spanish at home.

Ethan Janove, Elk Grove principal who directed District 59's pioneer Headstart program last summer, likes to tell of the father who thanked him for teaching his girl English in eight weeks.

"Of course, we didn't really do that," says Janove. "What we did was give the girl the environment in which to use the English she had."

To encourage use of English —and to enrich all the children's backgrounds—the Headstart planners have tried to integrate Latin-American youngsters with the other preschoolers. This has not always been possible.

AT THE Buffalo Grove center, 58 of the 60 children in the St. Mary's program are Spanish-speaking. In Arlington Heights, because of the way bus routes must run, 18 of the 20 youngsters in the morning program are Spanish-speaking while almost no one in the afternoon group is.

The Latin-American children bring strengths to the program. Typically, they come from tight-knit families with strong father figures—influences often missing in the lives of inner-city Headstart youngsters. And says Miss Black, the Mexican-American children have been taught to be quiet and listen.

But they share the unstimulating backgrounds of other poverty-level suburban dwellers. And they have the language gap to breach.

TO HELP WITH the language difficulty, Headstart has a number of Spanish-speaking aides—but it could use many more. A chief problem in getting Spanish speaking aides, Headstart Director David Fankhouser says, is arranging transportation.

Headstart regulations require that 90 per cent of the preschoolers enrolled come from poverty-level families. Initially, there was some misunderstanding about this.

In Arlington Heights, some of the initial canvassing was done door-to-door in the area around Park School. At Wheeling, many teachers made referrals of youngsters who needed the cultural enrichment but weren't qualified on a family income basis.

But Fankhouser says the federal requirements are being met. Exactly ninety per cent of the youngsters in the Norwesco Headstart program, he says, fit the low-income levels.

A SPEECH correctionist and a nurse are on the Headstart staff to help the youngsters. Psychological testing, physical examinations and dental checkups are also planned.

Some 90 children have been given preliminary psychological screening so far. Medical checkups are about half done, with a hyperthyroid condition among disabilities turned up so far.

Dental examinations have shown of 20 youngsters in Miss Black's morning group at Arlington Heights, only six need no further dental care.

ONE BOY WHO had been sullen, listless and uncooperative, Miss Black said, turned out to need immediate dental work. "Now we know why he acted the way he did," she says. "His mouth hurt all the time."

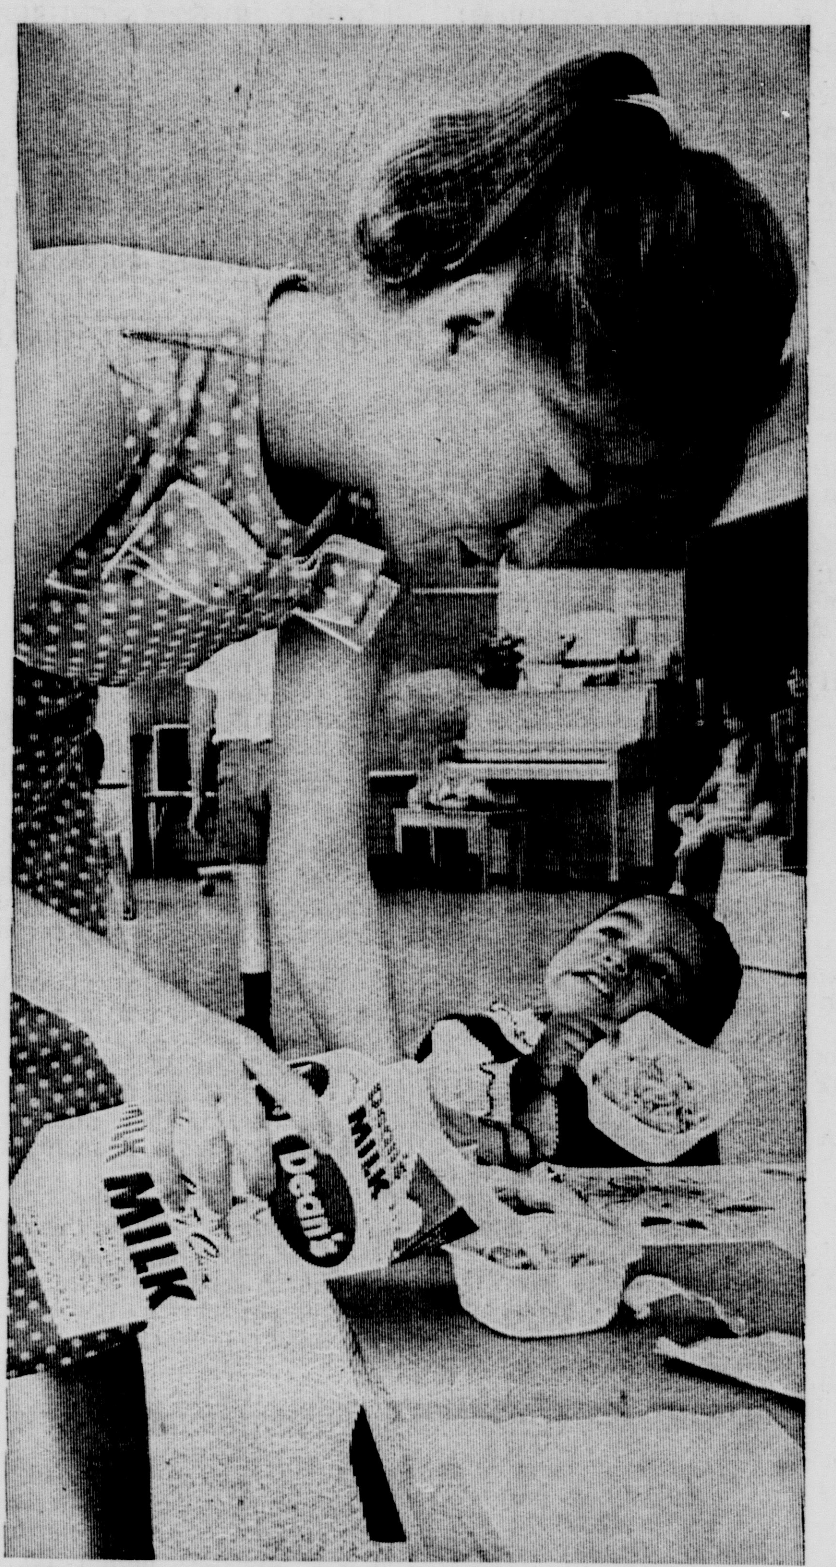
Fankhouser says to provide medical and dental follow-up work for Headstart youngsters will require money. But he says he is confident the funding can be arranged.

A careful woman driver is one who can carry on a conversation with both hands on the wheel.

Tact is the ability to agree with a person and convince him that he's wrong.

Middle age is the time of life when the things that once struck you as a lot of fun now seem like a lot of work.

There are just about as many people in the nation who wear glasses as drink from them.



ME NEXT, says this Arlington Heights pre-schooler to her Headstart teacher, Beth Black. Like Mother, Miss Black uses the moment to teach a lesson—in this case, how that children sometimes must wait their turn. Manners—and better eating habits—and improved nutrition—are among lessons learned by this girl and some 250 other disadvantaged children in the federally-financed Norwesco program.

A FINE SLURP! Nothing's more important than more breakfast. That must be the thought of this round-faced pre-schooler, one of some 40 enrolled at Arlington Heights' First Presbyterian Church, one of six centers for the Headstart program. This bright-eyed girl may be shovelling it in with more fervor than usual. Breakfast preecded an all-day outing to Lincoln Park Zoo, one of a number of field trips planned to broaden disadvantaged youngsters' horizons. NIPC 'Choice Train' Will Exhibit Here

The Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission's "Choice Train" will visit the northwest suburbs Aug. 19 through 25 when it stops at a siding in Arlington Heights.

The exhibit cars, loaned to NIPC by the Chicago & North-Western Railway, are a traveling exhibit of information about the commission and a description of its research projects. Also on exhibit are alternative plans prepared by NIPC for citizens to consider as guidelines for the future growth of the area.

The train was launched officially Wednesday at the North Western terminal by John Baird, vice president of the planning commission, Matthew L. Rockwell, executive director, Ben Heinemann of the railroad, and others. The cars were loaned to NIPC by the railway; other lines have agreed to transfer the cars when stops are scheduled in towns not on the North Western line.

The displays will be open for public inspection during a three-month series of stops. Weekday hours are 1 to 8 p.m. Saturday hours are 10 a.m. to 3 p.m. Sunday hours are 3 to 7 p.m. Featured will be an animated slide sequence and exhibit panels on air pollution, water problems, open space and transportation, as well as the alternative plans. The exhibits follow a pattern of trends, problems, goals, choices, decisions and actions.

Besides the Arlington Heights stop, stops are planned nearby at Libertyville Aug. 6, Wheaton Sept. 2 and Elmhurst Sept. 9.

Library Irked by Architect

Disappointment with the "productivity" of Nichol and Nichol architectual firm hired to design the new libary building was expressed Tuesday by the Arlington Heights library board.

Board member George Beacham said, "We have sought a pay-out schedule from the architects five times in the pat three weeks." But, he added, no schedule has been received.

Beacham indicated that the architects had been requested to bring to the Tuesday meeting sketches of the inerior design, including glass partitioning and furniture, but had failed to do so.

The board scheduled a special meeting for August 4 to meet with representatives from Nichol and Nichol. It is asking the firm to present both the interior design sketches and "concept layouts" of the new libary building.

In other business, the board is asking Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson to investigate possibilities for having a comprehensive insurance study made for the new library.

Beacham suggested an independent insurance audit company from Indianaopolis to do the study. According to him, the comapny made a similar study for the village board three years ago. (A

Remodeling Is Slow

July 30, predicted completion date for First Presbyterian Church's $80,000 sanctuary remodeling project will find painters' scaffolding still rising above dusty pews.

A mixed blessing, the delay in the renovation work finds families of some nine prospective brides holding their breath to see if wedding plans must switch.

But it also leaves the 2,500-family congregation worshipping on summer Sunday mornings in the air-conditioned Arlington Theatre nearby.

Dr. Paul Stumpf, pastor of the Presbyterian congregation, says he is now "hoping for" Aug. 15 completion date.

PESSIMISTS IN the congregation think it may be as late as Sept. 1 before the sanctuary can be used, he adds.

Some of the weddings that were to have been performed in the remodelled sanctuary will take place instead in the church's chapel.

New Central Library Problems Discussed

The advantages and disadvantages of gaining membership in the newly-organized North Suburban Library System (NSLS) were discussed at the Tuesday Arlington Heights library board meeting.

Head Librarian Mary Lee Ewalt said membership in the system would "commit our library resources to unlimited use."

The organization is presently working toward setting up a "common library card" system. This would allow card carriers from other member libraries to utilize the Arlington Heights library resources.

In referring to the walk-in library service, she added, "There may eventually be pressure for us to serve unincorporated areas."

According to Mrs. Ewalt, a public body, such as a library, has a right to protect its autonomy.

To learn more about he organization and future plans of NSLS, the library board s inviting Paul Gorby, president of the organization, to a future meeting. No specific date was slated.

In January, the library board voted to join the proposed library system. The organization is financed by state funds, allotted on the basis of the number of people served by the member libaries.

The resolution to join the system was a preliminary step. If the Arlington Heights Public Library wished to withdraw at this tme, Mrs. Ewalt said, it could legally do so.

MAIN ADVANTAGES of the system are a creation of a reference center, which will be at Evanstons library initally. This regional center would contain in-depthh materials not found in the other municipal libraries.

Furthermore, state funds for purchase of books by individual libraries are now available only through the regional systems.

Judge Merger Alone, C&NW Requests ICC

The Chicago and North Western Railway has urged the Interstate Commerce Commission to consider separately its application for merger with the Milwaukee Road.

The request was made in reply to a joint appeal by the Union Pacific, Southern Pacific and Rock Island railroads that the commission consolidate the Milwaukee - North Western merger with the current Union Pacific - Rock Island merger proceedings.

North Western officials said they could see no justification for entangling their merger application in "the hornet's nest" resulting from the Union Pacific attempt to absorb the Rock Island Line and thus move eastward from its historic Missouri River terminals.

"THE ISSUES in the Milwaukee-North Wesern application involving the unification to two Midwestern regional carriers—are substantially unrelated to the issues presently being explored in the Rock Island proceedings," North Western's reply declared.

The Union Pacific-Rock Island merger proposal, including the contemplated sale of the Rock Island's southern lines to Southern Pacific following any merger, "involves profound and portentious alterations in the existing transcontinental traffic patterns."

"In striking contrast, the Milwaukee-North Western application involves the unification of two carriers whose operations and properties are predcminately confined to the midwest, intimately related to its agricultural economy, and subject to a combinatin of railroad problems unique to this region," North Western said. Never Saw Elephant Before Zoo Trip

'Headstart' Gives Kids 'Even Break'

260 Enrolled For Program

by MARY SCHLOTT
Staff Writer

Some of them didn't even know what an elephant was.

Now, after Tuesday's Operation Headstart trip to Lincoln Park Zoo, 26 disadvantaged Arlington Heights pre-schoolers not only will know what elephants, tigers and zebras are—but be able to talk about them.

And they'll understand when teachers tell stories of elephants once they reach public school.

It is for these reasons—not just for the fun of junketing—that the Northwest Cook County Opportunity Council (Norwesco) urges frequent field trips for the 260 youngsters enrolled in its Headstart program.

Funded with a $45,000 federal anti-poverty grant, the Headstart program is in operation this summer at five Norwesco centers — Arlington Heights' First Presbyterian Church, the Church of the Good Shepherd in Prospect Heights, Community Presbyterian Church in Wheeling, Bethel Lutheran Church in Palatine and the Church of the Holy Spirit in Elk Grove Village.

Associated with the Norwesco program, but receiving separate funding is an identical program at St. Mary's parochial school in Buffalo Grove.

Miss Beth Black, Palatine kindergarten teacher who is in charge of the Arlington Heights center, thinks "Headstart" may be a misnomer.

"OPERATION Even Break" would be a better name, she thinks, for a program designed to give disadvantaged preschoolers the background most middleclass youngsters pick up naturally in homes with books and mothers with time to help them.

At the First Presbyterian Church, a typical center, the summer Headstart program for the morning group starts with breakfast.

Afterwards, the children play with blocks and other nursery equipment, have a chance to paint and color and cut, hear stories read and talk about them.

In addition to paid teacher aides Miss Barbara Bodzewski, Miss Connie Lewis and Miss Pamela Short, Miss Black this week has two teenagers—Ileen Hansen and Carolyn Hughes — assisting her. And she can always use more volunteers.

"ONE OF THE BIG things we're trying to do is build up these children's vocabulary — and to give them as much individual attention as possible. A one to one, adult to child ratio will be ideal," Miss Black explains.

Vocabulary-building is particularly valuable for the 75 per cent of the Norwesco Headstart youngsters of Latin-American descent. Many hear only Spanish at home.

Ethan Janove, Elk Grove principal who directed District 59's pioneer Headstart program last summer, likes to tell of the father who thanked him for teaching his girl English in eight weeks.

"Of course, we didn't really do that," says Janove. "What we did was give the girl the environment in which to use the English she had."

To encourage use of English —and to enrich all the children's backgrounds—the Headstart planners have tried to integrate Latin-American youngsters with the other preschoolers. This has not always been possible.

AT THE Buffalo Grove center, 58 of the 60 children in the St. Mary's program are Spanish-speaking. In Arlington Heights, because of the way bus routes must run, 18 of the 20 youngsters in the morning program are Spanish-speaking while almost no one in the afternoon group is.

The Latin-American children bring strengths to the program. Typically, they come from tightknit families with strong father figures—influences often missing in the lives of inner-city Headstart youngsters. And says Miss Black, the Mexican-American children have been taught to be quiet and listen.

But they share the unstimulating backgrounds of other poverty-level suburban dwellers. And they have the language gap to breach.

TO HELP WITH the language difficulty, Headstart has a number of Spanish-speaking aides—but it could use many more. A chief problem in getting Spanish speaking aides, Headstart Director David Fankhouser says, is arranging transportation.

Headstart regulations require that 90 per cent of the preschoolers enrolled come from poverty-level families. Initially, there was some misunderstanding about this.

In Arlington Heights, some of the initial canvassing was done door-to-door in the area around Park School. At Wheeling, many teachers made referrals of youngsters who needed the cultural enrichment but weren't qualified on a family income basis.

But Fankhouser says the federal requirements are being met. Exactly ninety per cent of the youngsters in the Norwesco Headstart program, he says, fit the low-income levels.

A SPEECH correctionist and a nurse are on the Headstart staff to help the youngsters. Psychological testing, physical examinations and dental checkups are also planned.

Some 90 children have been given preliminary psychological screening so far. Medical checkups are about half done, with a hyperthyroid condition among disabilities turned up so far.

Dental examinations have shown of 20 youngsters in Miss Black's morning group at Arlington Heights, only six need no further dental care.

ONE BOY WHO had been sullen, listless and uncooperative, Miss Black said, turned out to need immediate dental work. "Now we know why he acted the way he did," she says. "His mouth hurt all the time."

Fankhouser says to provide medical and dental follow-up work for Headstart youngsters will require money. But he says he is confident the funding can be arranged.

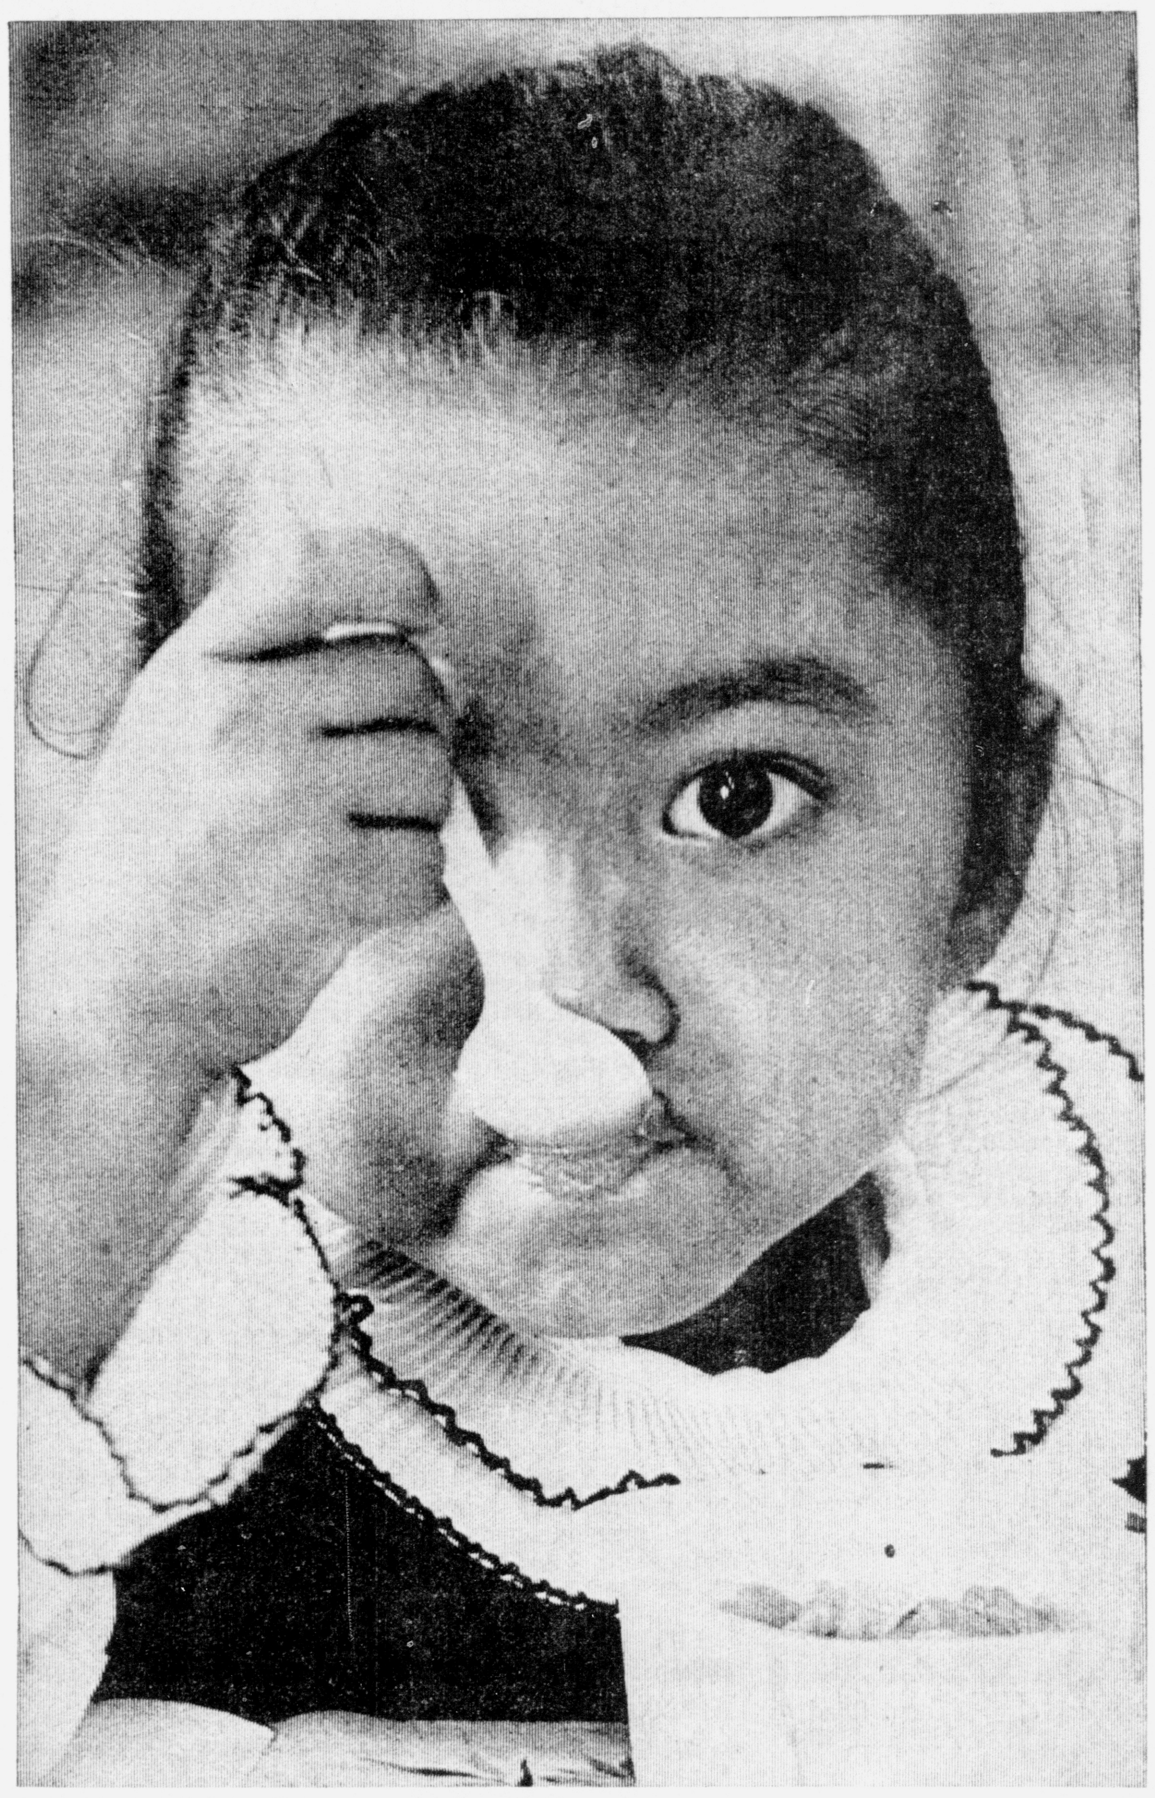
A careful woman driver is one who can carry on a conversation with both hands on the wheel.

Tact is the ability to agree with a person and convince him that he's wrong.

Middle age is the time of life when the things that once struck you as a lot of fun now seem like a lot of work.

There are just about as many people in the nation who wear glasses as drink from them.

ME NEXT, says this Arlington Heights pre-schooler to her Headstart teacher, Beth Black. Like Mother, Miss Black uses the moment to teach a lesson—in this case, how that children sometimes must wait their turn. Manners—and better eating habits—and improved nutrition—are among lessons learned by this girl and some 250 other disadvantaged children in the federally-financed Norwesco program.



A FINE SLURP! Nothing's more important than more breakfast. That must be the thought of this round-faced pre-schooler, one of some 40 enrolled at Arlington Heights' First Presbyterian Church, one of six centers for the Headstart program. The Jim Beck family, Robert Drive, and Jean's sister and family, the Sid Hollmans, Cottonwood Drive, cousins Charlie and Karen Hund and Jim's brother, Bill Beck, and daughter, Pat—all of Des Plaines—spent the wekend at Bohners Lake, Wis., boating and swimming.

Mrs. Edna Browne, Robert Drive, celebrated her birthday on Sunday with her husband, Tom, and children.

Planners Eye Measures To Ease Traffic Flow

Prohibiting parking along thoroughfares and restricting left hand turns in the village are two measures the Mount Prospect Plan Commission is considering to alleviate traffic problems.

The village, in turn, would have to provide more off-street parking, plan commission members said.

The plan commission met July 20 with village planner Donald Peto of Tec-Search, Inc., Wilmette. Peto reported on a meeting he had with state Highway Department officials to discuss Mount Prospect traffic plans.

THE STATE 1966 plans do not include widening or moving Route 83. The highway department is now setting up 1967 plans, so it may be included in those, he said.

The planner said he and highway officials discussed the patterns of corridors in Mount Prospect, and the congestion Route 83 causes with trains going through the center of town.

ONE SOLUTION to eliminating congestion is design of the downtown area, he said.

"Don't saddle the highway with businesses on both sides," he said. "Put stores on one side and offices on another so shoppers don't have to cross the railroad."

Highway officials said extending Busse Road to Northwest Highway is not a bad idea to relieve Route 83 but it would cause engineering problems in connecting the two, Peto reported.

"The thoroughfare plan is basically one where you use them as they exist," Peto said. "Highway officials told us not to concentrate on more thoroughfares but on using existing ones to capacity. Use six lanes for traffic rather than four for traffic and two for parking. This will cost the village less."

PETO IS TO present a thoroughfare plan and residential land use plan to the village board Aug. 17. (M

Mrs. McDonald suffered chest pains and a cut lip. Her children, Cathy, 9, and Milton, 13, and another passenger in the McDonald car, Diane Cerny, 8, of West Chicago, received minor injuries.

Western Michigan Offers Beaches, Variety

Parks, History, Culture Cited

Western Michigan provides an enticing vacationland for tourists, sportsmen and ordinary pleasure seekers, according to the touring department of the Chicago Motor Club. Geographically, the area begins at the state's southern border and continues all the way north to Mackinaw City, including over 400 miles of sandy Lake Michigan beaches.

Extending inland for 90 miles, the 31-county area also contains 3,500 lakes in every imaginable size and shape, plus an estimated 10,000 miles of rivers and running streams, all well-stocked with game fish.

In addition, West Michigan offers its visitors lovely scenery, state parks, sand dunes, pleasant resorts, cultural attractions, religious shrines, historical marks and monuments and more.

The first 50 miles of beach area, beginning at Grand Beach, has become known as the "Michigan Riviera" because of its great variety of resorts, amusement parks, scenic attractions and historic places to visit. Center of vacation activity here in Berrien County are the old communities of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, which straddle the mouth of the St. Joseph River where it empties into Lake Michigan.

HERE YOU may visit one of the country's finest animal parks, feed the young deer from your hand and watch the antics of trained animals as they go through their acts. Nearby is the Warren Dunes State Park with its two miles of Lake Michigan beach. Behind the beach are giant sand dunes, a camping area and recreational facilities.

The Chicago Motor Club touring department reports that throughout Western Michigan visitors will find accommodations and restaurants to fit a variety of budgets: luxurious resorts, hotels, motels, tourist courts, guest homes, cottages and cabins to rent, trailer parks and campgrounds if you prefer to tent out. Almost everywhere you will find facilities for swimming, boating, and fishing. This is a fisherman's paradise and whether you use rod and reel or a bent pin on a string, you're almost certain to land some walleyes, lake trout, muskellunges, bass, perch or any of the other pan fish which fill the waters.

THE VARIOUS resort areas are characterized by special activities. Considering them together, you will find golf courses, summer theater, movies, nightclubs, fine restaurants, river and lake boat cruises, scenic dune rides, horseback riding, and all kinds of sports, as well as visits to antique markets, art centers and religious shrines.

St. Mary's of Mount Carmel, near Manistee, is one of the most beautiful churches in the U.S., with coloring and flowing lines uniquely designed to blend into the surrounding dunes. The city of Holland is world-famous for its tulip festival held each year about mid-May when its millions of tulips reach full bloom.

Last year saw the opening in Holland of the new Windmill Island Park, which features the only authentic Dutch windmill in the U.S. The 200-year-old 60-ton mill has 80-foot wings and stands as high as an eight-story building. It actually operates and can be inspected from the inside.

Cook County Has More Autos Than All But Eight Nations

Cook County motorists, facing mounting traffic jams on the North Outer Drive and portions of the Kennedy and Edens expressways due to summer-long reconstruction projects, may sometimes get the maddening feeling there's more vehicles here than any place on earth.

According to the Chicago Automobile Trade Association, whose member new car dealers sold the vast majority of the cars on Cook County streets and highways, it's true almost.

Rgistration figures showing Cook County's motor vehicle population at 2,016,549 as of the end of the year, place the county ahead of more than 160 nations throughout the world.

According to Larry Faul, president of the 380-member new car dealer organization, statistics in CATA files reveal that only eight nations—Great Britain, France, West Germany, Canada, Italy, Japan, Russia and Australia—have more motor vehicles than are registered in Cook County.

IN ADDITION, Faul pointed out only one county in the United States itself—Los Angeles County, California—has more registered cars than Cook County.

Just in case a few tired motorists—fresh from a long bumper-to-bumper traffic crawl home—would like to know where there are the least cars in the world, Faul said it's the island of Samoa—located somewhere out there in the vast reaches of the unhurried Pacific Ocean.

THE CHICAGO Automobile Trade Association is composed of franchised new car dealers located in Cook County. The group, one of the largest and oldest dealer associations in the country, sponsors the automobile show each February. Additionally, the auto trade group and its members participate in a variety of civic, welfare, and charitable activities, including the Orphans' Automobile Day outing at which some 5,000 orphans, crippled children and senior citizens from various institutions are entertained during a day-long event held in Lincoln Park. Initiated in 1904 by the Chicago Automobile Trade Association, this year's event will be the 62nd annual outing.

Western Michigan Offers Beaches, Variety

Parks, History, Culture Cited

Western Michigan provides an enticing vacationland for tourists, sportsmen and ordinary pleasure seekers, according to the touring department of the Chicago Motor Club. Geographically, the area begins at the state's southern border and continues all the way north to Mackinaw City, including over 400 miles of sandy Lake Michigan beaches.

Extending inland for 90 miles, the 31-county area also contains 3,500 lakes in every imaginable size and shape, plus an estimated 10,000 miles of rivers and running streams, all well-stocked with game fish.

In addition, West Michigan offers its visitors lovely scenery, state parks, sand dunes, pleasant resorts, cultural attractions, religious shrines, historical marks and monuments and more.

The first 50 miles of beach area, beginning at Grand Beach, has become known as the "Michigan Riviera" because of its great variety of resorts, amusement parks, scenic attractions and historic places to visit. Center of vacation activity here in Berrien County are the old communities of St. Joseph and Benton Harbor, which straddle the mouth of the St. Joseph River where it empties into Lake Michigan.

HERE YOU may visit one of the country's finest animal parks, feed the young deer from your hand and watch the antics of trained animals as they go through their acts. Nearby is the Warren Dunes State Park with its two miles of Lake Michigan beach. Behind the beach are giant sand dunes, a camping area and recreational facilities.

The Chicago Motor Club touring department reports that throughout Western Michigan visitors will find accommodations and restaurants to fit a variety of budgets: luxurious resorts, hotels, motels, tourist courts, guest homes, cottages and cabins to rent, trailer parks and campgrounds if you prefer to tent out. Almost everywhere you will find facilities for swimming, boating, and fishing. This is a fisherman's paradise and whether you use rod and reel or a bent pin on a string, you're almost certain to land some walleyes, lake trout, muskellunges, bass, perch or any of the other pan fish which fill the waters.

THE VARIOUS resort areas are characterized by special activities. Considering them together, you will find golf courses, summer theater, movies, nightclubs, fine restaurants, river and lake boat cruises, scenic dune rides, horseback riding, and all kinds of sports, as well as visits to antique markets, art centers and religious shrines.

St. Mary's of Mount Carmel, near Manistee, is one of the most beautiful churches in the U.S., with coloring and flowing lines uniquely designed to blend into the surrounding dunes. The city of Holland is world-famous for its tulip festival held each year about mid-May when its millions of tulips reach full bloom.

Last year saw the opening in Holland of the new Windmill Island Park, which features the only authentic Dutch windmill in the U.S. The 200-year-old 60-ton mill has 80-foot wings and stands as high as an eight-story building. It actually operates and can be inspected from the inside. (CR

Cook County Has More Autos Than All But Eight Nations

Cook County motorists, facing mounting traffic jams on the North Outer Drive and portions of the Kennedy and Edens expressways due to summer-long reconstruction projects, may sometimes get the maddening feeling there's more vehicles here than any place on earth.

According to the Chicago Automobile Trade Association, whose member new car dealers sold the vast majority of the cars on Cook County streets and highways, it's true almost.

Suburbs Have Fewer Missing Persons

Lost Child Is Most Common

by EDWARD MURNANE
Staff Writer

Missing persons just aren't in style in northwest suburbs.

More than four million persons were listed as "missing" in the United States last year, but few of these, if any, were from this area.

Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Addison police all agreed that most of the reports they get are from distraught parents who can't find a child.

In most cases, the child has forgotten what time it is or is found close to home and was unaware that he was being sought.

Usually the child is found within a few hours after he is reported missing.

Karl Vittinghoff, radio dispatcher for the Arlington Heights police, said that many of the missing children are found by their parents.

MOST POLICE departments will send a description of the missing child over the radio and have a patrol car cruise in the area.

If more than a few hours elapse and the child has not been found, a complete description is sent to all neighboring police departments.

On the rare occasions when an adult is reported missing, the police again send out a complete description to neighboring police.

This includes the clothes the person is wearing, physical defects, kind of car, hobbies, circumstances leading to the person's leaving and a list of places the person is known to frequent.

THE POLICE usually wait for at least 48 hours before they send out a report to the state police or the FBI.

Addison Police Chief Nels Anderson said he can only recall one case in which the person was never found.

The Addison police keep a record of missing persons, but Anderson said they usually aren't missing.

"We notify the FBI and provide a description," Anderson said.

But the FBI will not report a person missing for some time after they are notified. The monthly FBI bulletin has a number of missing person reports but most are of people who have been missing for three or four months.

IF AN ADULT is reported missing to the Rolling Meadows police, a notice is sent over a teletype machine to all police in the state.

"The last time we had one was a couple of years ago when some drunk left his wife," Rolling Meadows chief Cy Campbell reported.

During 1965, Tracers Co. was hired to find almost 40,000 missing persons. They found more than 36,000 of them.

Most of the persons reported missing were stockholders, college alumni and debtors.

THE STOCKHOLDERS and alumni generally don't know they are being sought, but the debtors do, and they frequently take investigators on a wild chase.

Most of the husbands who disappear can't support their wives or families.

Arlington Heights police had a missing person report last week, but it turned out that the man was intoxicated and didn't want to go home to his wife. He hasn't yet.

In circumstances like that, the police must have authorization from the husband or wife before they can hold a person.

PRIVATE detective agencies get more calls than police, but they usually cover a wider area.

Frank Michelle Sr., manager of the Delta Patrol Service in Palatine, said he looks for about three or four missing persons a year.

Michelle said if the person has voluntarily left, it gets pretty hard to locate him.

"We talk to every one the person knows," Michelle said.

"Frequently, there will be some reason for a person leaving that his family doesn't know. We can usually find out from friends what his reasons were, and get an idea where he's headed," Michelle added.

One of the longest searches Delta has had ended after seven months when a husband was found in Ogden, Utah.

MICHELLE said his company usually finds bill-evaders. "When they get into financial trouble, they make a habit of it and we catch them."

Hiring a private agency can be expensive. Delta charges $50 a day, the standard rate for private investigations. But the investigation is more thorough than a police investigation. House to house canvassing is frequently employed, and the agency can devote more time than the police can.

Teenagers who run into problems at home sometimes leave, but they usually return when their money runs out.

The northwest suburbs just don't seem to be the place for run-aways. As Michelle put it, "Most of our cases are pretty dull." (A15

Deadline Extension Forms Available

Volume mailers may now start filling out forms seeking extension of the Jan. 1 deadline for mandatory conversion of second and third class bulk mail to ZIP Code, the U. S. Post Office Department has announced.

Extensions will be granted according to the announcement, who can demonstrate they have made a genuine effort to presort their mail according to the new regulations, but will be unable to meet the deadline because of circumstances beyond their control.

THE MANDATORY regulations apply to newspaper and magazine publishers in the second class category and to advertising matter in third class. Some 285,000 mailers operate under permits allowing favorable bulk rates for these two categories.

The applications are now available at first class post offices and the department's 15 regional offices. Mailers must fill them out, with supporting documentation, and submit them to their local postmaster no later than Sept. 15, at the office which handles their mail.

The forms will then be forwarded to the regional director for a decision. Those whose applications are turned down, or who delay beyond the extension given them, will no longer be eligible for the bulk rate but must pay the third or fourth class rates for single pieces.

The ZIP Code program was inaugurated July 1, 1963, and volume mailers were notified of the mandatory regulations in February 1965. (A15

"I REMEMBER"

BY THE OLD TIMER

From J. Smith, New York, N.Y.: Do you remember, long years ago, what fun it was to go to the neighborhood grocery store? It was something of a special institution long before the advent of the supermarket.

I grew up in a small town in the south. My father grew a fine and wonderful garden each year and would provide tomatoes, beans, okra and other items which we kids took to the grocery to exchange for the things that just couldn't be home-grown.

Always, there were a few pennies for each of us to spend. Not much, as there just wasn't much money in circulation in those days. At least, not in our family of seven.

But, it was a delight to stand in front of each of the glass-enclosed display cases, taking what seemed like an eternity to determine just how those few, precious pennies would be spent.

We lived only four blocks from the heart of town, yet for many years we kept a cow or two and one time (thank goodness, only one) dad even raised some pigs.

Can you imagine the reaction of your neighbors today if you kept such animals in your yard? It isn't done any more, not even in the small towns where travel frequently takes me.

Suburbs Have Fewer Missing Persons

by EDWARD MURNANE
Staff Writer

Missing persons just aren't in style in northwest suburbs.

More than four million persons were listed as "missing" in the United States last year, but few of these, if any, were from this area.

Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Addison police all agreed that most of the reports they get are from distraught parents who can't find a child.

In most cases, the child has forgotten what time it is or is found close to home and was unaware that he was being sought.

Usually the child is found within a few hours after he is reported missing.

Karl Vittinghoff, radio dispatcher for the Arlington Heights police, said that many of the missing children are found by their parents.

MOST POLICE departments will send a description of the missing child over the radio and have a patrol car cruise in the area.

If more than a few hours elapse and the child has not been found, a complete description is sent to all neighboring police departments.

On the rare occasions when an adult is reported missing, the police again send out a complete description to neighboring police.

This includes the clothes the person is wearing, physical defects, kind of car, hobbies, circumstances leading to the person's leaving and a list of places the person is known to frequent.

THE POLICE usually wait for at least 48 hours before they send out a report to the state police or the FBI.

Addison Police Chief Nels Anderson said he can only recall one case in which the person was never found.

The Addison police keep a record of missing persons, but Anderson said they usually aren't missing.

"We notify the FBI and provide a description," Anderson said.

But the FBI will not report a person missing for some time after they are notified. The monthly FBI bulletin has a number of missing person reports but most are of people who have been missing for three or four months.

IF AN ADULT is reported missing to the Rolling Meadows police, a notice is sent over a teletype machine to all police in the state.

"The last time we had one was a couple of years ago when some drunk left his wife," Rolling Meadows chief Cy Campbell reported.

Last year, more than 35,000 husbands left their wives, a survey taken by Tracers Company of America indicated. For the same period, only 56 wives were reported missing by their husbands.

During 1965, Tracers Co. was hired to find almost 40,000 missing persons. They found more than 36,000 of them.

Most of the persons reported missing were stockholders, college alumni and debtors.

THE STOCKHOLDERS and alumni generally don't know they are being sought, but the debtors do, and they frequently take investigators on a wild chase.

Most of the husbands who disappear can't support their wives or families.

Arlington Heights police had a missing person report last week, but it turned out that the man was intoxicated and didn't want to go home to his wife. He hasn't yet.

Area Merchants Install 'Babysitters'

Drive Children To Distraction

by MICHAEL NASH
Staff Writer

Some area merchants have found that parents can shop more comfortably—and more thoroughly—if they do not have to worry about what their children are doing in, or perhaps to, the store.

Sensing that mom and dad often have to divide their attention between the kids and the shopping, merchants sometimes provide facilities to distract or at least pacify the children.

Klehm's nursery, Algonquin and Arlington Heights Roads, keeps the kids busy with wooden horses and teeter-totters. The horses are small and crudely carved. An adult may not pay much attention, but a child's uninhibited imagination can bring them to life. While mom and dad are choosing an evergreen for the front yard or peony plants for the garden, their child can bust broncos or chase Indians.

More conventional types can go up and down on the teeter-totter providing the child can find a partner.

AL GOEBBERT, a salesman at the nursery, says that most disagreements over who will play on the horses are settled by the participants and that he has never had to become a referee.

Goebbert says that the horses serve their purpose and that sometime this fall a large dragon-like figure will be added for the kids to climb on.

Joseph Schneller of Schneller Furniture, 32 S. Evergreen Ave., Arlington Heights, often packs as many as 25 children into a small television room he has provided for them.

Schneller explains that buying furniture requires concentration; color schemes have to be kept in mind, and there is often a considerable investment involved. Restless children inhibit sales in large-item stores such as his.

It is impossible to predict which program a group of children will watch, says Schneller. He has seen a group of girls watching a baseball game and many times the children seem more interested in the adult programs.

Occasionally, says Schneller, a middle-aged "child" is seen gazing at the screen along with the younger crowd.

SCHNELLER'S television room has been so successful that he plans a larger addition with supervision and play facilities. It would probably be a more rugged room where the kids could enjoy a soft drink while mom and dad read price tags.

Robbert Debbout of Colonial Suburban Shoes, 19 N. Bothwell, Palatine, gestures toward a tank of tropical fish in his store and says, "That's my babysitter."

The popularity of the tank with children is attested to by the small hand prints which cover it.

DEBBOUT SAYS that even the very young children are fascinated, apparently just by the motion of the fish.

A common sight in many area shopping centers is the horse or rocket ship which a dime will set in motion for a few minutes. Steve Sharer, manager of Grant's Department Store, 3225 N. Kirchoff, Rolling Meadows, says that the "twirly-bird" ride in front of the store is used mainly as a "bribe." Children are promised a ride on the twirlybird by parents in exchange for good behavior in the store.

One woman shopper who was contemplating the twirlybird with a small child commented that she had six more children and had better not get in the habit of spending 10 cents each time they needed pacifying.

JOHN HUGHES, president of the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and vice president of the Palatine National Bank, explains the other side of the story: some merchants would rather have the children around the counters than distracted somewhere.

Palatine, says Hughes, has few large item stores, and many merchants stock items such as candy, novelties, games, toys, books and hobbies. The last thing stores which stock this kind of item want to do is keep children from the counters.

Even the bank sees value in encouraging children to come in with their parents. Hughes says that the suckers and model cars in the bank are there specifically to bring in children.

Children who come into the bank, explains Hughes, often develop the habit and will continue to do so as they get older. Some people, says Hughes, actually grow up somewhat afraid of the impersonal image which a bank can sometimes generate. To combat this, children are made to feel at ease in banks at as early an age as possible.

THE BANK encourages children's accounts, which are loss items, feeling that it will someday pay off. Dealing with children in this manner does not have immediate results, but Hughes explains that it does pay off in the long run and it is a recognized concept in banking.

Ray Soucie of Soucie Jewelry, 1 N. Bothwell, Palatine, says that he spends as much time with a child who comes into the store as with an adult. The child will sometimes return with the parent or at least the parent's money to buy the item he was looking at.

Soucie says that he has received calls of thanks from parents for spending time with a child, thereby strengthening customer relations which are vital to any merchant.

Whether to encourage children or distract them is a decision every merchant must make, and it depends mainly on his type of merchandise. But a sampling of area merchants indicates that many side with one television dealer who, when asked what he had in the store for kids to play with, answered quickly, "Not the television sets." Home, Apartment Construction Down

Permits for both homes and apartments in the Chicago metropolitan area declined during during June from the comparable month last year, according to a survey of new building published by Bell Savings and Loan Association, Chicago.

This is the first apartment decrease in 1966 and the second decline for homes.

There were 2,028 home permtis issued in the entire metropolitan area, 9 per cent below 2,218 reported in June 1965. The decreases were 49 per cent in the City of Chicago (from 211 to 125), 2 per cent in the suburbs (from 1,497 to 1,463) and 14 per cent in the unincorporated areas (from 510 to 440).

IN THE northwest suburban area, Arlington Heights led in the number of permits issued for June, with 62 proposed homes valued at $1,628,500. Next was Hoffman Estates, 49 permits, valued at $1,206,750; Schaumburg, 44 for $920,202; Palatine, 41, $746,985; Addison, 37, $652,000; Buffalo Grove, 25, $336,000; Mount Prospect, 25, $534,900; Glendale Heights, 20, $219,900; and Streamwood, 17, $230,400.

Wood Dale issued permits for 16 homes valued at $280,900; Rolling Meadows for 15, valued at $348,414; Hanover Park, 9, $102,000; Elk Grove Village, 7, $126,000; Roselle, 7, $175,000; Wheeling, 6, $155,232; Bloomingdale, 2, $54,000; Vensenville, 1, $24,000; and Itasca issued no permits last month.

Arlington Heights is the leader in home building thus far in 1966, with 368 homes valued at $9,524,600, or an average cost of $25,882. Schaumburg is fifth in the metropolitan area, having issued 196 permits with a valuation of $4,059,274, for homes with an average price of $20,711.

THE SIX-COUNTY metropolitan area had permits for 1,270 apartment units against 1,926 units a year ago, a 34 per cent drop. Apartments increased 56 per cent in Chicago (due to consturction of 235 Chicago Housing Authority apartment units this year), but declined from 1,303 to 740 units in the suburbs, and from 320 to 56 units in unincorporated areas.

Addison led in apartment permits issued last month, with 36 valued at $418,000. Bensenville had 5 units with a $60,000 valuation, and Rolling Meadows 4, valued at $74,140.

The value of all building permits dropped 2 per cent, from $115,779,342 last year to $113,443,507. Total permit values rose 58 per cent in Chicago, but declined 14 per cent in the suburbs, and 20 per cent in the unincorporated areas. (A-15

Drive Children To Distraction

by MICHAEL NASH
Staff Writer

Some area merchants have found that parents can shop more comfortably—and more thoroughly—if they do not have to worry about what their children are doing in, or perhaps to, the store.

Sensing that mom and dad often have to divide their attention between the kids and the shopping, merchants sometimes provide facilities to distract or at least pacify the children.

Klehm's nursery, Algonquin and Arlington Heights Roads, keeps the kids busy with wooden horses and teeter-totters. The horses are small and crudely carved. An adult may not pay much attention, but a child's uninhibited imagination can bring them to life. While mom and dad are choosing an evergreen for the front yard or peony plants for the garden, their child can bust broncos or chase Indians.

More conventional types can go up and down on the teeter-totter providing the child can find a partner.

AL GOEBBERT, a salesman at the nursery, says that most disagreements over who will play on the horses are settled by the participants and that he has never had to become a referee.

Goebbert says that the horses serve their purpose and that sometime this fall a large dragon-like figure will be added for the kids to climb on.

Joseph Schneller of Schneller Furniture, 32 S. Evergreen Ave., Arlington Heights, often packs as many as 25 children into a small television room he has provided for them.

Schneller explains that buying furniture requires concentration; color schemes have to be kept in mind, and there is often a considerable investment involved. Restless children inhibit sales in large-item stores such as his.

It is impossible to predict which program a group of children will watch, says Schneller. He has seen a group of girls watching a baseball game and many times the children seem more interested in the adult programs.

Occasionally, says Schneller, a middle-aged "child" is seen gazing at the screen along with the younger crowd.

SCHNELLER'S television room has been so successful that he plans a larger addition with supervision and play facilities. It would probably be a more rugged room where the kids could enjoy a soft drink while mom and dad read price tags.

Robbert Debbout of Colonial Suburban Shoes, 19 N. Bothwell, Palatine, gestures toward a tank of tropical fish in his store and says, "That's my babysitter."

The popularity of the tank with children is attested to by the small hand prints which cover it.

DEBBOUT SAYS that even the very young children are fascinated, apparently just by the motion of the fish.

A common sight in many area shopping centers is the horse or rocket ship which a dime will set in motion for a few minutes. Steve Sharer, manager of Grant's Department Store, 3225 N. Kirchoff, Rolling Meadows, says that the "twirlybird" ride in front of the store is used mainly as a "bribe." Children are promised a ride on the twirlybird by parents in exchange for good behavior in the store.

One woman shopper who was contemplating the twirlybird with a small child commented that she had six more children and had better not get in the habit of spending 10 cents each time they needed pacifying.

JOHN HUGHES, president of the Palatine Chamber of Commerce and vice president of the Palatine National Bank, explains the other side of the story: some merchants would rather have the children around the counters than distracted somewhere.

Palatine, says Hughes, has few large item stores, and many merchants stock items such as candy, novelties, games, toys, books and hobbies. The last thing stores which stock this kind of item want to do is keep children from the counters.

Even the bank sees value in encouraging children to come in with their parents. Hughes says that the suckers and model cars in the bank are there specifically to bring in children.

Children who come into the bank, explains Hughes, often develop the habit and will continue to do so as they get older. Some people, says Hughes, actually grow up somewhat afraid of the impersonal image which a bank can sometimes generate. To combat this, children are made to feel at ease in banks at as early an age as possible.

THE BANK encourages children's accounts, which are loss items, feeling that it will someday pay off. Dealing with children in this manner does not have immediate results, but Hughes explains that it does pay off in the long run and it is a recognized concept in banking.

Ray Soucie of Soucie Jewelry, 1 N. Bothwell, Palatine, says that he spends as much time with a child who comes into the store as with an adult. The child will sometimes return with the parent or at least the parent's money to buy the item he was looking at.

Soucie says that he has received calls of thanks from parents for spending time with a child, thereby strengthening customer relations which are vital to any merchant.

Whether to encourage children or distract them is a decision every merchant must make, and it depends mainly on his type of merchandise. But a sampling of area merchants indicates that many side with one television dealer who, when asked what he had in the store for kids to play with, answered quickly, "Not the television sets." Clark Predicts Change In Law Enforcement

Illinois Atty. Gen. William G. Clark predicts that police work in Illinois will become more sophisticated as a result of recent U. S. Supreme Court rulings dealing with the arrest and conviction of persons who are charged with committing criminal acts.

Clark addressed the Illinois Association of Chiefs of Police at its annual membership meeting at the Holiday Inn East in Springfield.

"THERE ARE many who criticize the recent Supreme Court rulings," said Clark, "and there is an honest difference of opinion between those involved in law enforcement and the citizenry as a whole concerning the recent rulings of the court which many persons feel tend to protect the criminal rather than the citizenry against acts of violence.

"One thing, however, is quite certain," said Clark, "and that is that once the Supreme Court has ruled and interpreted the law, their decision is final and must be followed under our system of justice." He therefore urged those who are engaged in law enforcement to adhere strictly to laws dealing with stop and frisk searches and seizures, admissibility of confessions and right of counsel.

"The courts have repeatedly demonstrated, that they will not tolerate the violation of the civil and legal rights of any citizen by police or the prosecution no matter how heinous the crime that was committed," Clark said. "Unless the mandates of the courts are followed to the letter in the apprehension and conviction of those charged with criminal activities, the end result will be the release of the prisoner to prey again upon society after many years of wasted police work and courtroom procedures and at great expense to the tax paying public."

CLARK SUGGESTED a better educational program of law enforcement training, starting with the arresting officer, the subsequent investigation, incarceration and courtroom procedure.

He urged the police chiefs to work as closely as possible with the state's attorneys of the various counties of Illinois so that they would be better informed of the various technicalities of the law in dealing with persons accused of criminal activities.

Obedience Dog Show August 21

Northwest Obedience Club will hold its ninth annual obedience trial Sunday, Aug. 21 at Prospect High School field house.

This show will be appealing to local dog handlers working for that "leg" they need and also for people who have problems with their dogs to observe how, with a little time and training, they can control their dogs.

ABOUT 200 dogs will compete for top scores with 100 trophies and ribbons to be awarded as prizes. For both the handler's and the dog's comfort, the show will be held inside the field house, starting at 9 a.m. and continuing most of the day.

Some of the dogs competing in this show will also be seen on exhibition during Arlington Heights Sidewalk Days this week.

Entries for the Aug. 21 show will close Aug. 9. Information is available from Mrs. Walter Ross, 358-1660. (B10

Your key to Service and Security

Fresh Sweet Corn Now Is Bargain Buy

According to U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics, you can save up to 6 per cent of your weekly food bill by buying meat, poultry, eggs, fruit and vegetables when your local market has them in good supply and features them as sale items.

That means a sizeable saving in a year. It is wise, therefore, to be flexible with your meal plans and serve the items that are in biggest supply.

Sweet corn supplies for Illinois are now at their peak. Harvesting began actively two weeks ago and 14 sweet corn counties will continue to harvest through the middle of September. During this period, six ears of corn will cost approximately 29 cents less than they do in December.

SINCE FRESH corn out of season is so much more expensive, most home makers serve canned or frozen corn throughout the fall, winter and spring. When summer comes, fresh sweet corn sems to demand being served right on the cob. Don't let this demand limit you to simply boiling the corn, however. Be imaginative with your Illinois corn-on-the-cob.

Try baking corn in the shucks. Wash it, and place in a moderate oven (350-375 degrees F) and bake until tender. The shuck holds in the steam formed during baking so that the corn stays moist.

Or bake shucked corn in aluminum foil. Better yet, bake it over the coals when you barbecue. Season corn with butter, salt and pepper before wrappoing in foil. Then bake 20 to 30 minutes over open coals or in a 400 degree F oven. For an extra flavor treat, brush herb butter or your favorite barbecue sauce on the corn before wrapping. (A-15

Receipts for Streamwood were $2,100; Itasca, $1,912; Schaumburg, $1,835; Hanover Park, $1,732; Wood Dale, $1,556; Glendale Heights, $967; Buffalo Grove, $865; Bartlett, $562; and Bloomingdale $531. (A15

City Experts Offer Local Housing Aid

By JOAN LORENSON
Staff Writer

Two city housing experts will help the North Cook Opportunity Council (Norwesco) deal with the problems of Mexican-Americans in substandard housing.

Jim Twomey, director of the Community Renewal Foundation, a not-for-profit housing corporation of the Chicago City Missionary Society, will act as a consultant to the Norwesco and the Northwest Church Council for Migrant Aid.

The Foundation's attorney, Richard Newhouse, will represent the tenants at 2150 Mount Prospect Road, when their landlord appears in court to face charges of having housing in violation of Cook County zoning and health laws. This is the first of the county's test court cases on the sub-standard housing issue.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the help of the two experts came at a meeting Sunday in the home of Virgil Bass, 3109 Swallow Lane, Rolling Meadows. Members of Norwesco, the Latin American Association, two priests from the Divine Word Seminary at Techny, and interested Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect residents met to discuss further steps to re-locate Mexican-American families in better housing.

The group agreed it would have to provide Newhouse with specific information so he could ask the Circuit Court judge for a delay in eviction on the basis gro ps were trying to relocate the families and the county had not been active in helping the re-location.

Henry Lacine, 207 N. Russell, Mount Prospect, will ask County Board Pres. Seymour Simon for specific information on how the county will help families re-locate.

Bass, chairman of the Northwest Church Council for Migrant Aid and vice chairman of Norwesco, told the group he hopes Twomey may be key in "shaking loose" funds from the Cook County Public Housing Authority for use on the suburban Mexican-Americans' housing problems. Such funds could be used for loans for new construction on available land or for purchase of housing to allow low interest for easier payments. Bass hopes to get $100,000 to $200,000 "seed money" to start working on the housing. He noted that the CHA, in granting the money to the not-for-profit housing corporation of Norwesco, would not need the approval of local communities, according to Twomey.

BOB NELSON, 561 Sycamore, Elk Grove Village, volunteered to contact industries in the area to see if they might make funds available to help with housing or would use their influence with local government. The group suggested industries need manpower and many employ Mexican-Americans who would have to move if the county prosecutes its substandard housing cases.

Nelson will make a written report to Bass when he completes his assignment.

Bass suggested contacts be made with Holy Family Hospital, Sears Roebuck Co. in Golf Mill, Charles Bruning Co. in Mount Prospect, Littelfuse, Inc. of Des Plaines, and Kay Musical of Elk Grove Village. Some of these companies have expressed concern about employes' housing problems.

Industrialists might also be included in a group appearing before the village boards in the area asking them to pass a resolution endorsing the use of funds from CHA for housing. Village governments must be reassured that low income housing does not mean huge housing projects, the group agreed.

Bass indicated that mortgage money is tighter with almost seven per cent interest. On a home of $13,000 this would mean a family would have to pay a minimum of $150 per month which few families can afford. They can apply for the mortgage using only the head of the household's one income, he said. He still is investigating the possibility of a rent supplement.

THE GROUP agreed to contact individually its clergymen and officials of banks and savings and loan institutions to try to get credit approval for some of the Mexican-American families.

In other action, an architect working with Alpha and Omega Christian Fellowship of Elk Grove Village, has designed low income A-frame structures and he hopes a local bank may finance their construction.

A tenant of a house on the property at 2150 Mount Prospect Road told the group several families fearing eviction had moved to Indiana leaving factory jobs for agriculture work. Another family left for California to return to agriculture work. One of the families had been in the area for 11 years working in the same plant for 10 of those years.

Moving to Chicago is considered "a last resort" for these people, Bass said. They prefer living in a less urban environment, he added.

Schedule Flower Market Aug. 4-6

The Skokie Valley Community Hospital Volunteers, a group of 3,000 workers from throughout the Chicago area, are currently in preparation for the Flower Market Benefit, to be held at Old Orchard shopping center Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 4, 5 and 6.

The benefit project, under the direction of Mrs. Lazlo K. Gonye, chairman of volunteers, and Mrs. H. E. Moore chairman of the flower market project, has grown from an idea to reality in a few short months. Volunteers will staff the market areas, spread under awnings, in flower carts and on graceful umbrella tables throughout Old Orchard. They will sell, wrap and select from an abundant variety of fresh plants and flowers for customers. Although many of the flower market staff have gardens of their own, special classes were attended by all volunteers for the market.

Old Orchard will sponsor the event, creating an authentic village square atmosphere with colorful props and decorations and supplying all the scouts with hamburgers and Cokes, among other things. The market will be open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m., Thursday and Friday, and from 10 until 5 o'clock on Saturday. (B10

Research Grant Is Awarded Hospital

A $225,000 research grant has been awarded to Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

The five-year grant will continue support of a research program on the nature of the Entamoeba histolytica. The grant will support the work of Dr. James G. Shaffer, principal investigator, and Dr. Richard Albach, co-investigator.

Entamoeba histolytica is an amoeba which causes amebic dysentery, a disease common in tropical and sub-tropical areas, and chronic amebiasis found in temperate zones. Health experts estimate that up to 20 per cent of the world's population suffers from chronic amebic infection.

THE RESEARCH program being carried out at Lutheran General is designed to help developmethods of diagnosing the disease as well as determining the exact nature of the cellular biology of the organism.

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease is part of the National Institutes of Health, which in turn is part of the Public Health Service of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Dr. Shaffer is director of microbiology and hospital epidemiology. He has been at Lutheran General since 1960. Dr. Shaffer received his undergraduate degree from Manchester College, North Manchester, Ind., and his doctor's degree from John Hopkins University.

Dr. Albach is research associate and has been at Lutheran General since 1963. He received his bachelor and master's degrees from the University of Illinois and his Ph.D from Northwestern University.

RAMBLER
1966 Rambler Classic

American Motors was the only U.S. car maker whose sales were up in June from June,'65. Seems more and more people are discovering that our new styling, performance and advanced safety features add up to greater value...especially now that savings are at their model-year highest!

Building safe cars is in the great American Motors tradition. And none have offered more safety features — and more lasting value — than our 1966 Ambassadors, Marlins, Rambler Classics, and Rambler Americans.

All-around protection. Get behind the wheel of any American Motors car and notice how solid, smooth and quiet it rides. The old way to build bodies is to start with a frame and bolt a body on top of it. In all American Motors cars, body-and-frame are welded into a single unit, surrounding you with strong, rigid box-section girders. Thousands of welds join these girders, adding to the strength and durability of the body. We pioneered Single-Unit construction and we've been improving on it for 26 years.

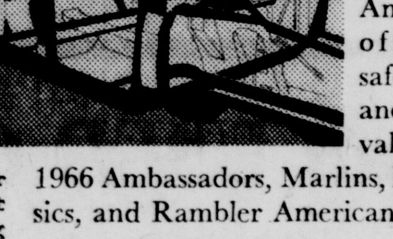
A year-ahead safety feature. Starting with 1962 models, we began equipping all our cars with a Double-Safety braking system, simply because we thought all cars should have it. Starting next year, all cars will, which makes us just a little proud of our leadership with this safety feature.

The heart of the Double-Safety braking system is a tandem master cylinder. Inside are two separate reservoirs for hydraulic fluid, each connected to its own set of hydraulic lines. If a front or rear wheel brake line should lose its pressure, the system serving the other wheels would still function, stopping the car. This vital extra margin of safety is standard on all '66 American Motors cars.

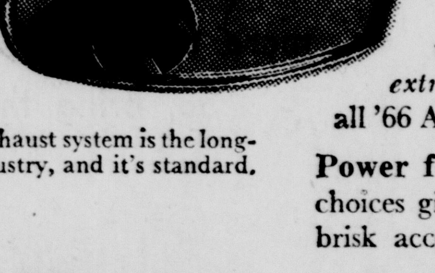
Power for safe passing. Our five V-8 choices give you ample reserve power for brisk acceleration when necessary. Same goes for our advanced-design six-cylinder engines. Even our smallest Six, standard in Rambler American, won honors for acceleration and gas economy in 1966!

Other "safety firsts." Our Ceramic-Armored exhaust system — an American Motors exclusive — is the longest-lasting in the business. Back in 1950, we pioneered in offering seat belts. We were also among the leaders in making available safety headrests* and power disc brakes*.

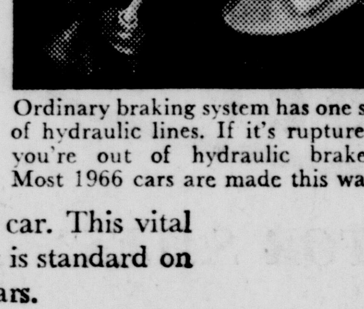
Get a good deal—and a good deal more! Right now your American Motors/Rambler dealer can offer you a wide choice of safety-built '66s. And right now, savings are at a model-year high. See him today!



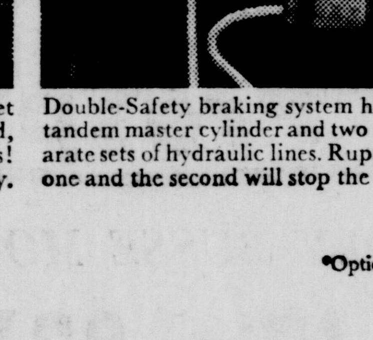
In our Single-Unit body, strong welded box girders surround you.



Our Ceramic-Armored exhaust system is the longest-lasting one in the industry, and it's standard.



Ordinary braking system has one set of hydraulic lines. If it's ruptured, you're out of hydraulic brakes! Most 1966 cars are made this way.



Double-Safety braking system has a tandem master cylinder and two separate sets of hydraulic lines. Rupture one and the second will stop the car.

*Optional.

Fresh Sweet Corn Now Is Bargain Buy

According to U.S. Department of Agriculture statistics, you can save up to 6 per cent of your weekly food bill by buying meat, poultry, eggs, fruit and vegetables when your local market has them in good supply and features them as sale items.

That means a sizeable saving in a year. It is wise, therefore, to be flexible with your meal plans and serve the items that are in biggest supply.

Sweet corn supplies for Illinois are now at their peak. Harvesting began actively two weeks ago and 14 sweet corn counties will continue to harvest through the middle of September. During this period, six ears of corn will cost approximately 29 cents less than they do in December.

SINCE FRESH corn out of season is so much more expensive, most home makers serve canned or frozen corn throughout the fall, winter and spring. When summer comes, fresh sweet corn sems to demand being served right on the cob. Don't let this demand limit you to simply boiling the corn, however. Be imaginative with your Illinois corn-on-the-cob.

Try baking corn in the shucks. Wash it, and place in a moderate oven (350-375 degrees F) and bake until tender. The shuck holds in the steam formed during baking so that the corn stays moist.

Or bake shucked corn in aluminum foil. Better yet, bake it over the coals when you barbecue. Season corn with butter, salt and pepper before wrapping in foil. Then bake 20 to 30 minutes over open coals or in a 400 degree F oven. For an extra flavor treat, brush herb butter or your favorite barbecue sauce on the corn before wrapping. (A-15

Receipts for Streamwood were $2,100; Itasca, $1,912; Schaumburg, $1,835; Hanover Park, $1,732; Wood Dale, $1,556; Glendale Heights, $967; Buffalo Grove, $865; Bartlett, $562; and Bloomingdale $531. (A15

City Experts Offer Local Housing Aid

By JOAN LORENSON
Staff Writer

Two city housing experts will help the North Cook Opportunity Council (Norwesco) deal with the problems of Mexican-Americans in substandard housing.

Jim Twomey, director of the Community Renewal Foundation, a not-for-profit housing corporation of the Chicago City Missionary Society, will act as a consultant to the Norwesco and the Northwest Church Council for Migrant Aid.

The Foundation's attorney, Richard Newhouse, will represent the tenants at 2150 Mount Prospect Road, when their landlord appears in court to face charges of having housing in violation of Cook County zoning and health laws. This is the first of the county's test court cases on the sub-standard housing issue.

ANNOUNCEMENT of the help of the two experts came at a meeting Sunday in the home of Virgil Bass, 3109 Swallow Lane, Rolling Meadows. Members of Norwesco, the Latin American Association, two priests from the Divine Word Seminary at Techny, and interested Elk Grove Village and Mount Prospect residents met to discuss further steps to re-locate Mexican-American families in better housing.

The group agreed it would have to provide Newhouse with specific information so he could ask the Circuit Court judge for a delay in eviction on the basis gro ps were trying to relocate the families and the county had not been active in helping the re-location.

Henry Lacine, 207 N. Russell, Mount Prospect, will ask County Board Pres. Seymour Simon for specific information on how the county will help families re-locate.

Bass, chairman of the Northwest Church Council for Migrant Aid and vice chairman of Norwesco, told the group he hopes Twomey may be key in "shaking loose" funds from the Cook County Public Housing Authority for use on the suburban Mexican-Americans' housing problems. Such funds could be used for loans for new construction on available land or for purchase of housing to allow low interest for easier payments. Bass hopes to get $100,000 to $200,000 "seed money" to start working on the housing. He noted that the CHA, in granting the money to the not-for-profit housing corporation of Norwesco, would not need the approval of local communities, according to Twomey.

BOB NELSON, 561 Sycamore, Elk Grove Village, volunteered to contact industries in the area to see if they might make funds available to help with housing or would use their influence with local government. The group suggested industries need manpower and many employ Mexican-Americans who would have to move if the county prosecutes its substandard housing cases.

Nelson will make a written report to Bass when he completes his assignment.

Bass suggested contacts be made with Holy Family Hospital, Sears Roebuck Co. in Golf Mill, Charles Bruning Co. in Mount Prospect, Littelfuse, Inc. of Des Plaines, and Kay Musical of Elk Grove Village. Some of these companies have expressed concern about employes' housing problems.

Industrialists might also be included in a group appearing before the village boards in the area asking them to pass a resolution endorsing the use of funds from CHA for housing. Village governments must be reassured that low income housing does not mean huge housing projects, the group agreed.

Bass indicated that mortgage money is tighter with almost seven per cent interest. On a home of $13,000 this would mean a family would have to pay a minimum of $150 per month which few families can afford. They can apply for the mortgage using only the head of the household's one income, he said. He still is investigating the possibility of a rent supplement.

THE GROUP agreed to contact individually its clergymen and officials of banks and savings and loan institutions to try to get credit approval for some of the Mexican-American families.

In other action, an architect working with Alpha and Omega Christian Fellowship of Elk Grove Village, has designed low income A-frame structures and he hopes a local bank may finance their construction.

A tenant of a house on the property at 2150 Mount Prospect Road told the group several families fearing eviction had moved to Indiana leaving factory jobs for agriculture work. Another family left for California to return to agriculture work. One of the families had been in the area for 11 years working in the same plant for 10 of those years.

Moving to Chicago is considered "a last resort" for these people, Bass said. They prefer living in a less urban environment, he added.

Schedule Flower Market Aug. 4-6

The Skokie Valley Community Hospital Volunteers, a group of 3,000 workers from throughout the Chicago area, are currently in preparation for the Flower Market Benefit, to be held at Old Orchard shopping center Thursday, Friday and Saturday, August 4, 5 and 6.

The benefit project, under the direction of Mrs. Lazlo K. Gonye, chairman of volunteers, and Mrs. H. E. Moore chairman of the flower market project, has grown from an idea to reality in a few short months. Volunteers will staff the market areas, spread under awnings, in flower carts and on graceful umbrella tables throughout Old Orchard. They will sell, wrap and select from an abundant variety of fresh plants and flowers for customers. Although many of the flower market staff have gardens of their own, special classes were attended by all volunteers for the market.

Old Orchard will sponsor the event, creating an authentic village square atmosphere with colorful props and decorations and supplying all the scouts with hamburgers and Cokes, among other things. The market will be open from 10 a.m. until 9 p.m., Thursday and Friday, and from 10 until 5 o'clock on Saturday. (B10

Research Grant Is Awarded Hospital

A $225,000 research grant has been awarded to Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, by the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

The five-year grant will continue support of a research program on the nature of the Entamoeba histolytica. The grant will support the work of Dr. James G. Shaffer, principal investigator, and Dr. Richard Albach, co-investigator.

Entamoeba histolytica is an amoeba which causes amebic dysentery, a disease common in tropical and sub-tropical areas, and chronic amebiasis found in temperate zones. Health experts estimate that up to 20 per cent of the world's population suffers from chronic amebic infection.

THE RESEARCH program being carried out at Lutheran General is designed to help developmethods of diagnosing the disease as well as determining the exact nature of the cellular biology of the organism.

The National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Disease is part of the National Institutes of Health, which in turn is part of the Public Health Service of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

Dr. Shaffer is director of microbiology and hospital epidemiology. He has been at Lutheran General since 1960. Dr. Shaffer received his undergraduate degree from Manchester College, North Manchester, Ind., and his doctor's degree from John Hopkins University.

Dr. Albach is research associate and has been at Lutheran General since 1963. He received his bachelor and master's degrees from the University of Illinois and his Ph.D from Northwestern University.

RAMBLER

1966 Rambler Classic

American Motors was the only U.S. car maker whose sales were up in June from June,'65. Seems more and more people are discovering that our new styling, performance and advanced safety features add up to greater value...especially now that savings are at their model-year highest!

Building safe cars is in the great American Motors tradition. And none have offered more safety features — and more lasting value — than our 1966 Ambassadors, Marlins, Rambler Classics, and Rambler Americans.

All-around protection. Get behind the wheel of any American Motors car and notice how solid, smooth and quiet it rides. The old way to build bodies is to start with a frame and bolt a body on top of it. In all American Motors cars, body-and-frame are welded into a single unit, surrounding you with strong, rigid box-section girders. Thousands of welds join these girders, adding to the strength and durability of the body. We pioneered Single-Unit construction and we've been improving on it for 26 years.

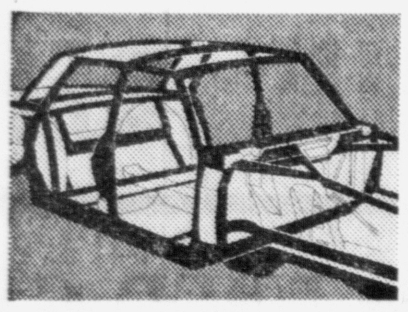
A year-ahead safety feature. Starting with 1962 models, we began equipping all our cars with a Double-Safety braking system, simply because we thought all cars should have it. Starting next year, all cars will, which makes us just a little proud of our leadership with this safety feature.

The heart of the Double-Safety braking system is a tandem master cylinder. Inside are two separate reservoirs for hydraulic fluid, each connected to its own set of hydraulic lines. If a front or rear wheel brake line should lose its pressure, the system serving the other wheels would still function, stopping the car. This vital extra margin of safety is standard on all '66 American Motors cars.

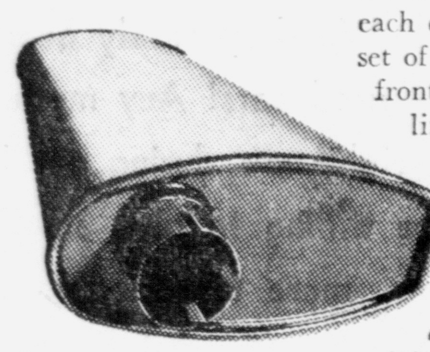
Power for safe passing. Our five V-8 choices give you ample reserve power for brisk acceleration when necessary. Same goes for our advanced-design six-cylinder engines. Even our smallest Six, standard in Rambler American, won honors for acceleration and gas economy in 1966!

Other "safety firsts." Our Ceramic-Armored exhaust system — an American Motors exclusive — is the longest-lasting in the business. Back in 1950, we pioneered in offering seat belts. We were also among the leaders in making available safety headrests* and power disc brakes*.

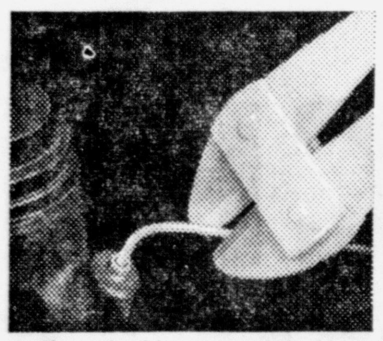
Get a good deal—and a good deal more! Right now your American Motors/Rambler dealer can offer you a wide choice of safety-built '66s. And right now, savings are at a model-year high. See him today!



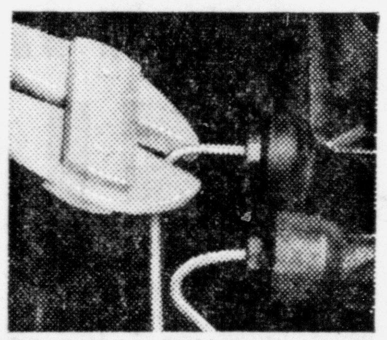
In our Single-Unit body, strong welded box girders surround you.



Our Ceramic-Armored exhaust system is the longest-lasting one in the industry, and it's standard.



Ordinary braking system has one set of hydraulic lines. If it's ruptured, you're out of hydraulic brakes! Most 1966 cars are made this way.



Double-Safety braking system has a tandem master cylinder and two separate sets of hydraulic lines. Rupture one and the second will stop the car.

Dutch Elm Beetle Damage Rate Low this Year

Disease Toll Down From Last Summer

by DAN PRIBILSKI
Staff Writer

The scourge of Dutch elm disease generally is not prevalent this year in northwest suburbia.

Only Palatine reports a high rate of diseased trees.

Other communities such as Wheeling, Arlington Heights, Roselle, Bensenville and Elk Grove Village report only a modest or non-existent number of diseased trees.

Some public works directors view the near diseaseless year as a possible by-product of the tornado which tore through the suburbs in June.

Trees which had been infected were knocked down or destroyed before the disease spread, theorized Eugene Willroth, Arlington Heights public works director.

June would have been the most prevalent time for spread of the disease by the elm beetle.

But whether the disease rate is high as it was last year or low like this year, one fact remains:

NORTHWEST suburbia is becoming an elmless area.

Since elms were first attacked 35 years ago by the Dutch elm beetle, literally thousands of beautiful trees have been destroyed.

Like the bald eagle, the elm could become a rare thing.

They are not being replaced. Instead, other trees have been planted. For instance, Palatine has an annual tree planting program but excludes elms.

Maples, American ash, hackberry and thornless honey locust are offered.

In the newer municipalities like Hoffman Estates, elms never were planted. Other, more durable types were.

To save the elm from extinction, the area could use a conservationist organization like Elms Unlimited, 60 West Prospect Street, Waldwick, N. J., 07463.

THE ORGANIZATION was formed last year and has met with great response. Through its newsletter, Elm Bulletin, people have been helped with advice on elm care and disease prevention. In the East, elm planting programs have been launched with the aid of Boy Scout groups.

Preserving the elm on the American scene is a two-pronged war. The first is conservation and replanting. The second is research to rid the land of the disease.

For many years, chemical companies have battled to develop an antidote. Several have been developed but their effectiveness is still inconclusive.

IN PLACE OF a really effective cure, DDT spraying has been employed. Spraying is not only attacked because it seems to be ineffective all too often but because it is harmful to wildlife.

G. D. Searle & Co. in Skokie is experimenting with a "serum" for injection into elms.

A spokesman for the company summed up the progress this way: "We can't say we're being successful and we can't say either that we're unsuccessful."

Searle this summer will carry out extensive tests in areas across the nation where Dutch elm disease is highly prevalent. A community in the Chicago area is included, but the spokesman declined to name it.

In Bensenville, Armin Korthauer, public works director, has experimented with another chemical, Bedrin, developed by Shell Chemical Co.

THE NEW chemical received government clearance last year. Bedrin is used to vaccinate healthy trees — it is a preventive rather than a cure for an already infected tree.

Until a "sure" chemical is developed, people and governments are left with such cures as cutting the trees, expert pruning and use of DDT sprays.

Five area villages spray the trees. Despite the precaution, nearly 300 trees will be cut this year, reports Palatine public works director James Bennett.

The village had its trees sprayed in April. After this time the elm beetle spawns.

Six weeks ago, a count showed only 31 infected trees.

"But with the hot weather, the disease seems to have mushroomed," Bennett said.

OTHER VILLAGES, like Bensenville, have concluded that spraying is useless.

This dichotomy of opinion is seen in larger governmental units. Cook County sprays its forest preserves; DuPage County does not.

Individuals can do a lot to help where an elm is on their property.

Prompt pruning when a tree is damaged by a storm can mean not only saving that tree but checking the spread of the disease.

Last year, due to ice storm damage, the toll was high. Communities like Arlington Heights and Palatine which have hundreds of fine old elms were particularly hard hit. The massiveness of the cleanup and problems involved allowed the beetle to get a head start.

Root Beer's 100th Birthday Evokes Nostalgic Memories

THURS., JULY 28, 1966

"Who wants rootbeer?" called Mother.

"I do!" shouted everybody.

Then—

"Great!" beamed Dad as he drank.

"Oh, boy!" chuckled Junior.

"Delicious!" murmered sister over her glass.

"There's plenty more," announced Mother.

"Hooray!" chorused all.

Thus went the gripping dialog on a Saturday Evening Post Magazine root beer advertisement, circa 1925.

RESEARCH into the history of the soft drink on its 100th anniversary showed that early ads generally fell into one of two categories:

—Either they featured an unattractive little girl with receding blonde curls and widely spaced teeth, or —They were illustrated with photos of Greek statues of virile men and women.

"End winter fatigue—regain summer pep," promised one ad for root beer, a "percolated blend of the juices of 16 rare herbs, barks and berries . . . "

BLENDING those rare items was the brainchild of a Philadelphia pharmacist, Charles E. Hires, who started in business at Sixth and Spruce streets in the "City of Brotherly Love" in 1866.

Soon after opening shop, he vacationed on a farm in New Jersey, where he tasted a drink made from herbs and roots gathered by the host's wife. She shared her recipe for the drink with the young pharmacist, who decided he could sell the makings for root beer packaged to save women time and trouble.

After two weeks without sales, Hires began advertising his root beer extract in Philadelphia newspapers and the product caught on.

But the extract hardly saved much time and trouble. Rather, root beer became one of the original do-it-yourself projects. To make the drink at home ("One package makes 80 glasses—25 cents") required all the paraphernalia of a pop-bottling factory: caps, a capper, extract, bottles, sugar, pure water, yeast—oh, yes, and a warm place to lay bottles on their sides.

HIRES DEBATED what to call his "convenient home brew." "Herb tea," "herb beer" and "root beer" were names considered. The latter was settled on because Hires believed beer appealed more than tea to men, and he hoped his soft drink would find favor with heavy beer drinkers.

Though it may not have, root beer did succeed famously—so much so that, today, it's celebrating its centennial. And a newly created nonprofit, educational trade association, the Root Beer Institute, is directing the first annual National Root Beer Week August 14-20, a celebration for the entire industry.

It was only a matter of years after root beer was introduced before it was selling well enough for one firm to report its year's sales had reached the equivalent of five glasses of root beer per every man, woman and child in the United States!

All root beer was made at home in those days. One firm that still sells root beer extract reports hundreds of thousands of dollars of sales today in rural areas "and to people with a strong sense of nostalgia for the old days."

THE MAJORITY of root beer sales, of course, are in bottles in restaurants and groceries, or in draft at lunch counters or drive-in restaurants.

Root beer today is a $225 million-a-year business, and its image as a modern-day soft drink appealing to the "in" people is enhanced no end by the well-known fact that among its connoisseurs is President Johnson. Illinois Senator Everett Dirksen, honored recently with a plaque proclaming him "IRBL No. 1"—an international root beer lover—recalled making root beer at home as a child in Pekin, Ill.

Root beer began discarding its original "home brew" image in 1931 when the popular product became available "ready-mixed" in bottles as we know it today.

Even in those days, the root beer industry was searching for new merchandising ideas, just as its Root Berr Institute is now. Milk shakes using root beer syrup were being promoted 30 years ago, much as the RBI today is publicizing combinations of root beer with peppermint-stick and other ice creams.

"Root beer," reminisced an industry oldster not long ago, "is truly an original bit of Americana."

Disease Toll Down From Last Summer

by DAN PRIBILSKI
Staff Writer

The scourge of Dutch elm disease generally is not prevalent this year in northwest suburbia.

Only Palatine reports a high rate of diseased trees.

Other communities such as Wheeling, Arlington Heights, Roselle, Bensenville and Elk Grove Village report only a modest or non-existent number of diseased trees.

Some public works directors view the near diseaseless year as a possible by-product of the tornado which tore through the suburbs in June.

Trees which had been infected were knocked down or destroyed before the disease spread, theorized Eugene Willroth, Arlington Heights public works director.

June would have been the most prevalent time for spread of the disease by the elm beetle.

But whether the disease rate is high as it was last year or low like this year, one fact remains:

NORTHWEST suburbia is becoming an elmless area.

Since elms were first attacked 35 years ago by the Dutch elm beetle, literally thousands of beautiful trees have been destroyed.

Like the bald eagle, the elm could become a rare thing.

They are not being replaced. Instead, other trees have been planted. For instance, Palatine has an annual tree planting program but excludes elms.

Maples, American ash, hackberry and thornless honey locust are offered.

In the newer municipalities like Hoffman Estates, elms never were planted. Other, more durable types were.

To save the elm from extinction, the area could use a conservationist organization like Elms Unlimited, 60 West Prospect Street, Waldwick, N. J., 07463.

THE ORGANIZATION was formed last year and has met with great response. Through its newsletter, Elm Bulletin, people have been helped with advice on elm care and disease prevention. In the East, elm planting programs have been launched with the aid of Boy Scout groups.

Preserving the elm on the American scene is a two-pronged war. The first is conservation and replanting. The second is research to rid the land of the disease.

For many years, chemical companies have battled to develop an antidote. Several have been developed but their effectiveness is still inconclusive.

IN PLACE OF a really effective cure, DDT spraying has been employed. Spraying is not only attacked because it seems to be ineffective all too often but because it is harmful to wildlife.

TEDDY ROOSEVELT & GEO. DEWEY CAPTURE U.S. IMAGINATION IN ONE OF HISTORY'S SHORTEST WARS

Of all the major wars in history, the Spanish-American War was one of the shortest; yet, it produced far-reaching results and two memorable heroes.

First hero was Commodore George Dewey who sailed into Manila Bay and gave one of the unforgetable commands of all-time: "You may fire when ready, Gridley". Dewey then destroyed the Spanish fleet.

Second hero was Theodore Roosevelt who recruited a cavalry regiment nicknamed "Rough Riders" which charged San Juan Hill.

Some reasons for this war in 1898 were the blowing up of our battleship "Maine" and America's sympathy for Cubans reportedly being mis-treated by Spain.

The war lasted just a few months but our victory gave Cuba its independence, drove Spain out of Puerto Rico, and thus ended an era—as 400 years of Spanish rule in the New World came to a close.

Fire Delays Commuters

Train officials estimated 16,000 commuters, many of them living in Mount Prospect, were delayed from 30 minutes to an hour during the evening rush last Thursday evening when fire in a pedestrian underpass warped rails of the Chicago and North Western Railway.

The underpass is in the 6500 block of Northwest Highway, east of the railroad's Edison Park station, police said. Damage to rail ties and trestle underpinnings was estimated at $15,000.

All three tracks on the railroad's Wisconsin Division were closed and outbound traffic later routed over an industrial siding.

Plan Commission Opposes Private Use of Parkways

A policy on use of public parkways in Mount Prospect will be sent to the Mount Prospect Village Board by the plan commission.

The plan commission will recommend the board not allow private use of parkways except for access to property. The plan commission said zoning laws prohibit the use of parkways for all purposes except grass.

THE POLICY will prevent property owners from paving the parkways but will allow them driveways, members said.

Sending a letter on policy was recommended to the plan commission July 20 by Village Mgr. John Mongan. Mongan said he had stopped a firm in the process of paving the parkway.

The firm, Luther and Pedersen, Inc., 249 E. Prospect Ave., has asked the village board that it be allowed to complete paving. The president of the machine tool firm, C. S. Pedersen, said he was advised by Bernard Hemmeter, village engineer, that the frontage could be paved.

MONGAN SAID Hemmeter acted without board direction. The village board is the only authority that can state the use of public parkways, he said.

Even tree plantings on the parkways must be approved by the board, he said.

Mongan said that in the past a few other businesses had paved parkways.

"It's going to accelerate if we don't stop it now." the village manager said. "Someone points to someone else who has so done it."

Plan commission members said the village may in the future force those with paved parkways to break up the paving. Mongan said no one has ever legally been granted permission to take over the parkways for his own use. (M

Human Relations Body Recalls Activities

The Palatine Human Relations Commission submitted a report of its activities from 1964, the year it was formed, to 1966 to the village board Monday.

Members of the commission have accepted speaking engagements with local groups such as churches, Rotary, PTA and home owners' associations in order to "carry out the objective of educating the community to the advantages of equal opportunity for all residents," the report said.

Members also have taken an active part in human relations meetings and conferences in the surrounding area and in Chicago.

In September, 1964, a day was set aside as Human Relations Sunday and local ministers spoke about the commission and its objectives.

THE FIRST successful undertaking of the commission was the sponsoring of a talk by Les Brownlee, vice-chairman of the Illinois Commission of Human Relations and a radio and television broadcaster, at St. Theresa School, Nov. 2, 1964. More than 400 residents heard Brownlee tell of his experiences as the second Negro to move into Skokie.

The most important challenge to the commission occurred in March 1965 when a Negro purchased a home in Winston Park.

The commission submitted a 10-point plan to the village board designed to keep the move-in as quiet and uneventful as possible. The family moved in successfully.

THE MOST recent activity of the commission was the sponsoring of an essay contest held in conjunction with the English department of the Palatine High School. Sixty-three entires were received on the subject of "Facing Each Other with Understanding" or "How Do You Spell Brotherhood."

Barbara Wessner won and received a certificate of merit from the village board.

Mid-Point Reached At Playgrounds

Palatine Park District's supervised playgrounds reached the halfway mark of this summer's activities as they completed "baseball week." The big outing of the week was a trip to Wrigley Field to see the Chicago Cubs play the Cincinnati Reds. The Cubs won 6-1.

On Friday, children enjoyed their watermelon eating and seed-spitting contests.

During a busy week at Pleasant Hill, winners of a clothespin hunt were Carole Adamson and Robert Mitchell, while Steve Dwyer won the 7-Up contest. Tuesday afternoon the kids cooled off with a squirt gun fight and water relays. On special event day they enjoyed three-legged races, sack races, lifesaver relays, pass the potato and other relays.

AT JANE ADDAMS, children sang Christmas carols at their Christmas party, and Wendy Wiegelman and Micki Alexander built a manger scene. Currently, Jane Addams kids are constructing a papier mache donkey. While older children went to Wrigley Field, those 9 years old and under went to the River Trail Nature Center and Palwaukee Airport.

At Paddock School children put on a puppet show for which they constructed their own puppets, stage, and scenery. Winners of a dance contest were Rosemary Blaine and Karen Magnus.

Winston Park children started their own newspaper, which contains a lovelorn column and a "guess who" column. Chris Conway was the biggest eater at the Christmas party, devouring five pieces of cake and 10 glasses of Kool-Aid. Kerry Jones and Scott Dennett earned the most brownie points for helping the leaders keep the room neat. Mitchell Geison dressed up as a Civil War veteran and did the twist while Lois Brawn lost her tooth, but is keeping it in water so that it will grow. Kerry Andahl won the bubble gum contest, while Aimee Allen won a dance contest.

AT SANBORN, children are now constructing a clown out of what was originally supposed to be a snowman. The kids also painted their cabinet for valuables. Winners of the watermelon-eating contest were Robby Piotrowski, Tom Piotrowski, Bob Grab, Paul Sunseri, Nancy Lancaster, and playground leader Nanch Payne.

Playground leaders are finding their jobs easier thanks to the service of junior helpers, girls 12-14 who assist the leaders in many capacities. At Winston, junior helpers are Susan Bachelder, Betsy Koenig, Kristy Jones, Susie McWilliams and Debby Munch; Sanborn, Jane Gavigan and Jackie Kohler.

The commission is presently studying a resolution passed by the village of Skokie regarding a public policy declaration on equal housing opportunities.

Mid-Point Reached At Playgrounds

Palatine Park District's supervised playgrounds reached the halfway mark of this summer's activities as they completed "baseball week." The big outing of the week was a trip to Wrigley Field to see the Chicago Cubs play the Cincinnati Reds. The Cubs won 6-1.

On Friday, children enjoyed their watermelon eating and seed-spitting contests.

During a busy week at Pleasant Hill, winners of a clothespin hunt were Carole Adamson and Robert Mitchell, while Steve Dwyer won the 7-Up contest. Tuesday afternoon the kids cooled off with a squirt gun fight and water relays. On special event day they enjoyed three-legged races, sack races, lifesaver relays, pass the potato and other relays.

AT JANE ADDAMS, children sang Christmas carols at their Christmas party, and Wendy Wiegelman and Micki Alexander built a manger scene. Currently, Jane Addams kids are constructing a papier mache donkey. While older children went to Wrigley Field, those 9 years old and under went to the River Trail Nature Center and Palwaukee Airport.

At Paddock School children put on a puppet show for which they constructed their own puppets, stage, and scenery. Winners of a dance contest were Rosemary Blaine and Karen Magnus.

Winston Park children started their own newspaper, which contains a lovelorn column and a "guess who" column. Chris Conway was the biggest eater at the Christmas party, devouring five pieces of cake and 10 glasses of Kool-Aid. Kerry Jones and Scott Dennett earned the most brownie points for helping the leaders keep the room neat. Mitchell Geison dressed up as a Civil War veteran and did the twist while Lois Brawn lost her tooth, but is keeping it in water so that it will grow. Kerry Andahl won the bubble gum contest, while Aimee Allen won a dance contest.

AT SANBORN, children are now constructing a clown out of what was originally supposed to be a snowman. The kids also painted their cabinet for valuables. Winners of the watermelon-eating contest were Robby Piotrowski, Tom Piotrowski, Bob Grab, Paul Sunseri, Nancy Lancaster, and playground leader Nanch Payne.

Playground leaders are finding their jobs easier thanks to the service of junior helpers, girls 12-14 who assist the leaders in many capacities. At Winston, junior helpers are Susan Bachelder, Betsy Koenig, Kristy Jones, Susie McWilliams and Debby Munch; Sanborn, Jane Gavigan and Jackie Kohler.

℞ WE CAN COMPOUND COSMETIC PRESCRIPTIONS

It may surprise you to know ancient records mentioned that pharmacists, then called apothecaries, prepared the healing, and beautifying lotions and unquents. Even now Dermatologists prescribe some for problem skins. When directed by physicians, we can color them for different complexions.

A pharmacy is a safe place to get cosmetics. Of course we carry your favorite products and we know about their ingredients. If you ask for suggestions, we can give you informed professional answers. Our cosmetic inventory is controlled like our drugs so they always will be potently fresh.

YOUR DOCTOR CAN PHONE US when you need a medicine. Pick up your prescription if shopping nearby, or we will deliver promptly without extra charge. A great many people entrust us with their prescriptions. May we compound yours?

News of Palanois Park

Last weekend, William Noland attended the National Ski Patrol Conference at Michigan State University where he received a certificate for continuing work with the ski patrol. While in Michigan he went to Saginaw, where he was born, and visited relatives. It was his first trip there since he was 18 years old.

Mrs. Scott Tremper and son, Terry, of San Gabriel, Calif., spent a month in the Chicago area visiting her relatives and friends. She is the sister of Mrs. Godfried Herzog, 203 S. Ashland. One week was spent here in Palanois Park during which time they visited Hawthorne Melody Farm and took the tour at Haeger Pottery.

Since the weather was so hot, several evenings were spent with the entire families of two brothers and five sisters at the home of another of Mrs. Herzog's sisters, Mrs. William Menzer of Des Plaines. The main attraction was the Menzer's pool.

The climax of summer reunions for the Weigle family was on July 17 when a real family picnic was held at Laubaugh Woods. Forty-six aunts, uncles and cousins enjoyed the food, games and talking about the old times. Mr. and Mrs. Herzog, formerly Dorothy Weigle, and Teralyn were especially happy to see a cousin, Mrs. Sonja De Groot, who just returned from a two-month tour of Europe and is returning to California. Another cousin, Ada Hardt and his wife, who are also from California, were at the picnic.

THE LEN ERKFITZ family, 115 N. Elmwood had houseguests for a week. Their nieces and nephews. who came from Wisconsin were Luann Erkfitz from Walworth, Cheryl Warren of Milwaukee and Jimmy Cass from Beloit.

Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Blundstone, 251 S. Elmwood, recently returned from a ten-day vacation. They took a very liesurely trip to Glacier National Park, Mont., one of their favorite spots for beautiful scenery and relaxation.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Thiel and Jane just returned from a trip to Niagara Falls and up through Northern New York State lake regions. They traveled through all of the New England States, spending a few days in each one.

While Mr. Thiel attended the Prudential Regional Convention at the Sheraton Boston, Jane visited her friend, Sue Callahan of Winston Park, who is spending the summer with her grandmother in Boston.

IT WAS A three-week vacation for Mr. and Mrs. Ron Warren and children, Jenny and Grant, of 19 S. Elmwood.

June 22 they left Palatine with a rented trailer and headed west. The second day in Albuquerque; N. Mex., the top of the trailer blew off and it took two days to have it repaired. An unplanned side trip was taken to Carlsbad Caverns and White Sand.

After they picked up the trailer and stopped at the Petrified Forest National Park, in which the Painted Desert is located, they moved on to the Grand Canyon. They had a breath-taking view 2500 feet below the rim of the canyon while the plane tipped first one way and then the other.

Highlight of their vacation was Navajo National Monment. They took an eight hour horseback ride to some remote cliff dwellings on Navajo ponies and had Indian guides. They climbed a 100-foot ladder to reach the dwellings where they found everything just as the Indians built them in 1250.

July 21, Bradford Penkala was one year old. To help him celebrate at 156 N. Linden were his paternal grandparents from Roselle, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Penkala; Mr. and Mrs. Ken Penkala, Debbie, Dianne, Kenny and Karen from Bartlett; Mrs. Mary Hoth, sister of Mrs. Penkala, Sandy and Scott from Wheeling; and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gehrke and children, Sandy and Michael, who have just returned from a three-year service connected stay in Japan. The Gehrke family is happy to be back in the States, and will be living in Detroit, Mich.

MR. AND MRS. John Weir and family of 659 E. Palatine Road, celebrated Matthew's second birthday July 24 with the family of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Rudisill whose daughter, Laurie, was also celebrating her second birthday on Sunday. They had a picnic at Barrington Park.

We wish a very happy birthday to: Sharon Domoney and Michael Fritzsche on July 21; Mary Applehans, 14, July 21; Beth Krause, 11, July 22; Ruth Chaloupa, 11, July 26; Patty Ann Noland, 12, and Karl Lowry on July 27.

Your new reporter wasn't living in Palanois Park when Alice Terrill first wrote the column, but we did have upright phones with an operator there and the Police Chief was often seen around town helping the lady drivers park so they wouldn't get their bumpers stuck on the high curbs.

Your cooperation will be greatly appreciated. If you have any news for this column please call Kathleen Pitelka at FL 8-0095. (P

GRAND AWARD is a $1,000 scholarship savings bond and expense paid trip to New York City for the winner and parents. Winner of the 1965 program was Ricky D. Fuhriman, 12, of Downey, Idaho. He added, "The amount of enthusiasm and the number of participants in 1965 were beyond our expectations and from the early response this year the interest will be even greater."

700 Register At Wisconsin

Susan Mommsen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Mommsen, 714 S. Byron Court, Mount Prospect, was among the 700 students who visited the University of Wisconsin campus in Madison last week to register.

This was the sixth and last of the university's summer registration-orientation programs. The program has been under way since June 13 and registered about 4,000 students.

The new students will be returning to the University of Wisconsin campus Sept. 6 to continue their orientation. Fall semester classes begin Sept. 12.

New Coaches Are Being Delivered

Seating problems on Chicago and North Western Railway's commuter trains which are now carrying upward of 4,000 new weekday riders as a result of the Kennedy and Edens Expressway repair programs will be relieved starting this week when the railroad receives the first of 10 new bi-level coaches ordered last December.

The air-conditioned cars being rushed to completion at the South Chicago plant of Pullman-Standard will be delivered to the road at the rate of about two cars each week with the final delivery by Labor Day.

Ben W. Heineman, chairman of the North Western, explained that the coaches were ordered late last year in anticipation of normal growth requirements on the road's three suburban divisions.

"Because of the sudden influx of new riders diverted from the expressways now under repair, the new cars will be placed into service as soon as they are received," Heineman said.

"North Western is ready, able and willing to place a further order for new coaches if substantial numbers of former motoring commuters will continue to use North Western trains after the expressway repair program is completed."

THE 10 NEW coaches ordered at a cost of $1,703,000 will increase North Western's doubledeck suburban coach fleet to 230 cars containing more than 36,800 seats. Delivery of the cars will mark the third time the railroad has expanded its coach fleet since the modernization of all suburban trains was completed in 1961. The new cars increase North Western's investment in suburban equipment alone to more than $51 million.

Two of the 10 coaches on order will have engineer's cabs for remote control of the locomotives in the "push pull" operation developed by North Western for all of its suburban trains. The cars have air-conditioning, electric heating, fluorescent lighting, foam rubber posture-formed seats and tinted glare-resistant windows.

In recent weeks the road has carried upward of 85,000 weekday riders, Heineman said, approximately 4,000 to 5,000 more than are normally carried during the vacation month of July.

Because of steady rider growth in the past four years, the road's commuter fares have not increased since 1962. (B-10

Looking for a neighbor with a pool?

If you're the type that likes friendly neighbors . . . especially the kind who display their friendliness with an occasional loan of a garden tool . . . or a few lawn chairs when you have company . . . or even an invitation to share the swimming pool when it's hot . . . then you'll like living in the Northwest Suburbs.

People out this way are just naturally friendlier, usually because they're happier and more contented with the way of life that the Northwest Suburbs offer.

When you buy a home in this area, your Realtor usually sends your new neighbors an announcement about your arrival. This announcement goes a long way in making you feel at home . . . sort of introduced to the neighborhood.

This introduction by the Northwest Area Realtors is another way they have of offering you something extra in service so when you find a home you like in the Paddock Real Estate Section . . . call the Realtor who lists the home and let him show you the home and the neighborhood.

Of course, not all the neighbors will have swimming pools, but they'll make up for it with garden tools, free advice and friendliness.

Realtors Find Bill Still Objectionable

Despite a so-called "watering down" by the House Judiciary Committee, Title IV of the proposed Civil Rights Act of 1966 still "poses a potent threat" to owners of real property, Ralph H. Bruns, president of the Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors, warned.

"In an attempt to blunt some of the sharp criticism from all parts of the nation, the committee revised this forced housing provision to exempt an owner of a one to four-family structure, where one of the units is occupied by the owner, from the requirement of having to sell or rent to one not of his choice," Bruns explained.

"Though this ostensibly lessens the scope of the bill, property owners and Realtors continue their unflagging opposition to Title IV because the basic objection still remains—it destroys a fundamental right heretofore considered unassailable in this country. I refer to the right of freedom of contract, the right to sell or rent property—or not to sell or rent—to whomever one chooses without coercion from the government. "The bill, as revised, now covers owners of five-or-more unit properties," said Bruns. "But is the owner of the five units entitled to less protection from government harassment than the owner of four units, three units, or even one's own home?

"THE 'WATERED down' version of the bill, moreover, would make it impossible for the owner of any property, who entertains a preference as to race or religion of the purchaser or renter, to employ the professional services of a broker since the latter is barred by the legislation from executing a listing contract in which such a proviso is included. In other words, this bill would force all property owners, who insisted on freedom of choice, into a 'do-it-yourself' role whether they felt capable of completing the transaction by themselves or not."

While the goal of open occupancy "is praiseworthy, such legislation, which even enters the realm of thought control by empowering the government to question the reasons for certain acts, is the wrongway approach and will expose owners to capricious harassment by federal authorities," Bruns said.

HE SAID members of the National Association of Real Estate Boards throughout the nation and of the local board of Realtors would do their utmost to prevent Title IV from being enacted, and urged that all citizens write their Congressmen expressing opposition. (RE

Thy Neighbor

"Thy shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."
—Leviticus 19:18

It is, perhaps, not always easy to love our neighbor. He may say or do things which displease us. He may be a business competitor. He may succeed in some effort where we have failed. How can we love someone we do not like? Someone who does things better than we do them? Someone who is more successful, more popular?

We must, in justice to ourself, do the best that we can. We can begin with the Golden Rule. If we can follow the simple philosophy of treating others as we would like them to treat us, we grow in strength and character. If we pursue this course with diligence, it is bound to affect those with whom we come in contact.

This becomes a much easier thing to do if we begin by considering the good qualities of our neighbor before evaluating his faults. This is, after all, something we expect from others.

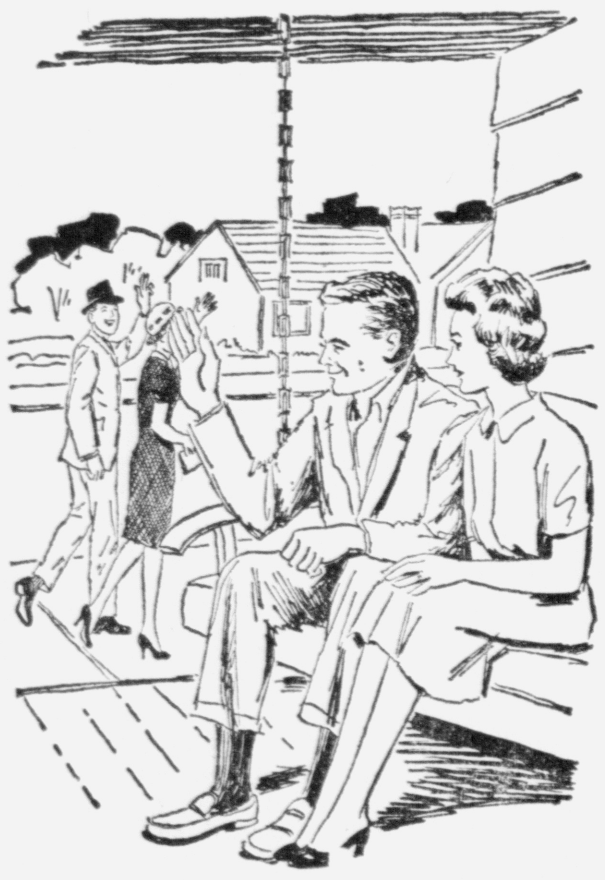
Thy Neighbor

"Thy shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."
—Leviticus 19:18



It is, perhaps, not always easy to love our neighbor. He may say or do things which displease us. He may be a business competitor. He may succeed in some effort where we have failed. How can we love someone we do not like? Someone who does things better than we do them? Someone who is more successful, more popular?

We must, in justice to ourself, do the best that we can. We can begin with the Golden Rule. If we can follow the simple philosophy of treating others as we would like them to treat us, we grow in strength and character. If we pursue this course with diligence, it is bound to affect those with whom we come in contact.

This becomes a much easier thing to do if we begin by considering the good qualities of our neighbor before evaluating his faults. This is, after all, something we expect from others.

ITEM: Areas under porches or eaves which show little weathering may not require paint when the body of the house is being repainted. Washing will often restore the finish at these points. Where a color change is desired, however, all surfaces which have retained their original gloss should be lightly sanded in order to improve adhesion of the new coat of paint. 'Instant Nature' at Regent Park

Just as instant coffee saves the housewife time in the preparation of meals, "instant nature" saves time, backbreaking labor, and many hard-earned dollars for residents of the Regent Park subdivision of Arlington Heights.

"Instant nature" may not be the proper phraseology but it, nonetheless, comes pretty close to describing the landscaping work and its progress at the United Development Company project.

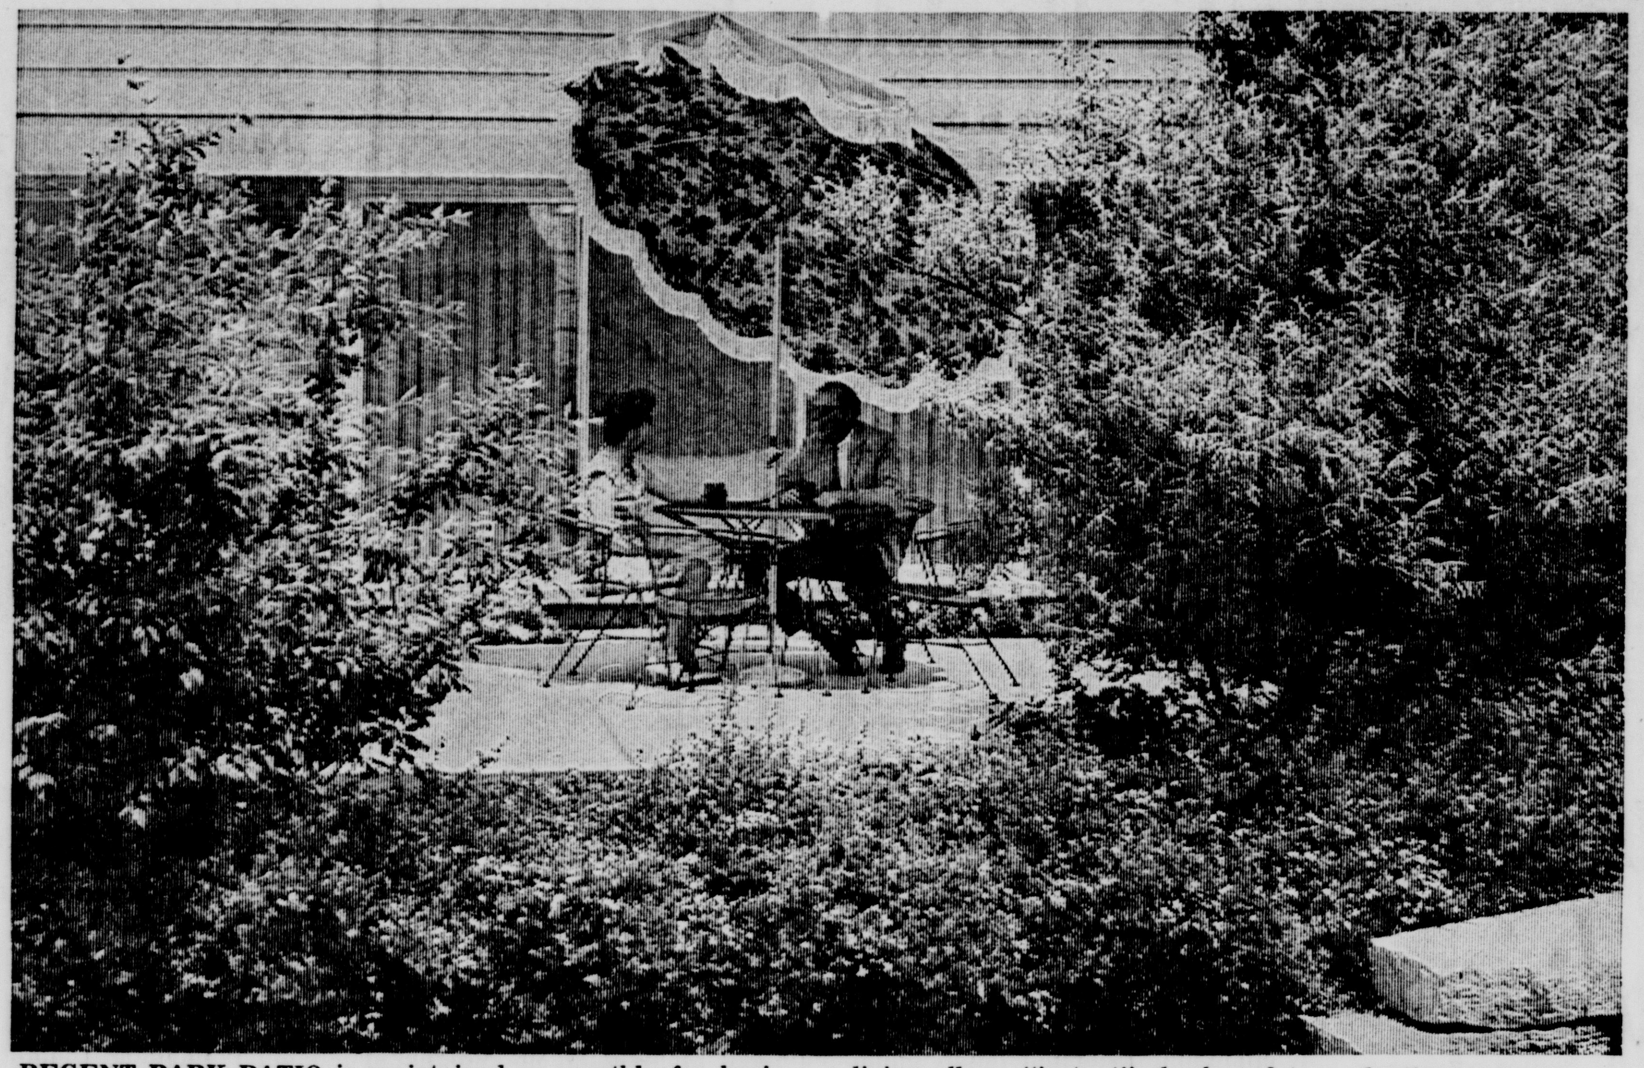
No one, anymore, is surprised when the shell of a home rises from foundation in a day. The speed in the construction is credited to today's advanced building technology.

But wonder is created when a barren strip of land, cluttered by clay and stone, is transformed in the span of a few hours into a lush green area with suddenly bloomed, full-grown trees and shrubs.

YOU DON'T have to be a millionaire to live like one in Regent Park. And, the landscaping program is a point in case.

United Development has spared little expense to provide the utmost in landscaping, expending approximately $125,000, to beautify the 45-acre Regent Park. At the same time the company last year engaged the landscape architect Franz Lipp to design and carry through the beautification.

If that sounds like a lot of money to spend for trees and shrubs, you're right, it is, But, it's still considerably cheaper than if the individual resident footed his own landscaping bill. It is estimated the cost would be about doubled on an individual basis and then the resident wouldn't have the advantage of Lipp's professional service.



REGENT PARK PATIO is maintained on monthly fee basis, allowing residents more time for relaxation. Condominium living allows "instant" shrub and tree planting program. (RE

Lipp, recognized as one of the foremost men in the landscaping architectural field, has received awards for several landscaping projects, such as for his work on the administrative building of the International Minerals and Chemical Corp. of Skokie, In addition, the Lipp firm has landscaped many noted estates throughout the Chicagoland region.

About Regent Park Lipp says: "OUR JOB IS to make it one of the country's most beautifully landscaped home developments. In addition to assuring the charm and character of the subdivision," he continues. "I would point out that, were these homes to be landscaped by individual owners the cost would be prohibitive. The fee for planting design as well as the purchase price of plant material on an individual basis would be extremely high."

Only the hardiest, most productive trees and shrubs were selected for landscaping the 126 town-and-garden houses, five condominiums, and Regent Park's malls and seven-acre private, springfed lake.

TREES IN evidence include sugar, silver and red maples, elder, honey locust, Kentucky coffee tree, silver poplar, gold-weeping willows, Japanese crab and lilac trees, star magnolias, Russian olive and American olive and American mountain ash trees. Shrub varieties include lilacs, golden forsythia, coralberry, pottentila and evergreens.

Residents, too, have gotten into the landscaping mood by providing interesting floral displays in the open planting beds provided for individual owners. And town-and-garden and condominium owners have plenty of time for this and other activities because as members of the Regent Park Property Owners Association they receive a complete exterior maintenance program for a small monthly fee.

REGENT PARK is located on Kensington Road less than a mile from the Randhurst shopping center. Individual homes sell in the $35,000 to $38,000 range; two and three-bedroom town-and-garden houses are from $26,600 to $29,900, and condominiums—either one, two or three-bedroom units—are in the $26,900 to $33,450 range. 'Instant Nature' at Regent Park

Just as instant coffee saves the housewife time in the preparation of meals, "instant nature" saves time, backbreaking labor, and many hard-earned dollars for residents of the Regent Park subdivision of Arlington Heights.

"Instant nature" may not be the proper phraseology but it, nonetheless, comes pretty close to describing the landscaping work and its progress at the United Development Company project.

No one, anymore, is surprised when the shell of a home rises from foundation in a day. The speed in the construction is credited to today's advanced building technology.

But wonder is created when a barren strip of land, cluttered by clay and stone, is transformed in the span of a few hours into a lush green area with suddenly bloomed, full-grown trees and shrubs.

YOU DON'T have to be a millionaire to live like one in Regent Park. And, the landscaping program is a point in case.

Homes Appreciate In Berkley Square

R. J. BENACH

One big factor in the price of a home is the cost of the land upon which the home is built. Land in certain areas in the northwest suburbs, in particular, has as much as doubled in value in the past five years or so . . . and tripled in value in the past 10 years or so.

"We bought our land in Arlington Heights years ago, while it was being used as farm land," said Ronald J. Benach, president of 3-H Homes. "This is one reason why our luxury homes in Berkley Square in Arlington Heights can still be purchased for reasonable prices. We pass the savings we made on the land along to our buyers."

ANOTHER FACTOR in the lower prices for homes in Berkley Square, Benach says, is the fact that 3-H has built over 1,000 homes in the past few years. Although homes are built to the buyers' specifications (which is, normally, an expensive way to build), 3-H is able to buy quality materials in quantity. This volume buying of materials keeps the price to a reasonable level . . . a further savings passed along to the buyer in Berkley Square.

"Most people don't consider how much a home is worth as an investment when they buy," continued Benach, "but the simple fact is that a home purchase now is a great hedge against inflation . . . a great protection for your money."

STUDIES SHOW that homes purchased in an "appreciating area" such as Berkley Square, which is close to the conveniences of the village of Arlington Heights, easy commuting, easy shopping and a highly - rated school system, will be worth as much as 25 per cent more in just four years.

"Any family who buys a home in Berkley Square in 1966 will be making one of the finest investments, both in money and in living, that anyone can make," said Benach.

Berkley Square is just ¼ mile north of Rand Road, on Arlington Heights Road. (RE

Hampton Court Apartments' Phase 2 Opening in October

THURS., JULY 28, 1966

Baird & Warner, Inc., management agent for the Hampton Court apartments in Arlington Heights, is now accepting leases for October occupancy in the Phase 2 development under construction by the James McHugh Construction Co. at Ridge and Eastman. The colonial style buildings will feature efficiencies, one and two bedroom apartments and duplex maisonettes (two bedroom units plus paneled dens with built-in book shelves). The two bedroom apartments have ceramic tiled "his" and "her" bathrooms, and the duplex maisonettes have a bath and a half.

ACCORDING to Robert Carlson, under whose supervision the building is being managed, Hampton Court apartments contain up to 10 per cent more space at rentals that are comparable to other smaller apartments. Living and dining rooms, as well as the entrance halls are carpeted. Kitchens are furnished with vinyl asbestos floors. Air conditioning and off street parking are included in the rent. Patios with barbecues and picnic areas in a park-like setting offer tenants opportunities for out-door recreation and as an additional facility, the duplex apartments will have their own sun porches.

A brochure detailing the new Hampton Court apartments is available from Carlson who is headquartered in Baird & Warner's Mount Prospect office at 21 E. Prospect Ave. (RE

The Fence Post

Letters to the Editor

'Sanity' or 'Hitlerism' in Birch Society's Approach?

To Mr. John Minneci, in answer to his Fencepost letter of July 21:

I, too, am opposed to exorbitant taxes, bureaucracy and Communist slavery. Most people are; however, I have just finished reading "The Blue Book" of the John Birch Society and, Mr. Minneci, I have some questions.

On Page 104 of "The Blue Book" Mr. Welch says: "We are surfeited in this country today with organizations opposing Communism . . . none of these organizations alone, nor all of them together, has any possibility of stopping the enemy."

On Page 105 Mr. Welch says, "even if all the 700 known groups could be combined into one organization for the purpose of obtaining centralized coordination, this central direction would be inefficient and insufficient . . . only if the members of the groups come to feel an unshakable loyalty for a dynamic personal leader . . ."

On Page 114 Mr. Welch offers himself as that leader, and on Page 157 Mr. Welch goes even further: "under the pressure of time, you have no other choice."

Mr. Minneci, I love my country, and I am patriotic, but do you really think these quotes add up to "sanity?" Or do they add up to Hitlerism?

'Thank You' and 'Farewell' Says Supt. H. L. Slichenmyer

On practically the eve of my departure from a community which has meant much to me in my 20 years' employment and residence here, I should like to take this opportunity to say "thank you" for making my job so easy and so pleasurable.

In bursts of sentiment I have been showered with compliments for serving as superintendent of your high school district during what was, admittedly, a difficult period of growth; however, I must, in all honesty, award the credit to you, the residents and taxpayers of District 214, for it was you who went to the polls time after time and approved the buildings or tax money needed to make this district one of the finest in the nation. It was your concern for education which allowed us to seek out the highly qualified teachers who man our classrooms, and it was you who sent us the students who consistently brought honors to our schools and to our community.

Serving such a community has, indeed, been a pleasure. Reflecting upon the school district's accomplishments in the past 20 years I recall faces and names of oldtimers, newcomers, businessmen, ministers, and newspaper personnel who have played important roles in our schools' progress; men and women who have taken the time to serve on school boards, citizen committees, Teacher Parent Councils, Boosters Clubs, etc; residents who have become concerned (sometimes hopping m d) about the schools' welfare. In practically all cases the individuals were not motivated by personal gain; fortunately education seldom attracts the selfish.

The district's greatest strength and its greatest hope for the future lie in the public which the schools serve. We are indeed fortunate to have a man with Dr. E. H. Gilbert's ability to take over the responsibilities of superintendent; however, he will need, as I so urgently needed, the support of this community, for the problems are far from over. I know he can depend on you.

May I again say "thank you" and "farewell."

Administrator Cites Work of Police Officers

To Newell Esmond, Mount Prospect chief of police:

We have received a glowing report from a surgical specialist on our staff concerning the exemplary manner in which members of your department provided escort service to the surgeon who had been called by the hospital to provide emergency treatment to a patient on July 10, 1966, in the hospital.

We have always been impressed with the dedication of the members of our local police departments and this single instance of providing valuable time saving assistance to a member of our medical staff is a further indication of the conscientious manner in which your men accept assigned responsibility.

Please express to the individuals involved our personal gratitude for their cooperation.

Office Staff Turnover Rises

Office staffs are turning over more rapidly again—after a slight decline in 1965, a survey by the Administrative Management Society shows.

The turnover rate nationally in 1965 was 20 per cent, down from 22 per cent in 1964. But turnover is rising this year because, as one employer notes, "people have more courage to change jobs" because of the tight manpower situation.

than they were last time around

Residents of Mount Prospect, Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine were surprised to receive first copies of The Paddock Directory listing all kinds of information about their towns, their neighbors and their merchants this past year.

The handy, compact directory is often used to look up phone numbers, names of parents of neighboring kids, and data about local merchants.

Second Annual Paddock Directory for Mount Prospect will be published soon, as will second editions for Arlington Heights, Rolling Meadows and Palatine.

Mother-in-Law Room Added to Family Home

Houses built 30 to 35 years ago still have lots of life in them. Trouble is, many of them no longer fit the requirements of the family. Children have moved away or in-laws have moved in.

One family in this situation got along fine until a mother-in-law broke a leg and needed a room on the first floor.

While she was recuperating in the hospital, the family decided to remove an old-fashioned porch, which was screened in each summer, and build a 16 by 16-foot addition in keeping with the character of the Georgian-colonial style of the house.

A LARGE all-weather window facing the back yard and a smaller one facing a neighbor's yard were included in the specifications to give the room a view and add to its "hominess." A lighted concrete stair was included at the rear, accessible through a glassed-door and combination screen door.

The mother-in-law has easy access to the dining room through the original opening, now closed with louvered doors. To match the 35-year-old wood siding, the owners chose a siding for its compatability with the old siding, its durability, weatherability and good appearance.

INSIDE, ASSURING easy maintenance and a warm, hospitable appearance, the couple selected a hardboard paneling in a rich-appearing pecan woodgrain. The contractor found it easy to install these 4 by 8-foot sheets using a new cartridge-type adhesive.

A powder room, a built-in desk and a louvered storage wall were other features included. The addition, which the family jestingly calls the "East Room," sports a hideaway bed, a tall bookcase utilizing the woodgrained wall for an attractive back. It is insulated throughout, has a durable floor covering, heat from the existing furnace and a flat roof with a balustrade, built for an additional bedroom "some day." (O

Heat Affects Plants More Than People

by RICHARD DeLANO
Assistant Cook County Farm Adviser in Ornamental Horticulture and Floriculture

The intense heat and hot humid weather have been some of the biggest topics of the conversation this summer. Folks adjust to this heat by drinking more water, dressing lighter and seeking cooler areas.

Garden plants are not so adaptable, and thus they suffer during periods of intense heat. Gardeners should help plants adjust to these extreme conditions. However, there's no need to panic and spray for "blight" when the condition is simply leaf scorch.

There are several precautions that should be taken in hot weather. Many insecticides and fungicides should not be applied when the temperature is over 85 degrees. Applied in hot weather, they will cause burning of leaf tips and margins. This risk is avoided if spraying is done in early morning or late evening.

OBVIOUSLY PLANTS need more water during 90 degree weather. However, sometimes a plant during intense heat can not absorb and carry water to leaf tips fast enough. Birches, maples and many other trees and shrubs may exhibit a leaf burn and wilting. Birches being natives of the north are especially susceptable to heat injury. On the other hand, southern plants such as magnolias thrive on intense heat.

Even when thoroughly watered, certain garden flowers will be prone to wilt. Chrysanthemums and snapdragons that are lacking in potassium are unusually prone to wilting during periods of stress. This can often be corrected by two waterings with a fertilizer solution. Use one level tablespoon of a 20-20-20 soluble fertilizer per gallon of water. If a lack of potassium is the problem, you should see correction starting within five days after watering.

If possible, prize plants should be staked so they will not wilt down, certain flowers such as gladioli and snapdragons do not become erect after recovering from wilting. The main stem remains prostrate while the growing tips point skyward. This results in "S" or "L" shaped stems.

EVEN THE vegetable garden has its special methods of responding to heat. Tomato plants will curl their leaves in the middle of the day. Lettuce and radishes respond by producing very bitter products. Usually neither is too palatable when picked from the garden during 90 degree heat.

Insect and disease problems tend to fall into very predictable patterns during hot weather. If the season is rainy or periods of light rainfall occur, plant disease will be rampant. Should the weather be quite dry, insects will be more of a problem. This means checking the undersides of leaves for aphids and mites.

Finally, don't forget to take the obvious precaution. If you have some newly established plants, give them some temporary shade with cheesecloth or old newspapers. (O

Local Nurserymen Lead Committees

A number of prominent northwest suburban growers were active participants at the 91st annual convention of the American Association of Nurserymen at the Palmer House, Chicago.

Chairman of the entertainment committee was Victor E. de St. Aubin Jr. of Addison. St. Aubin, president of Eugene A. de St. Aubin and Bro., is also president of the Illinois State Nurserymen's Association. Mrs. de St. Aubin Jr. served on the ladies program committee.

MR. AND MRS. Carl Klehm, of Charles Klehm & Son Nursery, Arlington Heights, were chairmen of the decorations committee. Mrs. Klehm likewise served on the ladies committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Klehm, son and daughter-in-law of the Carl Klehms, served on the junior nurserymen's committee. Another Klehm family, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Klehm, assisted on the decorations committee.

The five-day convention which attracted some 1,500 growers and suppliers from throughout the nation was highlighted by the keynote address delivered by Mrs. Henry H. Fowler, wife of the secretary of the treasury. Mrs. Fowler, as the personal emissary of Mrs. L. B. Johnson, brought the First Lady's thanks to the association for its contribution to the national beautification effort. President Johnson in a telegram also lauded the industry for its leadership role in the program. (O

SUNDAY'S SERMON

DOING THINGS

How would you change your plans for tomorrow if you knew it would be your last day upon earth? Of the many things you want to do and need to do, how would you arrive at an order of preference?

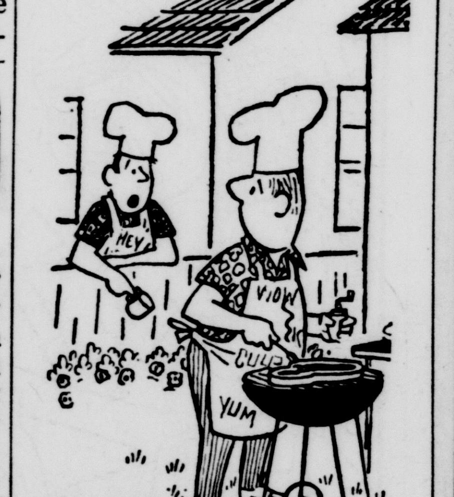
And, again, if you knew, without doubt, that you were destined to live for many years yet to come, are there a few things that concern you today that might well be put off until "tomorrow"?

Faced with any circumstance, the course of action will depend upon the individual. No two people respond to a particular situation in the same fashion.

Yet, don't we all tend to do the things that need doing when some sense of "urgency" prods us? And, delay the task at hand if it need not be accomplished until tomorrow?

How will you use today? This day. How will you use the next hour or two? If not obligated, if you have no plans, isn't there something you can do for someone — a friend, your family, yourself?

There are, for the responsible individual, certain demands upon time and talent. There should be, for everyone, some time to "waste", at leisure, in the pursuit of a hobby. There should also be time to do something, not because it must be done, but simply because it is a good thing to do.



"Charlie, can you spare a cup of coals?"

Mother-in-Law Room Added to Family Home

Houses built 30 to 35 years ago still have lots of life in them. Trouble is, many of them no longer fit the requirements of the family. Children have moved away or in-laws have moved in.

37th Arlington Handicap Set Saturday

KICKIN' IT AROUND

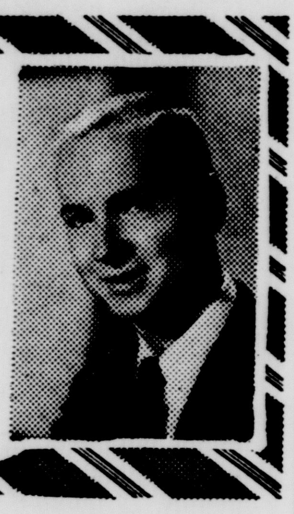
BOB FRISK
Sports Editor



It Won't Be Long Now . . .

Now that the football magazines are flooding the newsstands, the professionals are sharpening up in training camps throughout the country, and the College All-Stars are awaiting their clash with Green Bay, you know that another gridiron campaign is just around the corner.

Frankly, we can't wait for it to begin.

Maybe it's the decline of the Chicago White Sox and the crash of the Chicago Cubs. Maybe it's just the end of the American Legion season with no hope for another exciting dash by an area team through tournament competition.

Whatever the reason and regardless of the heat that at times makes the thought of playing football unbearable, we're ready for another gridiron campaign — the 1966 version.

While we spent our vacation welcoming a little cheerleader to the Frisk family (mother and baby are doing fine), we did find some time, however little there was between constant referrals to Dr. Spock's handy handbook on bringing up babies, to peruse some of the first football publications to appear on the newstands.

The magazine that should provoke the most comment in area circles is labeled Kick-Off, 1966 Football Yearbook. The editors took on the staggering task of selecting the top 100 high school backs in America. It would have been even more awesome to throw in a list of the top linemen.

Named in the coveted top 100 were Palatine halfback John Ekeberg and Arlington quarterback Steve Allen. Others named from Illinois were Randy Marks of Loyola Academy and Bill Barz of Rich Central with Barz, who has scored 23 touchdowns and gained 2,310 yards rushing in two seasons of varsity ball, named to a first team prep All-America post.

Ekeberg and Allen enjoyed impressive junior seasons in different leagues, but they'll be Mid-Suburban League foes this fall. In fact, they'll be matched on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 24, as the Mid-Suburban race opens with Palatine hosting Arlington.

Ekeberg paced the Mid-Suburban in rushing, scoring, and total offense as a junior, collecting 700 yards on the ground. The 5-10 speedster, who has an amazing ability to cut and tremendous driving power for a 170-pounder, scored 12 touchdowns as a junior, one shy of a school mark.

Allen shattered six school passing marks in his second year at the varsity controls. He owns school marks for passes attempted in a single season (172), passes completed in a season (73), total yards passing for a season (1016), passes attempted in a game (33), passes completed in a game (15), and total yards passing in one game (207).

Arlington High grad Paul Splittorff scattered seven hits and singled home the winning run in the tenth inning as his Valentine, Neb., team edged Mobridge, S. D., 6-5, in a Basin League game. The Valentine team was struggling to escape the basement at last report, and Paul has been a welcome addition to the roster.

Lion Standout Earns Raves . . .

Rarely have we heard a coach as enthusiastic about a prospect as Larry Nomellini is today about Greg Luzinski of his Lions' summer baseball entry.

"In my years of coaching I've never seen a kid who comes close to Greg as a hitter," Nomellini praises.

STEVE ALLEN
Cracks Top 100

Since joining the Lions, Luzinski has slapped out 20 hits in 43 trips to the plate for a healthy .465 mark. Most hits have been line shots.

"This kid really hits the ball with authority," says Nomellini. "Although he represented the winning run, Rockford walked him intentionally in one situation last Sunday."

Luzinski, an all-conference selection in the Suburban Catholic league as a sophomore last spring, is no stranger to the headline-making department in the Paddock area.

Three summers ago Luzinski was a pitching and batting star on the Prospect Heights Little League All-Star team that finished second in the state tournament.

Greg had the pitchers talking to themselves in tourney action that summer. He rifled out 18 hits in 19 trips to the plate for a phenomenal .947 average. The only time they got him out was on a drive to the fence in deep center field.

Luzinski and Pat Schwinn were the big pitchers as Prospect Heights marched to the state championship game before falling to powerful Naperville. Greg's best hill effort was a 15-strikeout effort against the Chicago White Caps that enabled Prospect Heights to reach the state semi-finals.

In the first semi-final game Schwinn set down Harvey, 3-2, with Frank Patzke, who also plays for the Lions this summer, delivering a home run and Luzinski doubling home the two decisive markers.

Naperville got to Luzinski in the title game and coasted, 11-1, but the area club still could claim the second best ranking in Illinois.

And losing to Naperville was no disgrace. In reaching the state title game Naperville had bombed Taylorville, 23-5, ripping out nine home runs in the process.

Pete Swanson, who did some sportswriting for Paddock Publications while a student at Arlington High School, authors a story in the latest Sporting News on one of the prize young players in the Chicago White Sox farm system. Pete is now writing for the Evansville, Ind., newspaper, and his report in the Sporting News indicates that Buddy Bradford, a 22-year-old center fielder, has "as quick a bat and as strong an arm as anyone in the White Sox organization." Bradford is playing for Evansville in the Class AA Southern League and looks like a "can't miss" major leaguer.

Ten Years Ago This Week . . .

Arlington Heights had four players named to the Ninth District American Legion all-star team: pitchers Al Smeby and Bob Miller, outfielder Dan Vittum, and catcher Ed Meinken . . . Miller had an 0.79 earned run average for 57 innings of work . . . Vittum was the top hitter with a .292 standard . . . Palatine surprised the Arlington Legion nine, 7-6 . . . The newly-formed Arlington Boosters, a group of players too old for Legion ball, topped Dundee in the season opener, 5-1, with Arlington grads John Sujack and Mike Shanklin and Palatine High product Bob Hamilton on the mound.

Second Title for Ellertson

Arlington Cycler Cops State Championship in Lemont Race

by LARRY EVERHART

For the second straight year an Arlington Heights boy, Dennis Ellertson, has won the State Championship bicycle road race.

Ellertson, who first won the award in 1965, needed only four hours, 37 minutes, and 26 seconds Sunday to finish the 102-mile race, held in Lemont, Ill., about 35 miles south of Arlington Heights.

The race was run on a 6.8-mile course that begins at Frontage and Cass Roads in Lemont. The cyclers were required to circle the track 15 times.

BESIDES THE 19-year-old Ellertson, only five other cyclers managed to finish the grueling test.

Ellertson had a flat tire on his back wheel after about 60 miles of the race had been completed. Fortunately, a truck prepared for just such emergencies follows the riders at all times in long road races.

"It took me only a minute to change the back wheel and catch up to the pack again," said Ellertson.

Ellertson, who lives at 908 E. Euclid, began to race regularly in February of 1964, when he purchased the 10-speed Italian racing bike which he uses today.

"I TRY TO get in about 250 miles of training and racing a week," says Dennis, who enters regular races about three times a week.

In addition to regularly-scheduled racing at Northbrook's Meadowhill park race track every Thursday night, Ellertson enters races at Kenosha, Wis., each Thursday night and longer road races at various towns in the area every Sunday, often traveling out of the state to compete in a race.

While the Sunday races are often about 50 miles long, the Tuesday and Thursday affairs are usually no longer than ten miles. Ellertson trains on days when he is not entered in a regular race.

RIDERS IN THE ½-mile Sprint races at Meadowhill reach speeds as high as 40-45 miles per hour. Ellertson's specialty, however, is long road races.

Denny plans to vie in a 50-mile test at Madison, Wis. Sunday.

Ellertson and the next three finishers behind him in the State Championship race qualified to represent Illinois in the National Championships at Meadowhill park on Aug. 19, 20, and 21. The second, third, and fourth place finishers in order were Bill Clauson, Tom Garrity, and John Hood, Jr.

Clauson and Ellertson are members of the Windy City Bicycle Club. Ellertson graduated from Arlington High School in 1965 and is a sophomore at Northern Illinois University.

Kathy Fitzpatrick of the West Suburban Cycle Club won the girl's race and will represent Illinois in the Nationals. She covered a 34-mile test in one hour, 32 minutes.

Entry Deadline Nears

Golfers Eye Berths In Paddock Tourney

Time is running out for Paddock area golfers.

Only eight days remain in which to nail down a coveted berth in the 1966 edition of the Paddock Publications Inter-League Handicap golf tournament.

First place teams in area divisions as of Saturday, Aug. 6 will be eligible for the Paddock links spectacular that was first staged in 1950 at Mount Prospect Country Club.

The 17th annual Paddock feature is set for the challenging Golden Acres Country Club layout on Sunday, Aug. 21. First group will go off at 9 a.m.

Entry blanks have been mailed out to league secretaries and now it's a matter of waiting to see which squads hold down the first place rankings for the final week of play.

SECRETARIES should note that the tournament will be held at Golden Acres, not at White Pines as indicated on the entry blank.

Approximately 20 leagues are expected to file entries in the Paddock tourney with the squads shooting for a large traveling trophy that will be in the hands of the winning sponsor for one year, medals for the first three teams, and a dozen golf balls to the player with the low individual net.

Last summer Art Garcia of the Bensenville VFW league was the hottest golfer on a hot day at White Pines Golf Club. Art, a lieutenant on the Bensenville police force, toured White Pines in 36-37 and used a seven handicap for a sharp 66.

$50,000 Test Climaxes Exciting Racing Meet

The Arlington Park Jockey Club is now in the final days of its six-week phase of the coordinated 103-day meeting at Arlington Park, and the climax to a thrilling season comes this Saturday.

It will be the 37th running of the Arlington Handicap, long one of America's top events for older runners.

Open for three-year-olds and up, the $50,000 added challenge will be contested this year for the first time at a mile. It was at a mile and a furlong last year when Chieftan — Willie Shoemaker up — won it on a sloppy track.

After Saturday's action, the Arlington oval will begin the six-day Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc. session, with the attraction of four races worth $225,000 in the Monday-through-Saturday run. And then will follow the 31-day Washington Park Jockey Club meet, carrying the action at Arlington to its Sept. 12 conclusion.

AS IS USUALLY the case, many of the nation's top veterans are expected to tackle the Arlington Handicap. Such greats as Sun Beau (1931), Equipoise (1933), Discovery (1935), Equifox (1941), Armed (1947), Coaltown (1949), Oil Capitol (1953), Manassas (1957), Round Table (1958 and 1959), and Chieftain (1965) have found their way into the charmed spot after the coveted test.

Mrs. Edith Bancroft's Hedevar, Earl Allen's Swift Ruler, Herbert Herff's Tornado, Ocean Seabreeze Stable's Toulore, Ogden Mills Phipps' Time Tested, Harbor View Farm's Sammyren, C. V. Whitney's Tom Cat, and Powhatan's Tom Rolfe headline the prospective roster of blue-ribbon performers.

Fresh off a win in the Equipoise Mile Handicap at Arlington June 18, Hedevar has come into his own as a handicap star this season. The four-year-old son of Count of Honor—Creme Brulee annexed the event by three-parts of a length in 1:33-1/5, which at the time equaled the world's record, later to be dramatically broken by Buckpasser in the Arlington Classic.

A FIVE-TIME allowance victor last year, Hedevar finished in the money during 10 of his 12 sophomore outings. After a lengthy winter rest, the bay returned in banner style this spring, winning a pair of allowances with ease.

Walter Blum, the nation's leading rider both in 1963 and 1964, when he enjoyed many banner moments at Arlington, will again fly in from the East to handle the assignment astride Hedevar.

Although nominated to the Arlington Handicap, Tom Rolfe's status currently remains in doubt. A stablemate of Hedevar, the dynamic colt is now back in training, but may bypass the forthcoming test in favor of the $100,000 added Washington Park Handicap, Monday, Sept. 5.

VOTED THE top three-year-old of 1965, Tom Rolfe annexed the Arlington Classic, American Derby and Chicagoan locally in addition to the Preakness and Chesapeake.

Six-year-old Tronado, a steady Argentine-bred, won the Donn Handicap in upset fashion this winter at Gulfstream Park and also finished third in the John B. Campbell 'Cap at Bowie and the Inglewood at Hollywood Park.

A son of The Yuvaraj, Tronado posted 13 victories in his native land before being brought to the United States, and it's taken him little time to pass the century marker in earnings in his new environment.

CURRENTLY THE Midwest's top stakes runner, Swift Ruler has already annexed the Razorback, Oaklawn, Ben-Ali, Illinois and July Fourth Handicaps this season. The son of Sir Ruler—Joann Town took the Hyde Park, To Market and Hawthorne Juvenile Stakes as a two-year-old and captured the Arkansas Derby last year.

Time Tested, a strong middle-distance runner, has amassed scores in the New Year's, Old Line, Toboggan, Royal Poinciana, and Carousel Handicaps this year as well as turning in runner-up performances in the Royal Palm, Paumonok, and Carter 'Caps.

Toulore won the Coronado Handicap, Sammyren captured the Chicagoan Handicap and was second in the Cornhusker and Tom Cat finished third in the San Juan Capistrano 'Cap at Santa Anita.

Palatine Tips Lions; Errors Are Decisive

Palatine's Legionnaires came up with a fifth-inning marker to snap a tie and earn a 3-2 victory over the Lions nine of Arlington Heights last Thrusday.

Mike Miller, who relieved Lions starter John Wendell in the second inning, absorbed the defeat despite pitching a fine 2-2/3 innings. He was outdueled by Palatine's fine righthander Irv Hahnfeldt, who scattered seven hits for the complete-game victory.

Hahnfeldt struck out six of Larry Nomellini's crew and walked only two as his teammates made the most of their four hits and four Lion errors.

Those four fielding miscues proved fatal for the Lions, as three of them led to all of Palatine's runs.

THE HOST Lions kicked off the scoring with a quick tally in the first. The rally started after two outs when hard-hitting Greg Luzinski singled and advanced on an error on shortstop Fred Bahn. Luzinski scored on Brian Rooney's base blow.

At that point, Miller took over the hill and put out the fire with two quick strikeouts.

The visitors tied it up in the second on the first of their three unearned runs. Dick Smith was safe on an error on third baseman Rich Leitzen. One out later, successive singles by Norm Lohse and Brian Scholl brought him home.

Palatine grabbed a temporary 2-1 lead in the third on a walk to Bahn, another error, and a single by Don Wickersham.

The Lions knotted the count again in their half of the third with the same formula they used for their first marker. An error was sandwiched between singles by Luzinski and Rooney, Luzinski scoring for the second time.

Wickersham began Palatine's winning rally in the fifth with a walk. He was forced out as Wes Dixon reached on a fielder's choice. Another error advanced Dixon, and he tallied on a single by Dick Strauss.

Rooney was the game's leading batsman, collecting three base raps in as many trips. Luzinski, the Lions' batting leader, enjoyed a 2-for-3 day.

KICKIN' IT AROUND

by
BOB FRISK
Sports Editor

It Won't Be Long Now . . .

Now that the football magazines are flooding the newsstands, the professionals are sharpening up in training camps throughout the country, and the College All-Stars are awaiting their clash with Green Bay, you know that another gridiron campaign is just around the corner.

Frankly, we can't wait for it to begin.

Maybe it's the decline of the Chicago White Sox and the crash of the Chicago Cubs. Maybe it's just the end of the American Legion season with no hope for another exciting dash by an area team through tournament competition.

Whatever the reason and regardless of the heat that at times makes the thought of playing football unbearable, we're ready for another gridiron campaign — the 1966 version.

While we spent our vacation welcoming a little cheerleader to the Frisk family (mother and baby are doing fine), we did find some time, however little there was between constant referrals to Dr. Spock's handy handbook on bringing up babies, to peruse some of the first football publications to appear on the newstands.

The magazine that should provoke the most comment in area circles is labeled Kick-Off, 1966 Football Yearbook. The editors took on the staggering task of selecting the top 100 high school backs in America. It would have been even more awesome to throw in a list of the top linemen.

Named in the coveted top 100 were Palatine halfback John Ekeberg and Arlington quarterback Steve Allen. Others named from Illinois were Randy Marks of Loyola Academy and Bill Barz of Rich Central with Barz, who has scored 23 touchdowns and gained 2,310 yards rushing in two seasons of varsity ball, named to a first team prep All-America post.

Ekeberg and Allen enjoyed impressive junior seasons in different leagues, but they'll be Mid-Suburban League foes this fall. In fact, they'll be matched on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 24, as the Mid-Suburban race opens with Palatine hosting Arlington.

Ekeberg paced the Mid-Suburban in rushing, scoring, and total offense as a junior, collecting 700 yards on the ground. The 5-10 speedster, who has an amazing ability to cut and tremendous driving power for a 170-pounder, scored 12 touchdowns as a junior, one shy of a school mark.

Allen shattered six school passing marks in his second year at the varsity controls. He owns school marks for passes attempted in a single season (172), passes completed in a season (73), total yards passing for a season (1016), passes attempted in a game (33), passes completed in a game (15), and total yards passing in one game (207).

Cracks Top 100

Arlington High grad Paul Splittorff scattered seven hits and singled home the winning run in the tenth inning as his Valentine, Neb., team edged Mobridge, S. D., 6-5, in a Basin League game. The Valentine team was struggling to escape the basement at last report, and Paul has been a welcome addition to the roster.

Lion Standout Earns Raves . . .

Rarely have we heard a coach as enthusiastic about a prospect as Larry Nomellini is today about Greg Luzinski of his Lions' summer baseball entry.

"In my years of coaching I've never seen a kid who comes close to Greg as a hitter," Nomellini praises.

Larry has good reason for his enthisiasm over this Prospect Heights boy who spends nine months of the year as a Notre Dame High School student. Greg played with the Morton Grove American Legion team before joining the Lions.

Since joining the Lions, Luzinski has slapped out 20 hits in 43 trips to the plate for a healthy .465 mark. Most hits have been line shots.

"This kid really hits the ball with authority," says Nomellini. "Although he represented the winning run, Rockford walked him intentionally in one situation last Sunday."

Luzinski, an all-conference selection in the Suburban Catholic league as a sophomore last spring, is no stranger to the headline-making department in the Paddock area.

Three summers ago Luzinski was a pitching and batting star on the Prospect Heights Little League All-Star team that finished second in the state tournament.

Greg had the pitchers talking to themselves in tourney action that summer. He rifled out 18 hits in 19 trips to the plate for a phenomenal .947 average. The only time they got him out was on a drive to the fence in deep center field.

Luzinski and Pat Schwinn were the big pitchers as Prospect Heights marched to the state championship game before falling to powerful Naperville. Greg's best hill effort was a 15-strikeout effort against the Chicago White Caps that enabled Prospect Heights to reach the state semi-finals.

In the first semi-final game Schwinn set down Harvey, 3-2, with Frank Patzke, who also plays for the Lions this summer, delivering a home run and Luzinski doubling home the two decisive markers.

Naperville got to Luzinski in the title game and coasted, 11-1, but the area club still could claim the second best ranking in Illinois.

And losing to Naperville was no disgrace. In reaching the state title game Naperville had bombed Taylorville, 23-5, ripping out nine home runs in the process.

Pete Swanson, who did some sportswriting for Paddock Publications while a student at Arlington High School, authors a story in the latest Sporting News on one of the prize young players in the Chicago White Sox farm system. Pete is now writing for the Evansville, Ind., newspaper, and his report in the Sporting News indicates that Buddy Bradford, a 22-year-old center fielder, has "as quick a bat and as strong an arm as anyone in the White Sox organization." Bradford is playing for Evansville in the Class AA Southern League and looks like a "can't miss" major leaguer.

Ten Years Ago This Week . . .

Arlington Heights had four players named to the Ninth District American Legion all-star team: pitchers Al Smeby and Bob Miller, outfielder Dan Vittum, and catcher Ed Meinken . . . Miller had an 0.79 earned run average for 57 innings of work . . . Vittum was the top hitter with a .292 standard . . . Palatine surprised the Arlington Legion nine, 7-6 . . . The newly-formed Arlington Boosters, a group of players too old for Legion ball, topped Dundee in the season opener, 5-1, with Arlington grads John Sujack and Mike Shanklin and Palatine High product Bob Hamilton on the mound.

Second Title for Ellertson

Arlington Cycler Cops State Championship in Lemont Race

by LARRY EVERHART

For the second straight year an Arlington Heights boy, Dennis Ellertson, has won the State Championship bicycle road race.

Ellertson, who first won the award in 1965, needed only four hours, 37 minutes, and 26 seconds Sunday to finish the 102-mile race, held in Lemont, Ill., about 35 miles south of Arlington Heights.

The race was run on a 6.8-mile course that begins at Frontage and Cass Roads in Lemont. The cyclers were required to circle the track 15 times.

BESIDES THE 19-year-old Ellertson, only five other cyclers managed to finish the grueling test.

Ellertson had a flat tire on his back wheel after about 60 miles of the race had been completed. Fortunately, a truck prepared for just such emergencies follows the riders at all times in long road races.

"It took me only a minute to change the back wheel and catch up to the pack again," said Ellertson.

Ellertson, who lives at 908 E. Euclid, began to race regularly in February of 1964, when he purchased the 10-speed Italian racing bike which he uses today.

"I TRY TO get in about 250 miles of training and racing a week," says Dennis, who enters regular races about three times a week.

In addition to regularly-scheduled racing at Northbrook's Meadowhill park race track every Thursday night, Ellertson enters races at Kenosha, Wis., each Thursday night and longer road races at various towns in the area every Sunday, often traveling out of the state to compete in a race.

While the Sunday races are often about 50 miles long, the Tuesday and Thursday affairs are usually no longer than ten miles. Ellertson trains on days when he is not entered in a regular race.

RIDERS IN THE ½-mile Sprint races at Meadowhill reach speeds as high as 40-45 miles per hour. Ellertson's specialty, however, is long road races.

Denny plans to vie in a 50-mile test at Madison, Wis. Sunday.

Ellertson and the next three finishers behind him in the State Championship race qualified to represent Illinois in the National Championships at Meadowhill park on Aug. 19, 20, and 21. The second, third, and fourth place finishers in order were Bill Clauson, Tom Garrity, and John Hood, Jr.

Clauson and Ellertson are members of the Windy City Bicycle Club. Ellertson graduated from Arlington High School in 1965 and is a sophomore at Northern Illinois University.

Kathy Fitzpatrick of the West Suburban Cycle Club won the girl's race and will represent Illinois in the Nationals. She covered a 34-mile test in one hour, 32 minutes.

Arlington Netters in 3 Easy Wins

The Arlington Heights Tennis Team traveled to River Forest last Friday and recorded a clean sweep over the hosts, winning all six matches.

Ron Doubek, Bob Baer, Claire Schmoyer, Robbie Zimminack, and Stein Ohrstrom were all victorious in singles action, racking up Arlington's first five points. Doubek and Baer then combined to win the doubles match easily, 6-1,6-1.

Last week the local netters visited New Trier where they won 17 of 20 matches, each match consisting of only one set. Arlington also won a meet held at Des Plaines last Wednesday (July 20), shutting out the hosts, 7-0.

Sweeping the five singles matches, in order from No. 1 to No. 5, were Greg Harris, Ron Doubek, Bob Baer, Robbie Zimminach, and Stein Ohrstrom.

In No. 1 Doubles, the Schmoyer twins, Kay and Claire, took a 6-0, 6-1 triumph over Des Plaines. The No. 2 tandem of Steve Bach and Robbie Zimminach breezed to a 6-2, 6-0 win.

pion Carter Music Shop and Dick Koci of Busse Motor Sales, but Art was all alone with his 73 gross.

THE BEST ROUNDS ever fired in Paddock tourney play were a 71 gross by Len Arnold in the 1955 meet at Arlington Country Club and 64 net in 1960 by Clarke Robinson at White Pines.

The record low team score for the handicap event is 281 set by Morton Pontiac of the Mount Prospect Tuesday league in 1960, while the highest winning score was the 306 of Hoffman Estates Standard Service of the Hoffman Men's league in 1964.

The weatherman has played an important role in the Paddock links headliners, and high winds sent the scores soaring in that '64 meet, accounting for the record high total by a champion. Temperatures in the 90' greeted the golfers last summer at White Pines.

THE PADDOCK tourney has been held at Golden Acres on one other occasion. Busse Automotive of the St. Raymond's league fired a 362 gross, 296 net in annexing the 1962 championship.

Actually, the 1966 tourney site will be a familiar one to some entries as several leagues use the Golden Acres layout for their summer competition.

Handicaps and foursomes for the tournament will be determined by Paddock's sports department. Foursomes will be published in the August 18 issue of Paddock's chain of suburban newspapers.

Watch these sports pages for additional details on the biggest golf event of the 1966 season.

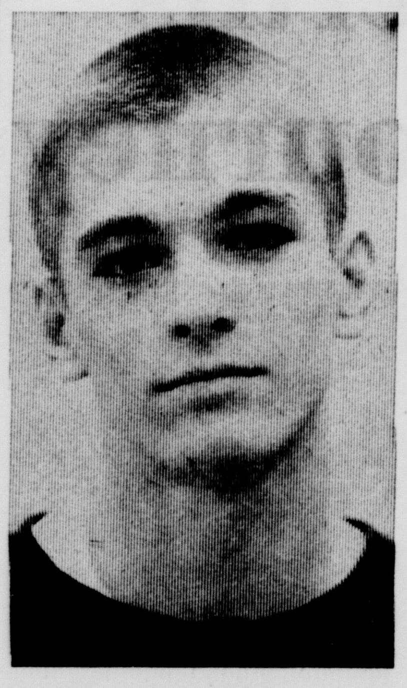
Wrestling Tourney Draws 295 Entries

It may be worth a look ahead to the Third Annual Olympic Development Wrestling Tournament at Forest View High School.

The second annual such event transpired at the Arlington Heights school last Saturday, with an impressive growth from the first tourney staged in the summer of last year.

A total of 295 boys entered the meet, an increase of 98 over 1965, so Forest View wrestling coach Hal Henson—one of the men behind the tourney—had to feel pleased.

Champions were declared in 12 weight classes, ranging from 97 pounds to heavyweight, with medals distributed to the first three finishers in each division. The wrestling was all the freestyle form, unlike the kind practiced in high school and college in this country, and the meet—sponsored by the Mayor Daley Youth Foundation and the Central Amateur Athletic Union—was designed to encourage interet in freestyle grappling.



KARL MEISENHEIMER
Third at 125

ONLY TWO Paddock area boys netted medals in the competition, which featured wrestlers from around the state. Gary McMorrow — who carded a 10-8-1 over-all mark and seconds in the Prospect Holiday and Forest View District tourneys under the Prospect high banner during the winer—landed a second place finish at 105 pounds. And Karl Meisenheimer—11-7-1 overall and third in the Glenbrook South Holiday tourney for Wheeling high in the winter—finished third at 125 pounds.

Fred Rolak of Skokie, the eventual champion at 135 pounds, was designated the meet's outstanding wrestler. He had to wade through the biggest field at the meet, 49 entries.

The fastest fall was authored by Brooks Turner of Rock Island, a 97-pounder who didn't get a place, but who along the way disposed of one foe in six and a half seconds. The most falls —six—were recorded by Bill Fuchs of Granite City, who also traveled the farthest to compete in the meet.

The wrestling—which divided up into 519 separate matches on the five mats in the FV gymnasium—continued for almost 12 hours until 10:30 p.m. Saturday. The competition was open to all boys 18 years old or under, with the proviso that none could have wrestled on the college level.

State Kings

Several of the boys in Saturday's Olympic Development Wrestling tourney at Forest View had figured prominently in the 1966 Illinois High School Association wrestling finals, and three of them were state champions.

Fred Rolak, state titlist at 127 pounds for Niles North High School, won at 135 Saturday. Guy Ward of Evanston, state king at 133, won at 155 at Forest View. Fred Beilfuss, who ruled Illinois heavyweights in the name of Glenbard West, ended second in the same weight Saturday. And Bill Fuchs of Granite City, second in the state at 95 pounds, won at 105 at FV.

Heights Legion Concludes Season With Two Setbacks

Arlington Heights will have to wait until the summer of 1967 for its next American Legion baseball game.

The season came to a disappointing conclusion Saturday with losses in both ends of a doubleheader at Beloit, Wis.

With the two setbacks Arlington, fifth in the nation in 1965, wound up the '66 season with a 23-14 over-all standard.

Beloit didn't earn the victories Saturday. They were handed them by an erratic Arlington defense.

THE PITCHING for Merle Guild Post 208 was superb. Mark Newman handled the opener and allowed only one hit over the first five frames. Three errors, two walks, and two hits sent across four Beloit runs in the sixth as the hosts wrapped up a 4-3 victory.

Coach Lloyd Meyer's outfit had taken command in the first inning with Thad Woodard counting after reaching on an error.

Post 208 added two more runs in the third on singles by Woodard and Newman, a sacrifice, and error but couldn't push anything more across against Beloit pitching.

NEWMAN WAS sailing along until the sixth, and he got the leadoff man on a grounder to Tom LeStarge at third base.

John Harris, the leading hitter at Wisconsin State University last spring, got to Newman for a single to center, but Mark struck out Rick Straw. Disaster followed.

Two walks, three errors, and another hit later Beloit had four runs and a 4-3 advantage. The lead held up in the seventh although Heights threatened when Woodard and Newman walked.

JERRY DONAHUE worked the nightcap for Arlington, and this was just as frustrating as the visitors suffered a 5-2 setback. Jerry allowed only one hit over six innings but it came in the four-run Beloit fifth.

Donahue struck out nine and walked four, but his teammates commited six errors.

Arlington scored its first run in the third on a walk to Paul Parish and two errors and added the final marker of the 1966 season in the fourth. Newman walked and rode around on two passed balls and a double by Tom LeStarge.

Beloit sealed the decision in the fifth with two outs. Donahue struck out the first two hitters but then walked pinch hitter Ned Peters. A second walk, double, and two errors sent four runs across and gave the hosts a 5-2 win.

IN OTHER ACTION last week Arlington Heights wrapped up non-league victories over both Fenton High School (5-0) and East Chicago, Ind. (6-3).

Bob Young and Newman combined hill talents to set down Fenton's summer entry with only one hit in a 5-0 victory. Bruce Kassel delivered a hit with one out in the sixth off Newman after Young worked five hitless frames.

Arlington scored a pair in the first on singles by Steve Allen and Newman, a walk, and single by LeStarge and added a third run in the fourth on a walk and hits by Frank DeRosa and Young.

LeStarge rode home in the sixth after reaching on a walk. DeRosa's sacrifice fly drove the left fielder in.

ARLINGTON RETURNED to the scene of its finest hour of 1965 with a trip to East Chicago, Ind. last week (Tuesday). And just as they had done last summer in Regional play, Meyer's outfit turned in a superb performance under the lights at Block Stadium.

Woodard and Newman each ripped out three hits and Arlington cracked 13 over nine innings en route to a 6-3 victory over the host nine.

Donahue picked up the pitching decision and fashioned another nifty effort. He didn't allow a hit until the seventh.

Arlington scored a single run in the second on a double by Brad Somers and single by Allen and added three more in the fifth on a walk, doubles by Woodard and Mark Frase and a single by LeStarge.

Allen, John Loughman, and Newman had hits in a two-run ninth as Heights concluded its offensive fun.

Twin Power Explodes

The Minnesota Twins were the last major-league club to blast two grand-slam homers in one game. Bob Allison and Harmon Killebrew performed this feat on July 18, 1962.

Paddock Tourney

pion Carter Music Shop and Dick Koci of Busse Motor Sales, but Art was all alone with his 73 gross.

THE BEST ROUNDS ever fired in Paddock tourney play were a 71 gross by Len Arnold in the 1955 meet at Arlington Country Club and 64 net in 1960 by Clarke Robinson at White Pines.

The record low team score for the handicap event is 281 set by Morton Pontiac of the Mount Prospect Tuesday league in 1960, while the highest winning score was the 306 of Hoffman Estates Standard Service of the Hoffman Men's league in 1964.

The weatherman has played an important role in the Paddock links headliners, and high winds sent the scores soaring in that '64 meet, accounting for the record high total by a champion. Temperatures in the 90' greeted the golfers last summer at White Pines.

THE PADDOCK tourney has been held at Golden Acres on one other occasion. Busse Automotive of the St. Raymond's league fired a 362 gross, 296 net in annexing the 1962 championship.

Actually, the 1966 tourney site will be a familiar one to some entries as several leagues use the Golden Acres layout for their summer competition.

Handicaps and foursomes for the tournament will be determined by Paddock's sports department. Foursomes will be published in the August 18 issue of Paddock's chain of suburban newspapers.

Watch these sports pages for additional details on the biggest golf event of the 1966 season.

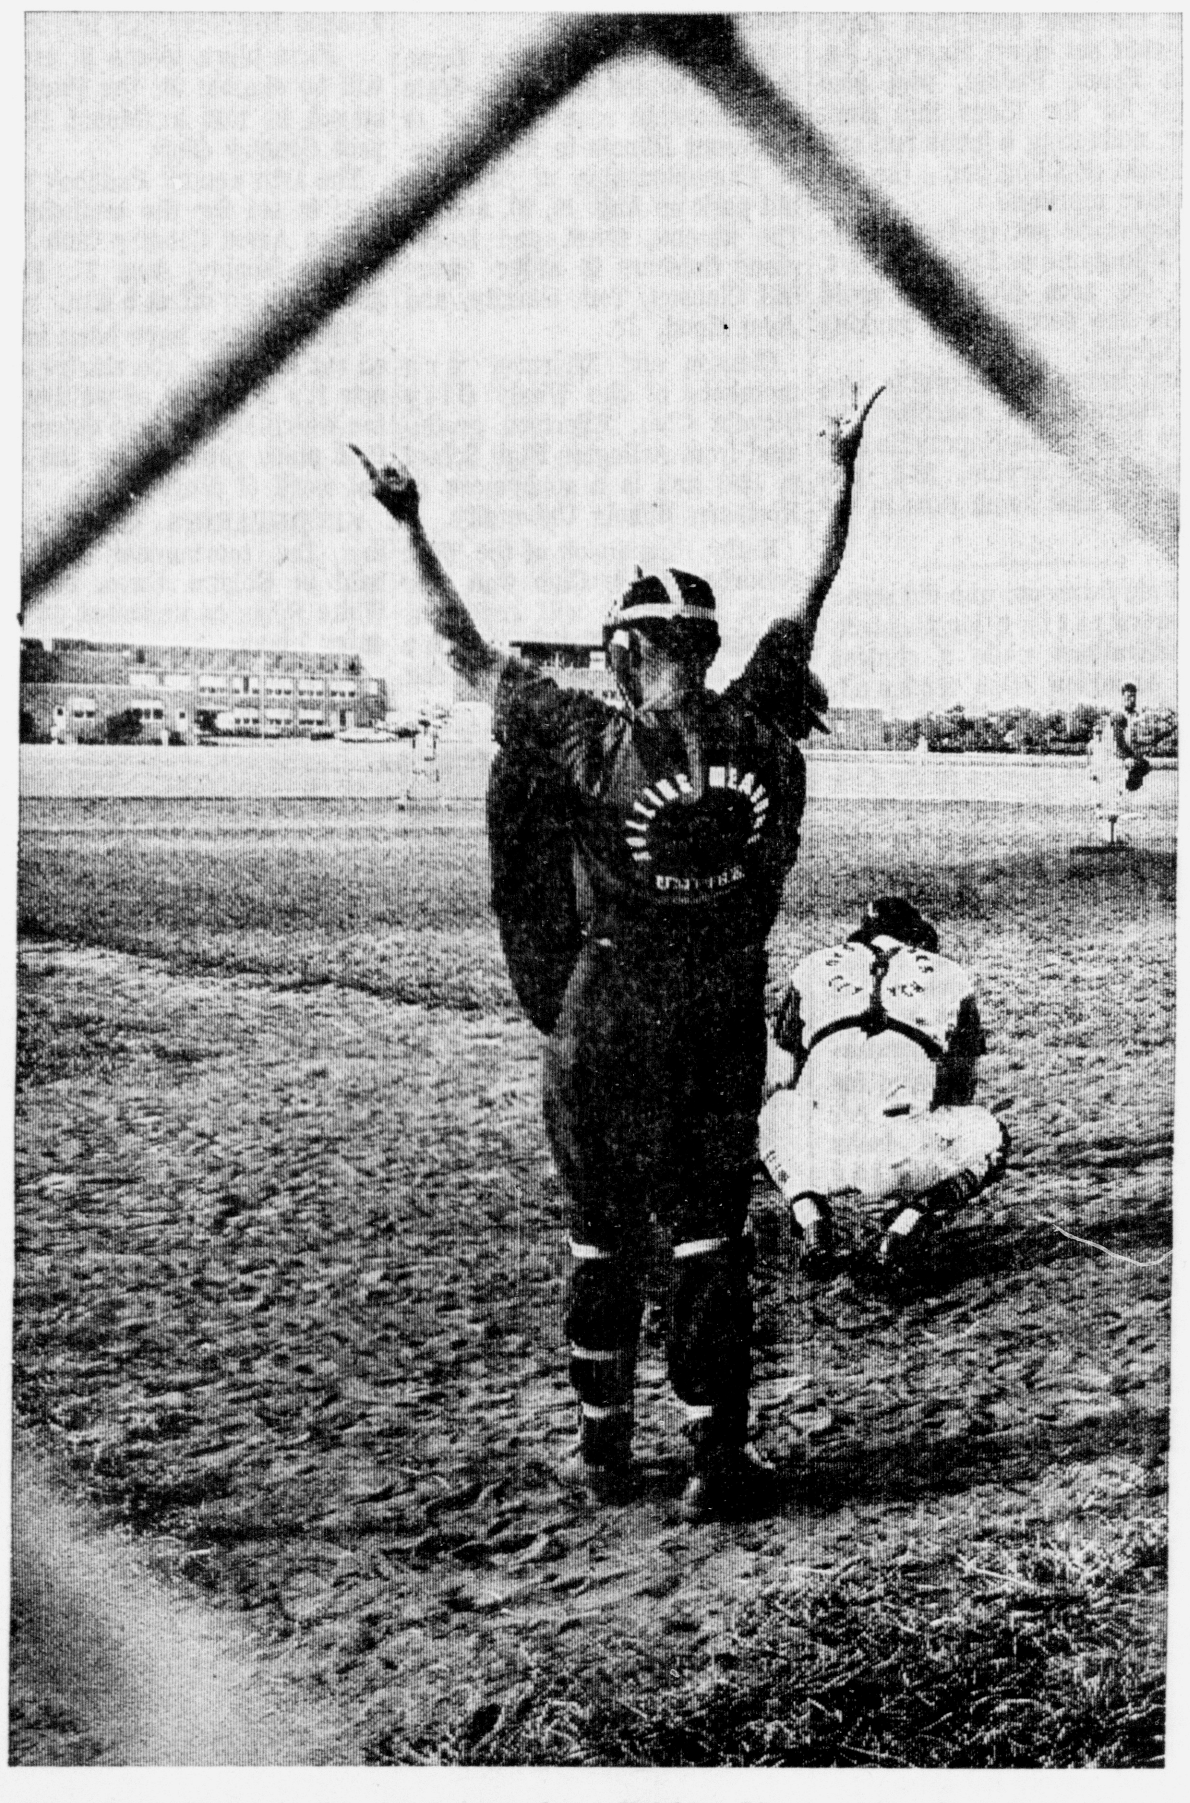
Twin Power Explodes

The Minnesota Twins were the last major-league club to blast two grand-slam homers in one game. Bob Allison and Harmon Killebrew performed this feat on July 18, 1962.



"ONE AND TWO!" is the signal from the umpire during a pause in last Thursday's baseball game between the Palatine American Legion team and the Lions of Arlington Heights. Lions' catcher Greg Luzinski rests at the plate, while pitcher Mike Miller looks in. Palatine won the game 3-2.

YOU MIGHT TRY ARCHERY.

The suggestion is offered to those sportsmen impatient with waiting for fish to bite and for hunting season to arrive, and in search of something outdoorsy to keep them occupied.

This sport of putting bow to arrow and sending the shaft true to a target is not only engaging, sometimes-exciting and clearly skillful, but it can indeed be an absorbing way to spend one's recreation hours.

This, with candor, is not offered as advice from an expert, since most of the string-twanging from these nimble hands has produced more lost lumber than punctured targets.

But archery — which ranks in antiquity with stone-throwing and lance-thrusting—stands with the ultimates in target shooting, and certainly in hunting, where fair game for the sport's greats has ranged from snakes to elephants, with the whitetail deer perhaps the classic quarry.

Though ancient, it's a sport that's addicted to the new, not only in equipment like laminated bows and fiberglass arrows, but in technique. It was just such a new technique—a truly intriguing challenge—that brought archery to mind during this siege of steaming weather.

Imagine, if you will, sending the slender shaft of an arrow in flight after a speeding clay disc four inches in diameter, and hitting it. That—call it arrow skeet if you will—may become the new vogue among bow and arrow enthusiasts.

Reported in the July-August issue of Bow and Arrow magazine—which is as close as anything to being a continuing archery bible—the technique goes another step beyond what began with still targets. The target is an actual clay pigeon, launched on a trap and skeet range as it is for shotgunners, only bowmen try to shatter it. And—in the California test reported—several actually did.

It shows what feats can be accomplished with the implements, but truly it's not for beginners.

If you are a beginner, or would like to be, the best place to start is a sporting goods store, where—until you graduate to an advanced stage—you can acquire the basic equipment without too much expense.

One can train himself in archery if he so chooses, drilling out of magazines or books, or under the guidance of instructors offered by several of the area's park districts, or in the solitude of a back yard.

There are, if you're really serious about the sport, archery clubs, though none that I've heard of with much following in Northwest Suburbia.

The most active in this general area—and I accent general—include the Windy City Bowmen at 3109 W. Armitage on Chicago's northwest side, and the Waukegan Archer's Club which—as mentioned here a week ago—sponsors an elaborate target course on some rugged Wisconsin terrain.

Clubs like these have frequent meetings and dispense liberal advice—by word and film—on how and where to use bows and arrows. A better source for general information might be the Illinois Archery Association, headquartered at 3956 N. Avondale in Chicago.

If you do take up with the bow—and I've just talked myself back into it—you'll have company. Bowhunting alone—and that doesn't count the purely target-shooters—there are 7,000,000 Americans.

SQUIRRELS AND DOVES return as fair game on Sept. 1. The conservation department, mulling dates and limits for the popular game creatures in 1966, has set the Northern Zone squirrel season to run from Sept. 1 through Oct. 31, with the daily bag limit five and possession limit 10. In the Southern Zone—south of U.S. Route 36—the season is Aug. 1 through Oct. 15, with the limits the same.

Dove season—after the Sept. 1 beginning—will continue through Nov. 9, though by then most doves are far gone anyway. The limit is liberal, with 12 birds allowed a day and 24 in possession.

Squirrel hunting hours will be from sunrise to sunset every day of the season, but for doves, you're supposed to confine your shooting between 1 p.m. CDT and sunset.

Compete for Scholarships

High school graduates from 37 states will compete for $10,500 in scholarships July 29-August 1 in the 1966 All-America Youth Bowling Championships in Washington, D. C., co-sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America and the Sport of Bowling Council.

One youngster from each state will compete in each of the tournament's three divisions; boys scratch, boys handicap and girls handicap. Seven $500 scholarships will be awarded in each division.

In order to comply with eligibility rules for state high school and college groups, the scholarships will be awarded on the basis of both scholastic and bowling achievement, with 70 per cent of the emphasis on scholastic achievement and 30 per cent on bowling.

College entrance-type examinations will be administered the opening day of the tornament by the American Schools Association, a college scholarship counselling firm headquartered in Chicago. The association will also grade the examinations and assign points in each of the four categories of competition.

While competing for the scholarships and national youth bowling championships, the contestants and their chaperones will be headquartered in Washington's Shoreham Hotel and will participate in a full schedule of group activities, including tours of historical points of interest in the area.

Lions Play 'Best Baseball' But Win Only Two Contests

The Lions of Arlington Heights showed improvement but still had to accept a 2-5 record for their latest week of baseball work.

"We played our best ball of the season last week and still won only two games," head coach Larry Nomellini said. "The boys had only one bad game, that second one with Rockford Sunday" (a 6-5 loss).

JOHN WENDELL

FRANK PATZKE
Aids Attack

The locals have already played 55 games, two more than in the entire 1965 season and far more than other area high school and Legion teams play in a season. The Lions have won 24, lost 30, and tied one in their demanding schedule.

GREG LUZINSKI, who joined the Lions two weeks ago after toiling for Morton Grove's Legion nine, continued his lusty hitting. The Notre Dame junior, who lives in Prospect Heights, has now collected 20 hits in 43 at-bats for a .465 average.

In the "bad" game Nomellini referred to, the second game of a Sunday doubleheader, the host Rockford nine pushed across the winning run in the bottom of the sixth for a 6-5 victory as the Lions were guilty of a staggering seven errors.

THREE OF the Lions' errors came in the last two innings, opening the door for three unearned runs that made the difference.

Brian Rooney, who started on the hill for Nomellini's nine, deserved a better fate. He scattered six his and allowed only one earned run.

A walk to John Wendell and successive singles by Luzinski and Frank Patzke gave the locals a quick 2-0 advantage in the first. They increased it to 3-0 in the second on another walk and two base hits.

ROCKFORD CUT the lead with a two-run second, but the Lions went in front 4-2 in the fourth on three walks and a sacrifice fly by John Brawley.

The hosts pushed across a run in the fourth and two in the fifth to take a 5-4 lead before the Lions rallied to tie the score n the sixth. A triple by Patzke and a double by Brawley did the damage.

However, a single and two errors gave Rockford the winning marker in the bottom of the sixth.

THE ARLINGTON Heights-based ball club also dropped a close one in the opener of the twin bill, losing 3-2 in a 13-inning marathon.

Starter Mike Miller hurled brilliant two-hit ball for nine innings in what Nomellini termed the team's "best game of the season."

However, the Lions themselves could muster just one safety and neither team could crack the scoring column until the tenth.

The Lions marked up a pair of tallies and appeared to have a substantial margin for the victory. Greg Luzinski was responsible for the temporary advantage, belting a clutch home run after Wendell had reached on a walk.

BUT WITH two out and a man on first in the bottom of the tenth, Rockford used the same weapon—the home run—to force the contest into extra frames.

Neither team budged until the 13th when Rockford finally tagged Brian Rooney with the deciding run. An error, sacrifice, groundout, and infield single over the pitcher's head settled the issue.

On Saturday, Brawley had gone the distance as the Lions breezed to a 7-1 league win over the Hornets at Chicago's Winnemac Park.

THE LOCALS actually settled the issue wth a four-run first on three hits, two walks, two errors, and four stolen bases. Nomellini's nine added a single marker in the second before a two-run double by Luzinski in the sixth concluded the scoring.

The Lions collected a healthy total of nine hits, with Luzinski going 3-for-4, Brawley 2-for-2, and Len Basak 2-for-3.

Brawley allowed only three hits and struck out six. The Hornets' only run scored on a double, error, and single in the fifth inning.

THE LOCALS dropped a 2-0 decision Friday to Hillside, a finalist in the Cook County Legion tourney, despite a fine mound performance by Wendell.

An unearned run in the first was all Hillside really needed, as Nomellini's boys managed only one hit off the slants of Mike Koc. That was a leadoff triple by Luzinski in the fourth inning which was wasted.

Hillside's insurance run in the sixth was also unearned and resulted from a double and another error.

IN AN AREA clash last Thursday, the Lions met Palatine's Legion nine (see separate story for results).

Wednesday saw the Lions lose a 5-3 league game to the Spartans, a team made up of players from Gordon Tech and Weber High Schools.

Brian Rooney absorbed the hill loss for the Lions, who blew a 3-1 lead entering the bottom of the sixth.

The locals grabbed a 2-0 advantage in the first frame on a two-run double by Frank Patzke after a walk and an error.

THE SPARTANS halved the deficit in the fourth, but the Lions took command by a 3-1 count in the sixth. A hit, stolen base, wild pitch, and sacrifice fly by Patzke accounted for the last run. Patzke drove in all three runs and Luzinski scored two of them.

But the Lions couldn't hold the lead and the Spartans exploded for four runs in the sixth to put the game away.

Tom Collins went the distance last Tuesday (June 19) as the Lions used a last-inning marker to pull out a tight 3-2 decision over visiting Fenton High School.

Collins hurled an excellent game, striking out seven and permitting just four hits. One of the two runs against him was unearned.

THE UNEARNED tally came in the top of the second and gave Fenton a temporary 1-0 lead The Lions matched the marker in the bottom of the second on two singles wrapped around a stolen base. Rich Leitzen drove in Collins with the run.

Fenton fought back to take the lead again in the fourth, but the Lions pulled even again in the fifth. Wendell authored a two-out single, stole second, and waltzed home on Luzinski's hit.

Rich Leitzen collected his second hit and second RBI for the winning marker in the sixth after Rooney singled and advanced on an error.

SQUIRRELS AND DOVES return as fair game on Sept. 1.

The conservation department, mulling dates and limits for the popular game creatures in 1966, has set the Northern Zone squirrel season to run from Sept. 1 through Oct. 31, with the daily bag limit five and possession limit 10. In the Southern Zone—south of U.S. Route 36—the season is Aug. 1 through Oct. 15, with the limits the same.

Dove season—after the Sept. 1 beginning—will continue through Nov. 9, though by then most doves are far gone anyway. The limit is liberal, with 12 birds allowed a day and 24 in possession.

Squirrel hunting hours will be from sunrise to sunset every day of the season, but for doves, you're supposed to confine your shooting between 1 p.m. CDT and sunset.

Compete for Scholarships

High school graduates from 37 states will compete for $10,500 in scholarships July 29-August 1 in the 1966 All-America Youth Bowling Championships in Washington, D. C., co-sponsored by the Bowling Proprietors' Association of America and the Sport of Bowling Council.

One youngster from each state will compete in each of the tournament's three divisions; boys scratch, boys handicap and girls handicap. Seven $500 scholarships will be awarded in each division.

In order to comply with eligibility rules for state high school and college groups, the scholarships will be awarded on the basis of both scholastic and bowling achievement, with 70 per cent of the emphasis on scholastic achievement and 30 per cent on bowling.

College entrance-type examinations will be administered the opening day of the tornament by the American Schools Association, a college scholarship counselling firm headquartered in Chicago. The association will also grade the examinations and assign points in each of the four categories of competition.

While competing for the scholarships and national youth bowling championships, the contestants and their chaperones will be headquartered in Washington's Shoreham Hotel and will participate in a full schedule of group activities, including tours of historical points of interest in the area.

Lions Play 'Best Baseball' But Win Only Two Contests

The Lions of Arlington Heights showed improvement but still had to accept a 2-5 record for their latest week of baseball work.

"We played our best ball of the season last week and still won only two games," head coach Larry Nomellini said. "The boys had only one bad game, that second one with Rockford Sunday" (a 6-5 loss).

The locals have already played 55 games, two more than in the entire 1965 season and far more than other area high school and Legion teams play in a season. The Lions have won 24, lost 30, and tied one in their demanding schedule.

GREG LUZINSKI, who joined the Lions two weeks ago after toiling for Morton Grove's Legion nine, continued his lusty hitting. The Notre Dame junior, who lives in Prospect Heights, has now collected 20 hits in 43 at-bats for a .465 average.

In the "bad" game Nomellini referred to, the second game of a Sunday doubleheader, the host Rockford nine pushed across the winning run in the bottom of the sixth for a 6-5 victory as the Lions were guilty of a staggering seven errors.

THREE OF the Lions' errors came in the last two innings, opening the door for three unearned runs that made the difference.

Brian Rooney, who started on the hill for Nomellini's nine, deserved a better fate. He scattered six his and allowed only one earned run.

A walk to John Wendell and successive singles by Luzinski and Frank Patzke gave the locals a quick 2-0 advantage in the first. They increased it to 3-0 in the second on another walk and two base hits.

ROCKFORD CUT the lead with a two-run second, but the Lions went in front 4-2 in the fourth on three walks and a sacrifice fly by John Brawley.

The hosts pushed across a run in the fourth and two in the fifth to take a 5-4 lead before the Lions rallied to tie the score n the sixth. A triple by Patzke and a double by Brawley did the damage.

However, a single and two errors gave Rockford the winning marker in the bottom of the sixth.

THE ARLINGTON Heights-based ball club also dropped a close one in the opener of the twin bill, losing 3-2 in a 13-inning marathon.

Starter Mike Miller hurled brilliant two-hit ball for nine innings in what Nomellini termed the team's "best game of the season."

However, the Lions themselves could muster just one safety and neither team could crack the scoring column until the tenth.

The Lions marked up a pair of tallies and appeared to have a substantial margin for the victory. Greg Luzinski was responsible for the temporary advantage, belting a clutch home run after Wendell had reached on a walk.

BUT WITH two out and a man on first in the bottom of the tenth, Rockford used the same weapon—the home run—to force the contest into extra frames.

Neither team budged until the 13th when Rockford finally tagged Brian Rooney with the deciding run. An error, sacrifice, groundout, and infield single over the pitcher's head settled the issue.

On Saturday, Brawley had gone the distance as the Lions breezed to a 7-1 league win over the Hornets at Chicago's Winnemac Park.

THE LOCALS actually settled the issue wth a four-run first on three hits, two walks, two errors, and four stolen bases. Nomellini's nine added a single marker in the second before a two-run double by Luzinski in the sixth concluded the scoring.

The Lions collected a healthy total of nine hits, with Luzinski going 3-for-4, Brawley 2-for-2, and Len Basak 2-for-3.

Brawley allowed only three hits and struck out six. The Hornets' only run scored on a double, error, and single in the fifth inning.

THE LOCALS dropped a 2-0 decision Friday to Hillside, a finalist in the Cook County Legion tourney, despite a fine mound performance by Wendell.

An unearned run in the first was all Hillside really needed, as Nomellini's boys managed only one hit off the slants of Mike Koc. That was a leadoff triple by Luzinski in the fourth inning which was wasted.

Hillside's insurance run in the sixth was also unearned and resulted from a double and another error.

IN AN AREA clash last Thursday, the Lions met Palatine's Legion nine (see separate story for results).

Wednesday saw the Lions lose a 5-3 league game to the Spartans, a team made up of players from Gordon Tech and Weber High Schools.

Brian Rooney absorbed the hill loss for the Lions, who blew a 3-1 lead entering the bottom of the sixth.

The locals grabbed a 2-0 advantage in the first frame on a two-run double by Frank Patzke after a walk and an error.

THE SPARTANS halved the deficit in the fourth, but the Lions took command by a 3-1 count in the sixth. A hit, stolen base, wild pitch, and sacrifice fly by Patzke accounted for the last run. Patzke drove in all three runs and Luzinski scored two of them.

But the Lions couldn't hold the lead and the Spartans exploded for four runs in the sixth to put the game away.

Tom Collins went the distance last Tuesday (June 19) as the Lions used a last-inning marker to pull out a tight 3-2 decision over visiting Fenton High School.

Collins hurled an excellent game, striking out seven and permitting just four hits. One of the two runs against him was unearned.

THE UNEARNED tally came in the top of the second and gave Fenton a temporary 1-0 lead The Lions matched the marker in the bottom of the second on two singles wrapped around a stolen base. Rich Leitzen drove in Collins with the run.

Fenton fought back to take the lead again in the fourth, but the Lions pulled even again in the fifth. Wendell authored a two-out single, stole second, and waltzed home on Luzinski's hit.

Rich Leitzen collected his second hit and second RBI for the winning marker in the sixth after Rooney singled and advanced on an error.

Pharmacy Win Good for Third

Prospect Heights Pharmacy jumped from fifth to third place, just 8½ points back of the leading Rodewald Dairy team, by virtue of a 6-1 victory over a strong Joy-Di squad.

Marty Meilke, playing as a No. 4 man, was team low net man in this match with his best round of the year 43-8-35, good for two big points for the pill rollers.

Rodewald Dairy applied the whitewash brush to Rankin Radio 7-0 which gave them a 7½ point lead over second place L-Nor Cleaners. Warren Erven and Bob Lee led the Dairy squad to victory—both having 39-3-36. At this stage of the season it is almost a certainty that Rodewald will represent Rob Roy in the forthcoming Paddock Tournament on August 21 as the deadline on team standins is August 6.

Second place L-Nor Cleaners knocked Webber Paint into fourth place wth a decisive 6-1 win as No. 2 man, Frank Noverini, had another fine round of 38-4-34 for team low net.

Al Rihs, playing in the No. 4 slot for Gunnell's Restaurant, provided the big thrill of the evening when he hit a 170 yard iron shot into the cup on the 17th hole for an eagle two. To top it all off Al shot his best round of the year 45-13-32 for team low net and a tie with Bob Voight of Prospect Heights Barber 39-7-32 for league low net.

Frank's Beauty Salon squeezed out an 8-6 victory over fifth-place Dern's Dairy Service Tuesday to move into second place in the Hoffman 59ers Ladies' Golf League, a scant ½ point in front of the former runners-up, M'Gonigle & Sloan.

Kruse's Falls Back

Thunderbird's Margin Widens

Thunderbird Bowl short-circuited Mount Prospect Electric Construction Co. 7½-2½ last week in Tuesday night Mount Prospect Twilight League competition, putting a damper on the Electrician's hopes of moving up in league standings at least for one night.

The victory also strengthened Thunderbird's own position considerably in view of second-place Kruse Tavern's 9-1 loss to Kirchhoff insurance.

The Thunderbird team now finds itself with a ten point lead over its closest pursurers and, barring complete collapse in the next two weeks should be the division's representative in the Paddock Publications Inter-League Tournament.

KRUSE'S UPSET by second-division Kirchhoff Insurance was an unexpected development. Kirchhoff captain Ben Kopriva led the way with a 41 gross, winning two points from Kruse captain Howard Ross plus a bonus point for low individual net. His net of 31 also stood up as lowest of all contestants and gave him league low net honors for the evening.

Hal Jauch and Bob Milligan of Kirchhoff both contributed two points to the team total, while Dave Shean had to settle for one point in his match. Glenn Adams, Shean's opponent, was the only point winner for the shocked Kruse forces.

Meanwhile, third place Licht's Paint Store, struggling to keep alive, managed to eke out a 5-5 tie with Wille Lumber and Fuel. This left Licht's a mere 2/3 point behind Kruse's but 10½ out of first.

IN OTHER matches Kersting Garden Center overwhelmed Carter Music Shop 8½- 1½ and moved up another notch to fifth place, Keefer's Pharmacy bowed to Busse-Biermann Hardware 7½-2½, and Moler's Barber Shop clipped Illinois Range 6-4.

Low shooters for the session were Jim Driscoll and Pat Danna with 39s. Birdies were reported by K. Shipley No. 3, J. Driscoll No. 9, A. Hammerstrom No. 12, and P. Danna No. 16.

Team standings:

Thunderbird Bowl	79½
Kruse's Tav and Rest.	69-2/3
Licht's Paint Store	69
Mt. Pros. Elec Constr.	64½
Kersting Garden Center	60½
Keefer's Pharmacy	59-7/12
Busse-Biermann Hrdw.	58½

Moler's Barber Shop	54
Wille Lumber and Fuel	54

Old Orchard Ladies League

Event of the day in the Old Orchard ladies golf league was Low Putts.

Winners were Fran Briggs, Lee Small, and Rose Podlesak.

"WANNA RACE?" may be the challenge from young Jan Jones to Ocean Sea Breeze Stable's Toulore, but the odds are that Toulore would be more concerned about this Saturday's planned running of the $50,000 Arlington Handicap at Arlington Park. Toulore, winner of the Coronado Handicap this year, is expected in the field for the 37th running of the race.

Doyno Motors Beaten; Surrenders Top Spot

Keefer's Pharmacy defeated Doyno Motors 7-1 to move into first place in the Mount Prospect Friday Night golf league.

Gordon Stephan, the winners' captain, toured the back nine in 38 strokes to best rival captain Dick Wood. Dick Haden and Joe Szostek picked up points for Keefer's as they turned back Roger Roggatz and Ted Small. Roggaiz salvaged one net point for the second-place Doyno Motors and averted a shutout.

Pro Sport Shop maintained its third position despite an 8-2 loss to Willie Fuel and Lumber. Harold Lins, T. Cara, Bob Rinehart, and G. Borgeson were all point-gainers for the victorious Lumbermen, who vaulted from seventh to fourth place with the victory.

Fishing for Fun

Anglers: Take Care In Climbing Trails

Getting there is half the battle, but well worth it—if you do.

Those who have slogged up steep and rugged trails through scrubby undergrowth to get to a clear mountain lake at the timberline know what we're talking about. This season, more thousands will be making this annual pilgrimage to high-altitude fishing waters, the Chicago Heart Association notes. They'll be courting many an unforeseen hazard as well as the bright speckled trout at the end of the line.

Take the case of "Bill," who made his way up tortuous trails into a wilderness area in the Wyoming Rockies, only to collapse and die in the attempt.

"I can't understand it," mourned his friend. "We two fished this stream for years. Bill just lived to get up here, sweat his way up that trail. Nothing like it when you've been shut up in an office."

Bill's doctor filled in the picture: "He was fifty pounds overweight, soft, he smoked too much, ate too much, drank too much, and his blood pressure was sky high—classic candidate for a coronary." He had advised his patient the previous winter to modify his living habits, slow down, but Bill thought a few days in his old mountain haunts would get him back in shape in no time.

For "Tom," it was quite another matter—and this is no "fish story." Tom had suffered a heart attack, and assumed that his trout-fishing days were over. But a newspaper item cast a ray of hope. "According to the Chicago Heart Association," he read, "previous victims of heart attack may still enjoy the pleasures of hunting and fishing. Your physician is the man to judge whether you can take the rigors of any trip you may plan. With his approval, plus prudence and self-restraint, you may enjoy your trip safely."

Tom checked with his doctor, told him how high and how far he planned to hike, and the type of terrain he would be covering. After a thorough physical examination, he was given a safe conduct clearance along with some sound advice. Two friends, who also had heart conditions, planned to join him. A healthy friend agreed to go along.

Checking with Tom's doctor and his local Heart Association, he supervised the packing of duffel bags, making sure the campers had adequate and proper clothing for the cool and often suddenly wet high country, as well as a supply of necessary medications. He was briefed on the symptoms of an impending heart attack; how to recognize them and what to do for the victim. (This information is detailed in a leaflet, labeled "Heart Attack," available from the Chicago Heart Association.) He made his own preparations and arrangements to secure medical help in an emergency.

Pacing themselves sensibly, to give their hearts time to adjust to the thin mountain air, the campers reached their destination in good shape. The rest is a fish story.

Kruse's Falls Back

Thunderbird's Margin Widens

Thunderbird Bowl short-circuited Mount Prospect Electric Construction Co. 7½-2½ last week in Tuesday night Mount Prospect Twilight League competition, putting a damper on the Electrician's hopes of moving up in league standings at least for one night.

The victory also strengthened Thunderbird's own position considerably in view of second-place Kruse Tavern's 9-1 loss to Kirchhoff insurance.

The Thunderbird team now finds itself with a ten point lead over its closest pursurers and, barring complete collapse in the next two weeks should be the division's representative in the Paddock Publications Inter-League Tournament.

KRUSE'S UPSET by second-division Kirchhoff Insurance was an unexpected development. Kirchhoff captain Ben Kopriva led the way with a 41 gross, winning two points from Kruse captain Howard Ross plus a bonus point for low individual net. His net of 31 also stood up as lowest of all contestants and gave him league low net honors for the evening.

Hal Jauch and Bob Milligan of Kirchhoff both contributed two points to the team total, while Dave Shean had to settle for one point in his match. Glenn Adams, Shean's opponent, was the only point winner for the shocked Kruse forces.

Meanwhile, third place Licht's Paint Store, struggling to keep alive, managed to eke out a 5-5 tie with Wille Lumber and Fuel. This left Licht's a mere 2/3 point behind Kruse's but 10½ out of first.

IN OTHER matches Kersting Garden Center overwhelmed Carter Music Shop 8½- 1½ and moved up another notch to fifth place, Keefer's Pharmacy bowed to Busse-Biermann Hardware 7½-2½, and Moler's Barber Shop clipped Illinois Range 6-4.

Low shooters for the session were Jim Driscoll and Pat Danna with 39s. Birdies were reported by K. Shipley No. 3, J. Driscoll No. 9, A. Hammerstrom No. 12, and P. Danna No. 16.

Event of the day in the Old Orchard ladies golf league was Low Putts.

Winners were Fran Briggs, Lee Small, and Rose Podlesak.

"WANNA RACE?" may be the challenge from young Jan Jones to Ocean Sea Breeze Stable's Toulore, but the odds are that Toulore would be more concerned about this Saturday's planned running of the $50,000 Arlington Handicap at Arlington Park. Toulore, winner of the Coronado Handicap this year, is expected in the field for the 37th running of the race.

Arlington Camera Shop bumped Clayton Courts 6-2, Pete's Standard Service upset Bainbridge Apartments 6-4, Esquire Barber Shop lost to George S. May Co. 7-3, and Kruse's Restaurant edged Mount Prospect State Bank 6-4 in the remaining matches.

Children Enjoy Seeing Mother in Stage Role

Each weekend Mrs. Paula Alvarado of Arlington Heights trades her real life role of mother and homemaker for one in the make-believe world of children's theater.

Paula Alvarado is a member of the Tale Tellers theatre group now appearing in "Hansel and Gretel" Saturdays and Sundays at the Country Club Theatre in Mount Prospect. She has already played in "The Emperor's New Clothes" and will be seen in the future in productions of "Rumpelstiltskin," starting July 30, and then "Beauty and the Beast" slated to begin Aug. 20.

Mrs. Alvarado's three children, Darya, 7; James Paul, 4, and Jacqi, 3, are delighted to see their mother perform. And she is well prepared for these featured appearances too, having been in 17 productions at Goodman Theatre and in 10 productions of the Actor's Company. In addition she appears frequently on Chicago television commercials.

THE. FACT that Paula Alvarado has been on the stage with Sir Cedric Hardwicke, Ernest Truex and Luther Adler doesn't impress her three youngsters as much as that on stage she can defeat the evil witch or win the handsome prince.

Each Saturday at 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. and again Sunday at 2 o'clock, the house lights go down at Country Club Theatre and the stage lights come up on another children's fantasy. After the performance members of the audience may meet members of the cast and learn about an actor's life.

The three young Alvarados don't understand why the audience makes such a fuss about talking with the lovely princess. They talk with her all the time. After all, she's their mother.

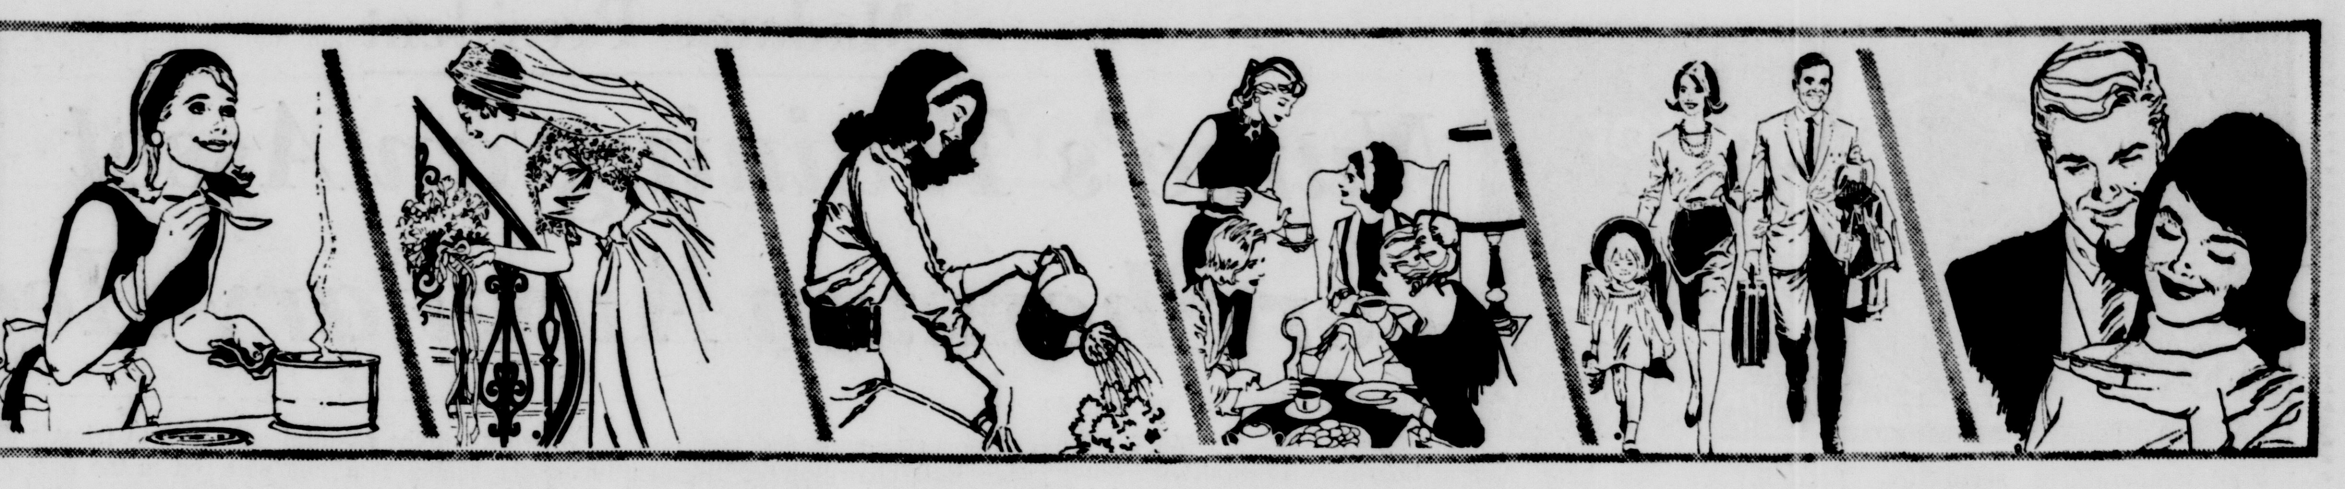
Suburban Living

Especially for Women



PART A

PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS THURS., JULY 28, 1966

'Homebody' Her Favorite Role

She Toils for Library

by PAT ADAM
Suburban Living Editor

Claudia Cato, young Streamwood homemaker and mother of four children aged 7 and down, says she really prefers being a "homebody."

But since she first became involved with the Tri-Village Organization for Improved Library Service (TOILS) more than a year ago, the attractive brunette has found it impossible to remain in strictly that role.

Sipping a soft drink as she explained her various responsibilities in TOILS, Claudia admitted she's never been a "joiner" and her only civic activity prior to TOILS was with the Hanover Township Young Republicans for which she's handled publicity and been recording secretary.

It was because of husband Sid, a professional publicist, that Claudia found herself working so diligently the past 16 months for TOILS. Sid already had earned a reputation as a go-getter while serving as Streamwood's special assistant for civic affairs so he was a natural to be asked to help when the organizing committee for obtaining adequate library service for Streamwood, Hanover Park and Bartlett was formed in the spring of 1965.

According to Claudia, Sid volunteered her services, and the couple was assigned the task of co-publicity chairmen. Later Claudia added the responsibility of chairman of the vital statistics subcommittee.

Since then TOILS has been an important part of the Catos' lives, but Claudia is glad it no longer consumes as much of her time as it did. Most of the hard work has been done, and it remains for the voters of Streamwood to decide now whether the village is to have its own library.

This summer Claudia is enjoying a relaxed life with the couple's four youngsters, Matt, 7; Julie, 6; Cyd, 5, and Stuart, 4.

Last summer was a different story.

By nature a meticulous housekeeper who also loves to sew and considers she is short-changing her family if she doesn't bake for them, Claudia had to let all but the essential homemaking duties slide.

Her time was taken up with preparing and distributing questionnaires to school principals, teachers and students; conducting a house-to-house poll; setting up three summer libraries sponsored by TOILS in Streamwood and also running one of the three, plus writing publicity releases about TOILS' activities. .

When the results of the poll and the questionnaires were computed and released last fall, it was clear that area residents favored better library service but on a town-by-town rather than a township basis. So TOILS finally recommended that each of the three communities hold its own referendum. Streamwood's has been set for Sept. 10.

Claudia confesses she wanted a local library all along and felt she could exert the most influence in that direction by working in TOILS. Once the committee voted for separate referendums, she was appointed head of a special Library for Streamwood Committee.

Of all her accomplishments in TOILS, Claudia is proudest of the summer libraries that circulated an average of 900 books a week for a summer's total of 5,600 through the assistance of the Illinois State Library. There were 887 persons registered in the program, conducted in three Streamwood schools, with 80 per cent of these readers grade school children.

As her responsibilities with TOILS slacken now, Claudia hopes to resume her homemaking with zest.

"Sid loves casseroles, and I haven't made one in more than a year," she said.

She wants to cook those again and bake the family's desserts instead of buying store goodies.

She's also looking forward to doing some home decorating. After five years in their neat gray and white bi-level, the Catos just this past year fixed the living room as they wanted. It's attractively done in deep red flocked wallpaper and paneling and furnished in a traditional style. Now Claudia is anxious to redecorate elsewhere in the house. The couple do the work themselves.

"When Sid has to be out of town, I like to tear a room apart," she remarked.

Though altogether contented with her homemaker role, Claudia won't be giving up civic activity completely. She has accepted the job of program chairman for the Young Republicans for the next year. But she harbors no ambitions to hold an office in the YR organization.

"I'm willing to head a committee but I don't want any office," she said firmly.

Folk Concert to Benefit Lake Bluff Home

Lovers of good folk music are invited to hear one of the most popular groups in the country and aid needy children at the same time when they attend the summer benefit for Lake Bluff Children's Home Friday, Aug. 12, at Ravinia Park, featuring the Serendipity Singers.

Hundreds of invitations have been mailed out to Lake Bluff patrons and adoptive parents, and reserved seat tickets for the "family type" benefit are already half gone, according to Mrs. Herbert A. Cornelius of Arlington Heights., general ticket chairman for the exclusive Aug. 12 appearance.

IN A RECENT 8-week tour of American colleges the Serendipity Singers played 51 concerts, reports Mrs. Richard L. Bronwell of Arlington Heights, who is in charge of donors and invitations for the upcoming Ravinia folk concert.

"It's the kind of music that makes you want to take your shoes off and relax," says Mrs. John K. Auld of Arlington Heights, chairman of the benefit's special arrangements committee. She and her committee will prepare 500 box suppers which will be offered as an added attraction at the concert.

The Serendipity Singers, who started at the University of Colorado, have appeared on TV on Hootenanny, Bell Telephone Hour, Jack Paar Show and the Ed Sullivan Show.

Tickets for their Aug. 12 concert can be obtained from Mrs. Cornelius, CL 3-9370. All proceeds from tickets and the box suppers will aid Lake Bluff Children's Home and are tax deductible, according to Mrs. Cornelius.

Sisters Across the Centuries

Plastic dresses and "kooky" hairdos notwithstanding, the woman of today is very much like her sister who lived in this hemisphere centuries before Columbus discovered America.

At least that's what physicians concluded who flocked to see an exhibit of pre-Columbian sculpture shown at a meeting of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

The clay figures, some of them 4,000 years old, tell a vivid story of a people who flourished in Central and South America centuries, before the Aztecs, Incas or Mayans.

According to Dr. Abner I. Weisman, owner of the fabulous collection, who has studied thousands of the figures, in many ways women haven't changed much in 40 centuries.

HE SAYS that the little pre-Columbian girl, as girls today, played with toys of all kinds and with dolls. As she grew older, she loved to wear jewelry and pretty clothes.

She matured earlier than girls do today, he said, probably beginning to menstruate at eight or ten years of age.

The time came, Dr. Weisman noted, as it does to all girls, when boys began to be important. "The young woman then, as now, wanted to be attractive to the opposite sex. Many sculptures show women with beautiful, elaborate hairdos, rouged faces and adorned with attractive jewelry," the doctor said.

Fashions in figures changed then as now.

"AT TIMES IT was fashionable to be big busted," Dr. Weisman observed. "And at other times big derrieres were all the rage."

In at least one way, though, modern woman has a distinct advantage over her pre-Columbian sister. Childbirth was "natural" then, and this is how it occurred. A woman who felt her time had come went off by herself, delivered her own baby, severed the umbilical cord, then went about her usual tasks.

Only when she was having a problem did she call for help from a midwife-neighbor, the medicine man or her husband, according to Dr. Weisman, who is clinical professor of New York Medical College in New York City.

Then, as now, twins posed a problem to their parents.

"A TWIN BIRTH brought either sorrow or rejoicing, depending on the tribe," the collector explained. "In some tribes twins were considered a sign of infidelity by the mother. She was punished severely, often banished from the tribe. One twin was put to death. In other tribes, twins were regarded as a special blessing from the gods—and occasioned festivities."

Unlike their modern counterparts, the ancient woman rarely experienced menopause. Why not? Because most women died young, according to Dr. Weisman.

Formula for Fun: A Pair of Siamese Cats

By BILLIE BACHHUBER

The only difference in living with two Siamese cats instead of one is that you have twice as much trouble and it costs you twice as much.

Even so, if you have high blood pressure or you are a little on the nervous side, you'd better settle for a bowl of goldfish. Siamese cats aren't for you! They insist on top billing in any household, and if you think you are at all important in the scheme of things, you may as well forget it.

One disdainful look from those half-closed slanted blue eyes can bring you to proper humility no matter what mischief the cat has gotten into or what damage has been perpetrated.

OUR FIRST introduction to the delightful but devious Siamese was a gift from a friend. He was what is known in the cat fancier's world as a blue-point (no relation to an oyster). He was a soft, creamy color with silver gray markings (known as points) on his face, ears, tail and legs. His eyes were large and a bright, china blue.

He was a beautiful and friendly addition to our family, but he had one peculiar habit I haven't missed. At least once a day he'd sneak up behind me, wrap his front legs around the calf of my leg and nip . . . hard! Then he'd dash away so fast he couldn't be caught, let alone chastised.

He finally got his come-uppance one day. He had played his little joke, but he wasn't quite fast enough. As the bite was harder than usual, my foot kicked backward instinctively and caught him squarely in the face! Such a fuss!

NATURALLY, I FELT as if it were all my fault, and instead of giving him another good kick as he deserved, I was very solicitous.

After the demise of Smoki (for his smoky coloring), we immediately acquired another cat. This one was a delicate little female with fur soft as nylon plush and deep brown-black points, known as a seal-point Siamese.

If you think all cats are alike, we can tell you definitely that this isn't true. Whereas Smoki was friendly, affectionate and more than a little mischievious, the new cat possessed a seemingly unfathomable character. She appeared both uncannily intelligent and impossibly stupid.

SHE WAS OVERLY demonstrative in affection and yet so treacherous that as she kissed you warmly with her sandpapery tongue, crunch! her needle-sharp incisors leave you shocked and bleeding! Unlike Smoki, who was playing a game, Chuchy's (named for "Chuchy" Francoy, the Spanish exchange student at Prospect High a few years ago) bad manners seemed to make no sense. At least, they didn't until we were able to observe her with two litters of kittens.

We learned that it is a mark of extreme affection on the part of a mother cat to suddenly grab a mouthful of fur with her teeth while washing members of her growing family! As she evidently considers herself part of our family she must find it hard to understand our unhappy reaction to her show of affection.

Chuchy's intelligence (or is it cooperation?) enabled us to teach her to "fetch" when we throw a small ball or wadded up pieces of paper to her. She learned easily to walk on a leash, and she "talks" to us with her Siamese vocabulary. Anyone who lives with Siamese cats will not laugh at this as they know that the cats can let you know exactly what they want in their low, raspy voices.

ALSO, MUCH to our dismay we discovered that they can open doors. Now that we have two cats it seems that nearly every warm day we are out hunting a lost Siamese.

Out of necessity we kept a male kitten from Chuchy's last litter. He was so big and ugly as a kitten that no one wanted to buy him. His watery blue eyes were crossed and his coat was mottled, and he had a general ungainly, unattractive appearance. We felt that we were stuck with the counterpart of the "ugly duckling."

As in the story of the metamorphosis of the sad duckling, our male kitten has grown into a handsome and friendly feline. He has stolen the hearts of all members of our family including the most hard-hearted cat-hater with his pleasant, forgiving and winning personality.

BECAUSE Hey-Boy is so nice we find it easy to forgive his unfortunate habit of clawing the furniture and carpeting. We half - heartedly throw things at him or yell when we catch him, and he looks up with a surprised, hurt look, then ambles over to the nearest one, rubs against his legs and purrs in high decibel protest!

Occasionally our two Siamese will have a mock battle. This is a rarely observed activity, and the antics and poses are priceless, the sound effects weird and wild.

Several times guests in our home have looked up in startled puzzlement at what sounds like a herd of elephants pounding down our long, upstairs hallway. We explain that it is only our two cats playing a game of tag.

YET THEY CAN creep around so stealthily on their velvet paws that few small animals and birds can detect them before they pounce. Tiny, five-pound Chuchy once returned home after a brief run of freedom and proudly presented us with her "catch." It was a rabbit easily twice her size!

Generally our cats are quite well-behaved, but they tend to be show-offs when we have company. Several years ago I had painstakingly prepared the dining room table for some special guests. The white linen table cloth, the good silverware and china, candles and flowers.

When the guests were seated and the food was ready to be served, a small furry blur hurtled through the air and landed in the middle of the table. The leap was so calculated that not a single thing was disturbed. The offender was banished to the basement where she proceeded to yowl at the top of her loud, irritating voice.

AT ANOTHER time that peculiar voice saved our weary family from a long, unplanned detour. We were returning from our annual trip to the north woods of Wisconsin. The taillight on our boat trailer had burned out, and we were stopped by the highway patrol and advised to drive off the next exit of the tollway. The policeman was very pleasant and explained that it was for our own safety. At that precise moment, Chuchy, who hated traveling, began to yowl.

We proceeded but a few feet when the police car again signaled us to stop. The kind officer had noticed several tired children and two very weary parents, and then what he thought was a baby started to wail in the back of the station wagon!

"Drive on to your exit," he said sympathetically; "just be extra cautious."

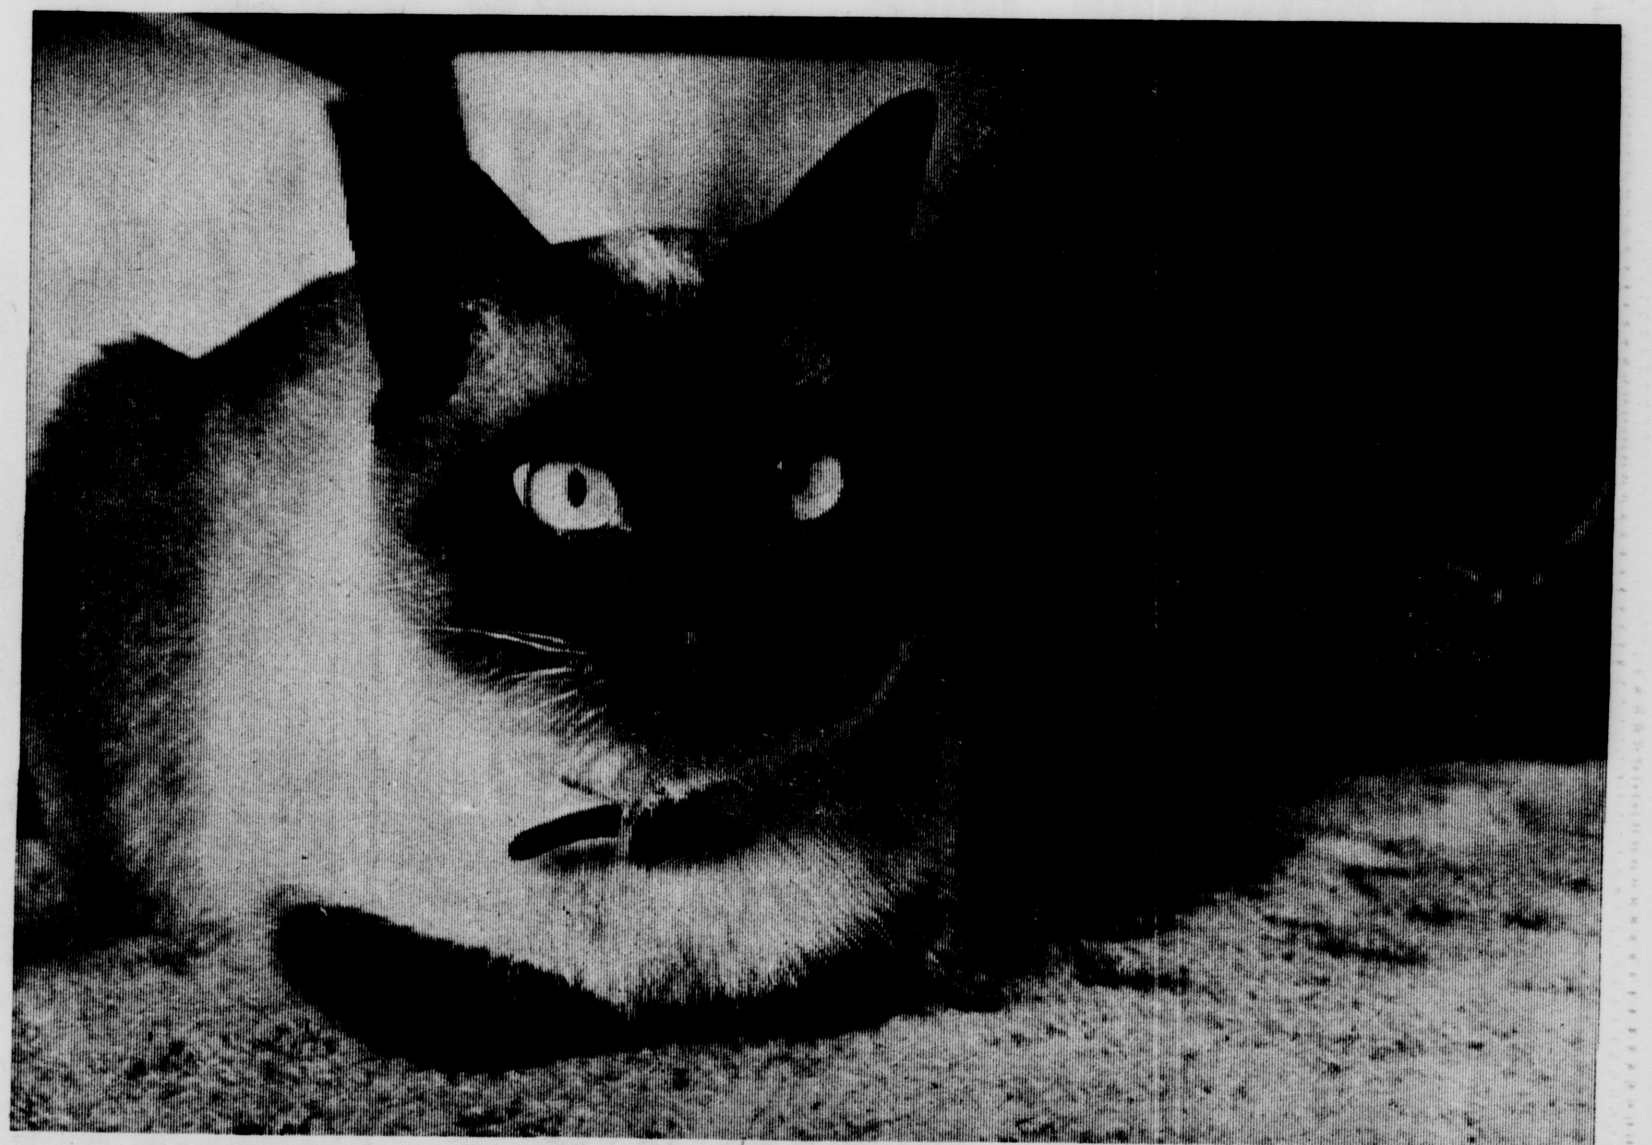
THAT WAS Chuchy's last trip to the north woods as we couldn't prevent her sprinting up the tall trees. The first morning she was with us we took turns holding a mattress under a very tall tree. After an anxious hour or so, she lost her toe-hold and fell into the mattress.

It may seem incredulous to a bird-watcher, but we cat-lovers also love birds. Our family once raised a baby meadow lark to adulthood by feeding it bread soaked in warm milk. Last spring we were elated to notice the return of large numbers of robins. Imagine our delight when we discovered parent birds nesting in a large tree in our backyard. Although I felt a momentary chill as I remembered our cats, it was soon forgotten in the job of watching the robins caring for their young.

LATER DURING a downpour that flooded basements in our neighborhood, we worried about the robin family and their roofless home. Since then we have decided that perhaps it is just as well if they were rained out.

Returning home from a coffee-break with a neighbor, I beheld a ludicrous but tragic sight. Chuchy was perched squarely on the robin's nest where she brooded like a giant "Cat" bird despite my very vocal and active protest.

We haven't seen a robin since!



IN ONE OF HER QUIETER MOMENTS, Chuchy, pet Siamese of Billie Bachhuber, crouches beneath a chair and glares at the Paddock photographer who spent a hectic 45 minutes trying to capture that disdainful air about which Billie writes in the adjoining columns. That's Hey-Boy, Chuchy's son, retiring in the background. (Staff photo)

Suburban Living

PART A

PADDOCK PUBLICATIONS THURS., JULY 28, 1966

THERE'S TIME for reading stories to the children at the Sid Cato home in Streamwood this summer. Mrs. Claudia Cato is glad that her involvement in the Tri-Village Organization for Improved Library Service has slackened so she can read to her four eager young listeners, Syd, left; Matt, Julie and Stuart. 'Homebody' Her Favorite Role

She Toils for Library

by PAT ADAM
Suburban Living Editor

Claudia Cato, young Streamwood homemaker and mother of four children aged 7 and down, says she really prefers being a "homebody."

But since she first became involved with the Tri-Village Organization for Improved Library Service (TOILS) more than a year ago, the attractive brunette has found it impossible to remain in strictly that role.

Sipping a soft drink as she explained her various responsibilities in TOILS, Claudia admitted she's never been a "joiner" and her only civic activity prior to TOILS was with the Hanover Township Young Republicans for which she's handled publicity and been recording secretary.

It was because of husband Sid, a professional publicist, that Claudia found herself working so diligently the past 16 months for TOILS. Sid already had earned a reputation as a go-getter while serving as Streamwood's special assistant for civic affairs so he was a natural to be asked to help when the organizing committee for obtaining adequate library service for Streamwood, Hanover Park and Bartlett was formed in the spring of 1965.

Doctor in the Kitchen

by Dr. W. W. Bauer

High temperatures seem to put temperamental people out of temper for hot foods. And why not?

There used to be lots of prejudices about the temperature of foods and drinks, and health educators had their share. I remember a controversy I had with some of my colleagues when I was so bold as to suggest that cool drinks were okay if they were sipped and not gulped. My defense was that there was some chance of this advice being followed, while if I suggested that all iced drinks be banned, all I would get was the bid laugh and the designation "health crank."

Later, the Journal of the American Medical Association published an article saying that iced drinks do no harm if they are not taken too fast.

WELL, differences of opinion make life more interesting.

So now, does hot weather really make a difference in what and how we eat? Eating should be a pleasure and not a chore. This means that we should pay attention to eating somewhat differently when the weather is hot.

Naturally we must keep the diet balanced. Thus we should not reduce our intake of protein. But we may get protein in milk, ice cream, cheese, cold meats, poultry and fish and hard-cooked eggs in salads—instead of the conventional hot cooked foods which are fine when the weather is cool.

NEITHER do we need as many calories to maintain body temperature when it's hot; so we can reduce the fats in our diet, especially the hot fried ones, and get our quota of fat from cream on our berries and, again, ice cream and cool salad dressings.

Since we need fewer calories, we can use more of the low sugar vegetables so useful in salads—lettuce, white or red cabbage, radishes, young onions, carrots, cucumbers, tomatoes. Enriched breadstuffs round out a well-planned diet.

What about "a hot dish with every meal," which used to be a nutritional slogan? Maybe I'm a maverick, but I see no real need for a hot dish in hot weather when there are so many cool foods that can serve just as well. Salads, for example, can be made in infinite variety, garnished with fish, cheese, fruits, vegetables, meat, crisp bacon, anchovies, eggs, olives and pickles. With the addition of some of the numerous varieties of flavored wafers now available, salads become meals in themselves.

BEVERAGES? Cool milk, shakes of various flavors, iced tea or coffee, soft drinks served in a pleasant room or on the patio or under the trees on a picnic . . .

That's cool, man, co-o-ol!

Nurse's Training an Asset For Sherman Auxiliary Head

When Mrs. Donald W. Lloyd of Roselle does volunteer work at Sherman Hospital, she volunteers a day a week in the labor and delivery rooms and puts her nurse's and advanced obstetrical training to good use.

The wife of Dr. Lloyd is a member of the Roselle branch of Sherman Hospital Auxiliary and is currently auxiliary president of the board that heads the four branches: Roselle, Barrington, Elgin Women and Elgin Juniors. Her term as president began May 1 for one year.

In the past she has served as Roselle Auxiliary president, president of the council of auxiliaries, scholarship chairman of the auxiliary board and last year was chairman of Roselle branch's ice cream social.

THE LLOYDS came to Roselle in 1950 when it was a community of 1,000. Dr. Lloyd had spent several months looking for a community that could use a doctor and one in which he and his wife would want to live.

Mrs. Lloyd had her nursing training at Evangelical Hospital in Chicago and worked there for a year. She also was a nurse at Holy Cross Hospital, Chicago, and Little Company of Mary Hospital in Evergreen Park. When the Lloyds moved to Roselle, Mrs. Lloyd worked for her husband in his office.

The couple has four children: Barry, 13; Scott, 10; Gayle, 9, and Christine, 4. Though Mrs. Lloyd works at the hospital only during the school year and with school-session hours, she said the work is good for her and the children enjoy seeing the babysitter. Then in the evening and the days afterwards, the family enjoys itself much more.

FROM 9 P.M. to 1 a.m. is the nurse's time for her new-found and favorite hobby, painting. Mrs. Lloyd said she has always been interested in art, but had no chance to study until a couple of years ago when the local grade school offered an adult education class taught by Iwan Lotton, an artist Mrs. Lloyd had heard of and respected.

Mrs. Lloyd likes to do landscapes especially, but tries all types of subjects in oils. She has sold some pictures and given a few to friends. She also exhibited in the first Addison Art Fair held recently.

The auxiliary president said she used to knit a lot, but hasn't done anything for some time now. She also was a member of a circle at the Roselle Methodist Church, but now is a member-at-large.

Before the end of the year Mrs. Lloyd and members of her board will be devoting most of their time to the third annual benefit ball sponsored by the auxiliary, but for now the auxiliary will concentrate on its volunteer work at the hospital: the coffee cart, gift shop, baby photo service, snack bar, some nurse's aid work and pushing carts to physical therapy and x-ray.

WHEN SHE'S NOT BUSY with Sherman Hospital Auxiliary business or home chores, Mrs. Donald W. Lloyd, new auxiliary president, likes to paint, a hobby she took up a year or so ago. She's already sold some of her work and exhibited some of her oil paintings in Addison's first art show last week. (Staff photo)

Hello Hostess

by MARY KAY ROBBINS

Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. And school will start again in September. Meanwhile, Mom must pass the daily quiz: "But what can we do now?"

One "A" answer is: Give a Backyard Carnival . . . as a party or as a benefit to collect pennies for a favorite charity. Either way, it channels the youngsters' fantastic energy for many peaceful hours.

You may provide supervision and starter ideas for proper prizes and games. You might clear out the garage or basement, in case of rain. But do let the kids and their friends plan and carry through themselves—you'll be surprised how Backyard Carnival . . . as a party or as a benefit to collect pennies for a favorite charity. Either way, it channels the youngsters' fantastic energy for many peaceful hours.

You may provide supervision and starter ideas for proper prizes and games. You might clear out the garage or basement, in case of rain. But do let the kids and their friends plan and carry through themselves—you'll be surprised how creative they can be.

APPOINT a Refreshment Chairman to vend popsicles and paper cups of lemonade or whatever in true carnival fashion. Have a Grounds Chairman in charge of setting up and decorating card tables or large boxes for individual booths.

Name a responsible, older youngster as General Chairman to organize promotion, sell tickets at the "gate" and supervise individual chairmen. One child collect tickets and enforce posted rules for each attraction.

Toy boxes will provide bowling, bingo or other games which can be used. Other easy carnival games include:

1. Strong Man—Players test their strength by pushing on the bathroom scales.
2. Wham-O—Stud a 2 by 4 with large nails. Boys especially like to see how few strokes they can take to sink the nails into the wood.
3. Weight Guessing—Children guess weight of "live wild animal" on exhibit. Closest guess wins. (If your family dog goes into hiding, let everyone guess number of beans in a jar.)
4. Popcorn Parade (or Peanut Promenade)—Draw a big circle. Divide into numbered segments. Players walk around to music. When record stops, chairman draws number. Player standing on that number wins a bag of popcorn.
5. Flying Saucers—Toss paper plates at a waste basket.
6. Ring Toss—Throw rubber jar rings at legs of upended table.
7. Ping-Pong Pool—Float plastic dishes in a child's wading pool.
8. Fortune Flowers—Attach fortunes to roots of plastic flowers. "Plant" in sandpile. Child pays to pick a posy.

PARTY LINE: A June bride asks, "I love to ask people over. But on my one day off, it's too much to fix up the apartment, myself, a meal, and still make a fancy dessert. Are all those calories really necessary?"

Of course not. Your friends don't cherish you for your recipes. Our own favorite hostess-with-the-mostest-desserts in the nicest (and easiest) way ever. She just serves chocolates and nuts—passed with a flourish in gleaming silver compotes. So polish up your wedding presents and treat your friends to store-bought goodies and an old-fashioned homemade welcome. You'll build yourself a "loverly" reputation!

R.S.V.P. And it would be "loverly" to have your questions—or suggestions. Write "Hello, Hostess," c/o this newspaper.

GAME OF THE WEEK: That old favorite, "Adverbs" — "It" leaves the room. Players agree on an adverb—happily, slowly, or whatever. (loverly?) "It" returns and asks questions. Players act out answers in the manner of the adverb until "It" guesses.

Pineapple Chicken For a Party Dish

Summertime—and the entertaining is easy. Or it should be. Outdoors or in, food should taste and look as bright as you can make it. Use fresh fruits and vegetables with abandon and call upon an old stand-by canned pineapple, to dress up any number of summertime entrees.

One simple and inexpensive party dish is this one with chicken. Although pineapple is no stranger to the bird, this way of treating it is different. The chicken is rubbed with herbs and paprika before broiling. Then it steams in the oven with the pineapple. You'll be happy to know that this dish cooks with no fat, no extra calories at all.

And while we're on that sore subject, you'll also be happy to know that canned pineapple is one of the best fruits for dieters. It is naturally sweet and satisfying without the calories of the fruits that need to be canned in heavy sugar syrups.

PINEAPPLE CHICKEN PAPRIKA

A chicken paprika without the sour cream but with the added attraction of canned pineapple chunks. Extra-welcome for weight watchers.

2 teaspoons paprika
2 teaspoons seasoned salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/2 teaspoon finely crumbled rosemary or oregano
1 (2½ to 3-pound) frying chicken cut up
1/2 cup water
1 (13½-ounce) can pineapple chunks

Blend together paprika seasoned salt, pepper and rosemary. Roll chicken pieces in seasonings. Arrange chicken close together in shallow baking pan. Place about 3 inches under broiler. Broil until chicken begins to brown, watching to prevent burning. Turn and brown other side. Reduce oven heat to moderate (350 degrees). Add water to chicken, cover tightly. Bake 25 to 30 minutes or until chicken is almost tender. Drain pineapple. Add chunks to chicken, cover and continue baking 10 minutes longer. Makes 4 servings. Each serving 204 calories.

Doctor in the Kitchen

by Dr. W. W. Bauer

High temperatures seem to put temperamental people out of temper for hot foods. And why not?

There used to be lots of prejudices about the temperature of foods and drinks, and health educaters had their share. I remember a controversy I had with some of my colleagues when I was so bold as to suggest that cool drinks were okay if they were sipped and not gulped. My defense was that there was some chance of this advice being followed, while if I suggested that all iced drinks be banned, all I would get was the bid laugh and the designation "health crank."

Later, the Journal of the American Medical Association published an article saying that iced drinks do no harm if they are not taken too fast.

WELL, differences of opinion make life more interesting.

So now, does hot weather really make a difference in what and how we eat? Eating should be a pleasure and not a chore. This means that we should pay attention to eating somewhat differently when the weather is hot.

Naturally we must keep the diet balanced. Thus we should not reduce our intake of protein. But we may get protein in milk, ice cream, cheese, cold meats, poultry and fish and hard-cooked eggs in salads—instead of the conventional hot cooked foods which are fine when the weather is cool.

NEITHER do we need as many calories to maintain body temperature when it's hot; so we can reduce the fats in our diet, especially the hot fried ones, and get our quota of fat from cream on our berries and, again, ice cream and cool salad dressings.

Since we need fewer calories, we can use more of the low sugar vegetables so useful in salads—lettuce, white or red cabbage, radishes, young onions, carrots, cucumbers, tomatoes. Enriched breadstuffs round out a well-planned diet.

What about "a hot dish with every meal," which used to be a nutritional slogan? Maybe I'm a maverick, but I see no real need for a hot dish in hot weather when there are so many cool foods that can serve just as well. Salads, for example, can be made in infinite variety, garnished with fish, cheese, fruits, vegetables, meat, crisp bacon, anchovies, eggs, olives and pickles. With the addition of some of the numerous varieties of flavored wafers now available, salads become meals in themselves.

BEVERAGES? Cool milk, shakes of various flavors, iced tea or coffee, soft drinks served in a pleasant room or on the patio or under the trees on a picnic . . .

That's cool, man, co-o-ol!

Nurse's Training an Asset For Sherman Auxiliary Head

When Mrs. Donald W. Lloyd of Roselle does volunteer work at Sherman Hospital, she volunteers a day a week in the labor and delivery rooms and puts her nurse's and advanced obstetrical training to good use.

The wife of Dr. Lloyd is a member of the Roselle branch of Sherman Hospital Auxiliary and is currently auxiliary president of the board that heads the four branches: Roselle, Barrington, Elgin Women and Elgin Juniors. Her term as president began May 1 for one year.

In the past she has served as Roselle Auxiliary president, president of the council of auxiliaries, scholarship chairman of the auxiliary board and last year was chairman of Roselle branch's ice cream social.

"The real you" in any one of five colors in hair can now be seen without dyes or bleach.

At the half-way point of its nine-month tour of the United States, the Clairol Color Carousel has arrived here. The Chicagoland site for the pavilion is the Randhurst Shopping Center where any interested woman is welcomed by Clairol color consultants from 1:30 to 9:30 p.m. Monday through Saturday.

The pavilion, a major attraction at the recent World's Fair in New York, arrived for a 10-day stay at Randhurst last Thursday and will leave this Saturday (July 30).

AS ONE ENTERS the Carousel, she is confronted with a small television set which depicts the life of a woman before she dyes her hair and the transformation in her life after the results of the dye are evident.

To assist one in choosing the desired color, a number of windows are arranged along a center wall of the pavilion. By situating one's head in an aperture, a woman sees her encircled face in a mirror. Attractively styled wigs in five shades then appear as if on the person's head.

Leaving this scene, the visitor proceeds to a booth staffed by Clairol hair color consultants. Here the party's desired hair color is analyzed and recommendations made as to the most effective coloring methods and how to treat already colored hair.

HAVING determined her hair color, the woman moves to a cosmetic counter where specialists again help to discover the best shade of make-up to complement her hair and skin shades.

On a specially designed sheet these girls point out to the individual which make-up shade is the most becoming to her while she is tan and how this color will be altered when the summer tan fades.

The specialists explain how to accentuate one's features with a gentle blush on the cheek-bone and finally how to choose the correct lipstick shade which will accent the chosen hair and make-up colors.

The majority of the 11 Clairol consultants who staff the Carousel are from New York, while others hail from Minneapolis and Philadelphia.

THREE OF the consultants, who participated in a 10-week training session and are now on the tour with their American cohorts, are from England. They were in New York at the time that Clairol advertised for such consultants and were selected from among those applying for the position.

Some of the girls who are at Randhurst were among the Carousel staff at the World's Fair, while others only recently have joined the Clairol group.

After leaving Randhurst the tour will move to the southern and western states, ending its 19-city tour this November in Texas. The girls then will return to Clairol's home center in New York. (SSD

Cook Guarantees Creamy Fudge Sauce, Rare Roast Beef

by LOIS SEILER

A hot fudge sundae goes hand in hand with hot summer days, and Mrs. Norval B. Stephens Jr. has a failure-proof fudge sauce that never gets grainy but always stays creamy and smooth.

All of the ingredients (which are those that most homemakers keep on hand) are simply mixed together in the top of a double boiler and cooked for 2 to 3 minutes.

This thick fudge sauce is delicious served warm over vanilla ice cream and is a great favorite with the Stephens' five children, Jill, 11; John, 8 Sandy, 7; Kathy, 5, and Jimmy, 15 months.

"The sauce recipe can easily be doubled and will keep well for several weeks if stored in the refrigerator," Mrs. Stephens commented.

This good cook also has a foolproof method for preparing roast beef that will guarantee a medium-rare (pink) roast every time.

She simply pops the rib roast into a 400-degree oven at noon time, lets it cook for an hour and turns off the heat. The roast merely sits in the oven all afternoon and then the heat is turned on again before serving and the meat is roasted for another 45 minutes to an hour, depending on size.

"There is only one stipulation," Diane Stephens emphasized. "There can't be any 'peeking' during the time the roast sits in the oven."

The only time she opens the oven is to put some par-boiled potatoes in with the beef the last 20 to 25 minutes of the final roasting period. These oven-browned potatoes and fresh green beans make an excellent accompaniment for the savory beef.

Diane French-cuts her fresh green beans, and while they are cooking, she begins to prepare a flavorful sauce which she mixes with the beans.

This sauce combines finely-chopped sauteed onions and parsley with some of the bean water and bouillon cubes. Flour is used as the thickening agent, and the sauce is seasoned with nutmeg.

"This recipe has been in my family for several generations," Diane commented. "I usually prepare the beans and sauce in the afternoon and reheat it in a double boiler before serving," she explained.

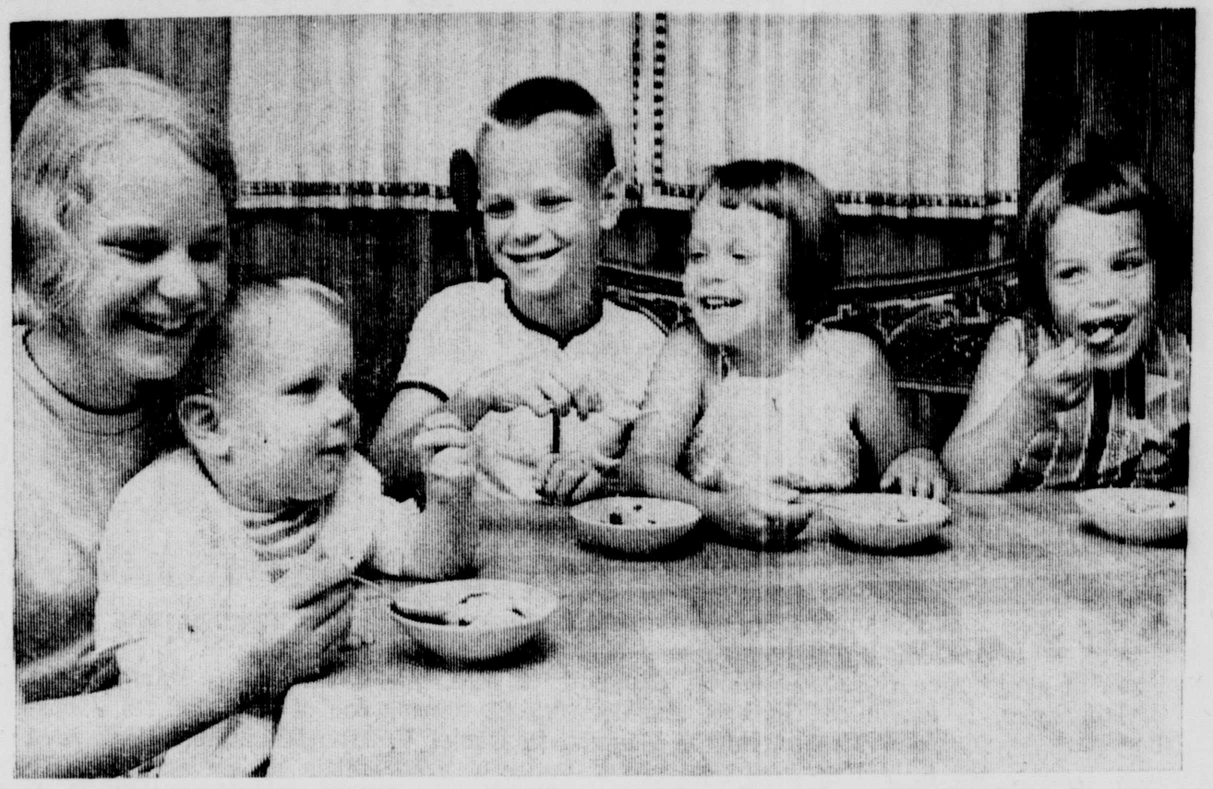
Another family recipe which makes a fitting finale for this appealing dinner is Mrs. Stephens' refreshing Lemon Ice.

Easy to prepare, the recipe simply calls for milk, sugar, lemon and lime juice and lemon rind beaten together. A drop of almond extract is also used as flavoring. The mixture is frozen then beaten with an electric mixer and refrozen.

This dessert is very light and has a nice tang from the lemon and lime that makes it ideal to serve during the warm summer months.

The Stephens family lives at 402 S. Belmont in Arlington Heights. Both Mr. and Mrs. Stephens are active in civic and community affairs. Mrs. Stephens is refreshment and hospitality chairman for the PTA at Dryden School, a member of Kappa Alpha Theta Alumnae Club and the YMCA Auxiliary, and will teach Sunday School at the First Methodist Church in fall. Formerly a village trustee, Mr. Stephens is a member of the board of both the library and the United Fund.

THURS., JULY 28, 1966



ON WARM SUMMER DAYS, a refreshing hot fudge sundae makes an appealing afternoon snack for Jill, Jimmy, John, Kathy and Sandy Stephens of Arlington Heights. Their mother, Mrs. Norval B. Stephens Jr., uses a failure-proof recipe to make this delicious fudge sauce which is never grainy but always creamy and smooth.

Hot Fudge Sauce

1 tablespoon butter
2 squares chocolate
1 cup sugar
dash of salt
1 small can evaporated milk
½ teaspoon vanilla

Melt butter and chocolate in top of a double boiler. Gradually add sugar, salt and evaporated milk. Stir together and blend in vanilla. Cook over hot water for two to three minutes. Serve warm over vanilla ice cream.

Store in a covered jar in refrigerator. Place jar in pan of hot water to reheat sauce.

FOOLPROOF ROAST BEEF

At noon, place a 2 to 3 pound rib roast in a pre-heated 400-degree oven and roast for one hour. Turn off heat and leave roast in oven; do not open oven door. Before serving, turn on oven again and roast a 2-rib (5 to 6 pounds) roast an additional 45 minutes, or a 3-rib (6 to 7 pounds) roast an additional hour.

Par-boiled potatoes may be added to the roast to make oven-browned potatoes the last 20 to 25 minutes of the roasting period. The beef will be medium-rare (pink).

SAUCE FOR FRESH GREEN BEANS

French cut 1 to 1½ pounds fresh green beans and cook for 20 minutes, until crisply tender. While cooking, begin to prepare the following sauce:

3 tablespoons butter
1 small onion, finely chopped
2 tablespoons finely-chopped parsley
1 tablespoon flour
1/8 teaspoon nutmeg
2/3 cup bean water
2 beef bouillon cubes

Saute onions and parsley in butter. Then blend in flour and nutmeg.

After beans are cooked, drain 2/3 cup bean water and dissolve bouillon cubes in it. Gradually add to butter-flour mixture and simmer for five minutes, stirring constantly.

Pour sauce over drained beans and mix well. If prepared in advance, reheat in the top of a double boiler. Serves 4 to 6.

LEMON ICE

1/3 cup lemon juice
Grated rind of 1 lemon
Juice of 1 lime
1¼ cups sugar
Pinch of salt
Drop of almond extract
2 cups milk

Beat all ingredients together. Turn into a refrigerator tray and freeze hard. Beat with an electric mixer and re-freeze. Serves 4.

This Chop Suey Is Actually a Salad

A wonderful summertime or anytime salad borrows its name from across two oceans. It's called Farmers' Chop Suey.

Actually most of us think of "chop suey" as a Chinese dish, the Cantonese words meaning "odds and ends." But from across another ocean comes a translation from the French: "shap" meaning miscellaneous, plus "sui" or little bits.

The Milk Foundation of Chicago makes a very American and versatile version by tossing crisp fresh vegetables with cottage cheese and dairy sour cream. Proportions here serve 4 to 6, but the recipe can easily be expanded to make more servings.

FARMERS' CHOP SUEY

2 cups (1 pint) creamed cottage cheese
1 cup dairy sour cream
½ cup sliced radishes
½ cup chopped green onions and tops
½ cup chopped celery
½ cup chopped green pepper
Salt to taste

Combine all ingredients in a large bowl, tossing and mixing well. Serve on watercress or lettuce, if desired. If you like the flavor of seasoning salt, substitute for usual salt.

Try cucumber, onion, chopped or shredded carrots, tomato wedges or cauliflower or your own favorite vegetable combinations. (SH

Quick 'n Easy

Stir zesty American blue cheese and parmesan cheese into hot buttered noodles and season to taste with salt and pepper. Serve with tossed salad and crusty hot bread. (SH

Cook Guarantees Creamy Fudge Sauce, Rare Roast Beef

by LOIS SEILER

A hot fudge sundae goes hand in hand with hot summer days, and Mrs. Norval B. Stephens Jr. has a failure-proof fudge sauce that never gets grainy but always stays creamy and smooth.

All of the ingredients (which are those that most homemakers keep on hand) are simply mixed together in the top of a double boiler and cooked for 2 to 3 minutes.

This thick fudge sauce is delicious served warm over vanilla ice cream and is a great favorite with the Stephens' five children, Jill, 11; John, 8 Sandy, 7; Kathy, 5, and Jimmy, 15 months.

"The sauce recipe can easily be doubled and will keep well for several weeks if stored in the refrigerator," Mrs. Stephens commented.

This good cook also has a foolproof method for preparing roast beef that will guarantee a medium-rare (pink) roast every time.

She simply pops the rib roast into a 400-degree oven at noon time, lets it cook for an hour and turns off the heat. The roast merely sits in the oven all afternoon and then the heat is turned on again before serving and the meat is roasted for another 45 minutes to an hour, depending on size.

"There is only one stipulation," Diane Stephens emphasized. "There can't be any 'peeking' during the time the roast sits in the oven."

The only time she opens the oven is to put some par-boiled potatoes in with the beef the last 20 to 25 minutes of the final roasting period. These oven-browned potatoes and fresh green beans make an excellent accompaniment for the savory beef.

Diane French-cuts her fresh green beans, and while they are cooking, she begins to prepare a flavorful sauce which she mixes with the beans.

This sauce combines finely-chopped sauteed onions and parsley with some of the bean water and bouillon cubes. Flour is used as the thickening agent, and the sauce is seasoned with nutmeg.

"This recipe has been in my family for several generations," Diane commented. "I usually prepare the beans and sauce in the afternoon and reheat it in a double boiler before serving," she explained.

Another family recipe which makes a fitting finale for this appealing dinner is Mrs. Stephens' refreshing Lemon Ice.

Easy to prepare, the recipe simply calls for milk, sugar, lemon and lime juice and lemon rind beaten together. A drop of almond extract is also used as flavoring. The mixture is frozen then beaten with an electric mixer and refrozen.

Sara Jane Precilio Becomes June Bride of Wayne Thein

Park Ridge is the new home of Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Oliver Thein after their June 25 wedding in Our Lady of the Wayside Church. The former Sara Jane Precilio, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank N. Precilio, Jr., 888 S. Bristol Lane, Arlington Heights, and the son of Mrs. Phoebe Thein of St. Paul, Minn. and Mr. Oliver J. Thein of White Bear Lake, Minn. were married by Rev. Harold T. O'Hara.

For her wedding the bride chose a high-fashioned gown of hand-beaded Alencon lace and French silk organza over bridal taffeta. The gown had a detachable chapel train which fell from the waist-line. The train was frosted with appliques of lace. Her fitted bodice was fashioned of re-embroidered Alencon lace, highlighted with hand-beading of seed pearls and crystals with a gently scooped neckline and mid-arm sleeves. Her A-line skirt was of wide tucks of silk organza over taffeta. For her head-dress the bride chose an Alencon lace mantilla, and she carried a cascade of amazon lilies and stephanotis.

The bridesmaids and maid of honor wore floor length gowns of pink linen with empire silhouettes and sheath skirts. Their bodices had simulated short jackets with easily scooped necklines and Dior sleeves. The sleeves and bodices alike were edged with pink lace and grosgrain ribbon. The girls wore pink linen head kerchiefs and carried old-fashioned nose-gay bouquets of white carnations and pink roses.

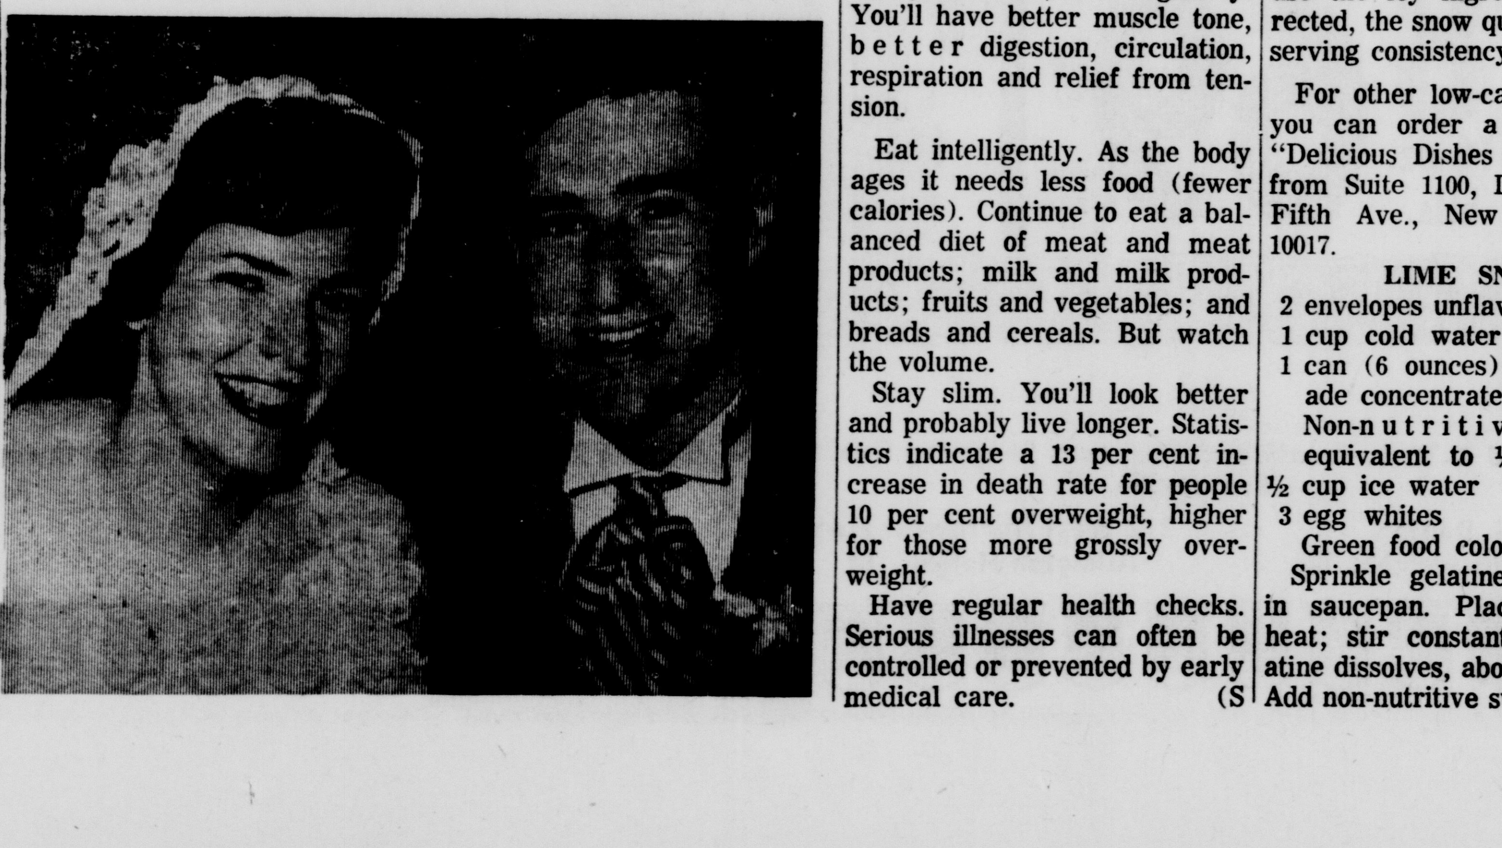
Janet Miller from Milwaukee was maid of honor and bridesmaids were Mrs. William Hicks of San Francisco, Dotty Dotts of Denver and Mrs. William Kelly of Evanston. Best man for the wedding was William Schubert of Chicago and the ushers were the bride's brother Frank of Long Grove, David Landsittel of Chicago and David Thein, the groom's cousin from White Bear Lake, Minn.

For the wedding the mother of the bride wore an ice blue silk ensemble accented by a white amazon lily corsage. The mother of the groom donned an outfit of beige lace with a corsage of yellow cymbidium orchids.

Among the out of town guests at the wedding was the bride's grandmother, Mrs. Frank N. Precilio of Southbridge, Mass.

Following a reception for 150 at the Hyatt House the newlyweds departed for a one week honeymoon at Sea Island, Ga.

The bride, who was graduated from Arlington High School and the University of Dayton, is a fourth grade teacher in Schiller Park. Her husband, a graduate of St. Johns University and of the University of Chicago graduate school, is employed by Northern Trust Co. in Chicago.



Learn How To Grow Old Gracefully

Learning to grow old gracefully is likely to be more valuable than seeking a fountain of youth. Here are some tips from the American Medical Association to help accomplish this.

Exercise regularly. It can be as vigorous as a game of badminton or as mild as an evening walk. But whatever exercise you choose, do it regularly. You'll have better muscle tone, better digestion, circulation, respiration and relief from tension.

Eat intelligently. As the body ages it needs less food (fewer calories). Continue to eat a balanced diet of meat and meat products; milk and milk products; fruits and vegetables; and breads and cereals. But watch the volume.

Stay slim. You'll look better and probably live longer. Statistics indicate a 13 per cent increase in death rate for people 10 per cent overweight, higher for those more grossly overweight.

Have regular health checks. Serious illnesses can often be controlled or prevented by early medical care. (S

Editor Sees Clinic, Coffee Farm, Guatemala

Highlights of Trip In Central America

Suburban Living Editor

As my recent trip to Central America was my first venture outside the United States except for a single day in Victoria, British Columbia, Canada, I was like a child at Christmas, delighted by every aspect. It would be difficult to pinpoint any one experience as the most interesting or most exciting.

However, there were a few memorable experiences that stand out, and these included a visit to a medical clinic for the poor, a tour of a coffee finca (farm) and a trip to Guatemala. Again I'd like to share what I saw and learned with our Suburban Living readers.)

The clinic we visited is one of several in El Salvador's capital city, San Salvador. Situated in a poor section of the city, it attracts patients from many of the country villages as well as the city.

The clinic is operated by a group of Spanish Catholic sisters and handles an average of about 350 patients a day, who may be suffering anything from a simple headache to a tetanus-infected wound or the common amoeba diseases. There are two doctors, one paid and one a volunteer. Women from the more well-to-do classes, including some Americans, donate their services to the clinic, and it was the wife of a Salvadoran businessman who helps at the clinic regularly who was our hostess the day we visited.

Unfortunately it was a religious holiday, and no one remembered to tell our hostess there would be no patients that day. However, the nurse in charge, one of the sisters but in "civilian" garb, showed us the facilities, explaining in animated Spanish the way the clinic operates. With two interpreters, our hostess and my sister, I was able to understand.

THE CLINIC building is L-shaped, with the doors to each room opening onto a fenced-in courtyard where the patients wait their turn to be examined. These rooms are not connected and must be entered separately.

Besides the examining and consulting rooms, which contain equipment given by one of El Salvador's best-known doctors who is now dead, the clinic has a room where injections are given and a pharmacy where medicine is dispensed. If a patient needs more medical attention, he or she is sent to a hospital.

Crude as this set-up may be in comparison to what we in the northwest suburbs have, it is better than what some of Salvador's country people know. They may be visited only occasionally by a nurse who often has only aspirin to give. However, the government now is sending mobile units, what it calls health brigades, into the country. These four-member units have an administrator in charge, an agricultural expert, a homemaking and health expert and a Peace Corps volunteer.

WHILE EL SALVADOR is becoming industrialized, it still is essentially an agricultural country, and coffee is its major crop. Coffee is not native to El Salvador. It was imported there about 125 years ago by a Brazilian who missed his morning coffee and now is grown in every one of El Salvador's 14 departments (states).

The finca (farm) we visited is near Santa Ana in the Department of Santa Ana, the country's richest coffee-growing region. The city of Santa Ana is El Salvador's second most important industrial and commercial city. The farm itself is along the mountain sides and spreads for as far as the eye can see.

Our host explained that while there is only one coffee harvest a year, coffee farming is a year-long proposition. Between harvests, new seedlings must be grown in the nursery, then transplanted to the place where they will grow permanently. The trees don't begin to bear fruit till they are three years old, and then they produce for about 30 years. Those that have quit producing must be removed and replaced.

THEN THERE IS pruning to be done, and the trees must be fertilized and weeded, each process being performed three times a year. We also learned that coffee trees, which grow to a height of only eight to ten feet, must be shaded so the coffee farmer also must cultivate taller trees to shade them.

The finca we visited has 45 permanent colons (workers), and transients are hired at harvest time, some coming from as far as Guatemala and Honduras. The finca owner provides housing, school, health and recreation facilities for his permanent workers and sleeping quarters for the transients. Many seasonal workers, however, sleep right out in the open on some of the coffee farms.

Our trip to Guatemala, which borders El Salvador on the north and west, was exciting for several reasons. We had expected to be stopped and our car inspected for arms for this Central American country has been plagued with guerilla warfare for some years. However, a new president was installed just the week before we went, and the political situation seemed to stabilize somewhat. We saw nothing alarming during our three days there.

WE TOOK THE Pan-American Highway out of San Salvador, but turned off this major highway a short distance out of Santa Ana onto another road that took us through gorgeous mountains and valleys. Once near the border of El Salvador and Guatemala, we noticed a decided decrease in the number of persons walking or riding horseback, and we had the highway almost all to ourselves in Guatemala until we neared Guatemala City. Part of this route is new and driving was easy, even through the mountains.

Guatemala City presents a contrast to San Salvador. While both cities are cosmopolitan by virtue of being their nation's capital city, San Salvador has a small town atmosphere and Guatemala City, on the other hand, is rather sophisticated. Shop windows on its major downtown streets have large glass display windows just like those in any North American city. Some of the gowns might well appear in a Michigan Avenue boutique. Neon and other signs jut out from nearly every building, forming an arch of advertising over the street.

There are a number of tall buildings of contemporary architecture, the city government complex, for example, which uses a lot of glass and has attractive Mayan Indian designs as decoration. Most of the streets on which we drove are wider than in downtown San Salvador. Drivers didn't seem quite so wild either.

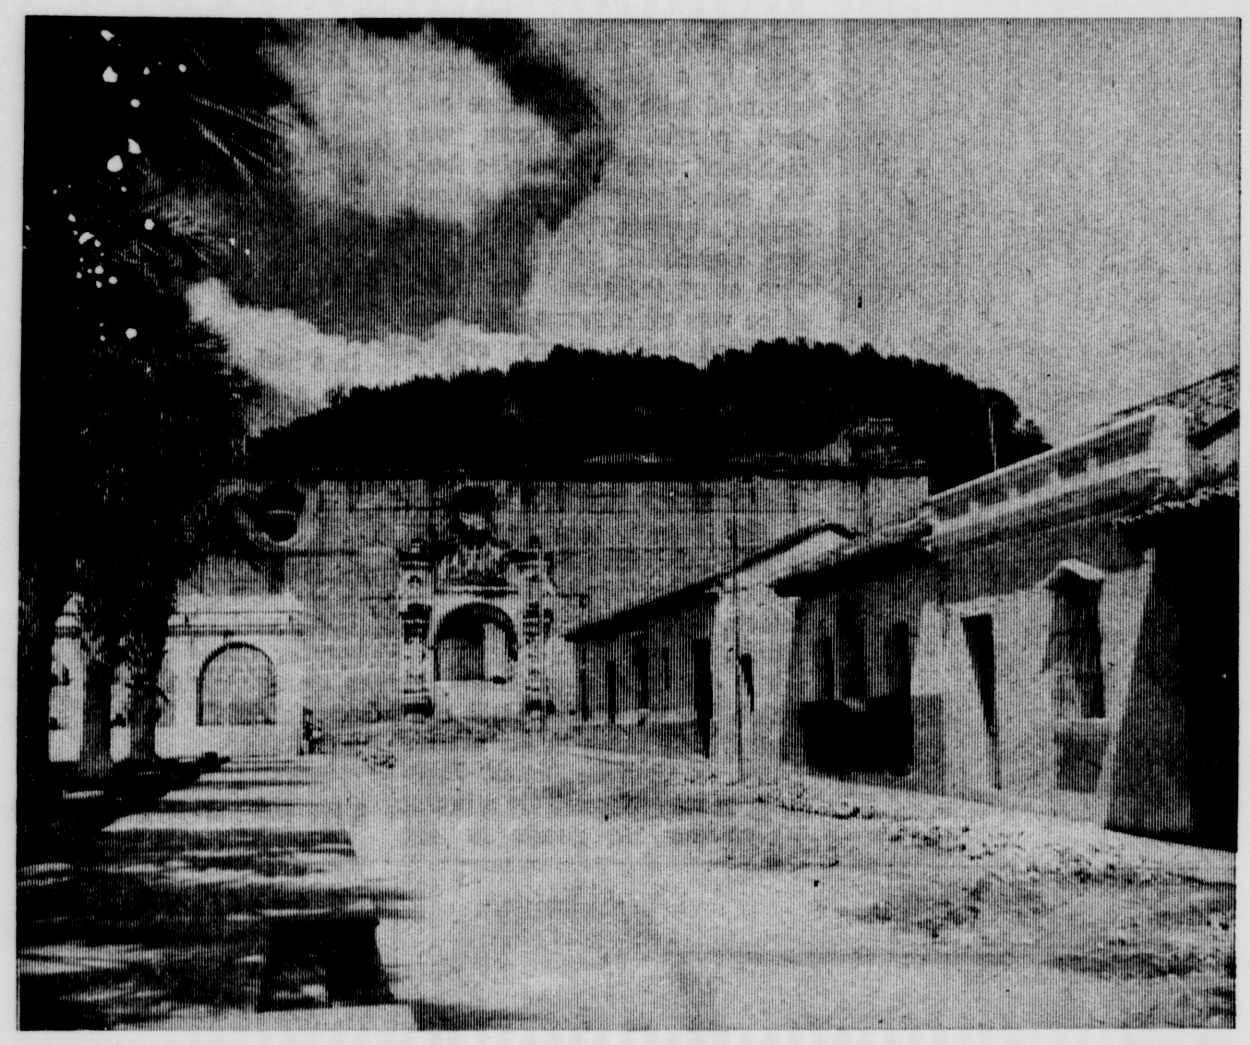
GUATEMALA CITY also has the typical one-storied stucco buildings common in San Salvador's business section. And there is the same interesting block-square market with its individual stalls and arrays of Indian crafts, fresh fruits and vegetables and other foodstuffs and the usual manufactured items.

Guatemala has a sizable Indian population that has never been assimilated into the general culture, and the Indians are distinguishable by their colorful dress, indicative of the region from which they come. The market is a good spot to see them.

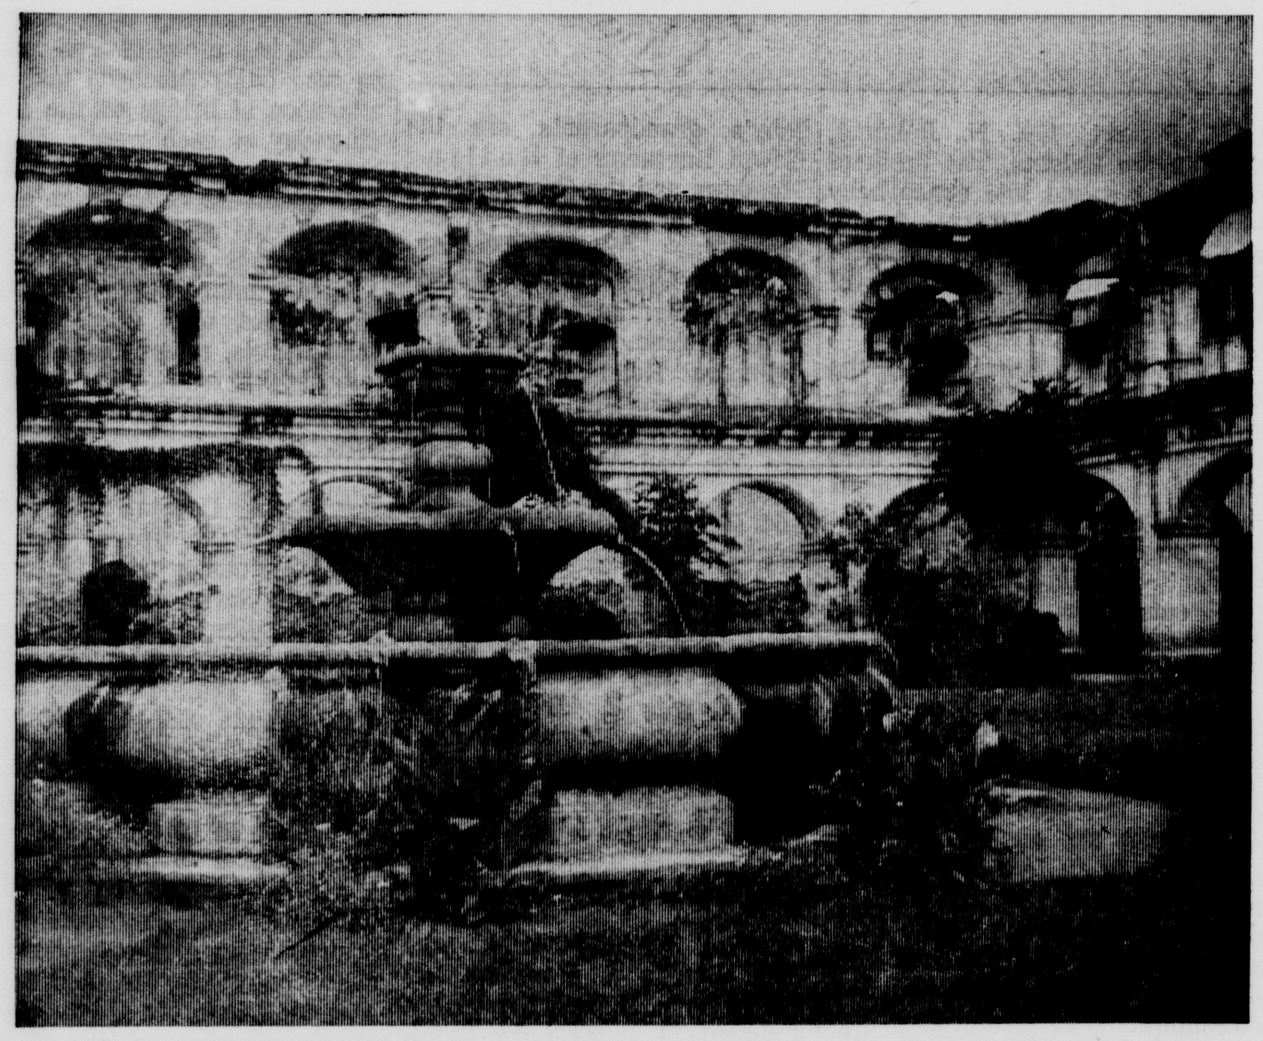
There are many interesting places to visit in Guatemala, but we were able to get only to Antigua, the original capital of the country, almost completely destroyed by an earthquake in 1773. The city has retained its Spanish colonial architecture right down to the stone streets. There are many ruins to be seen as well as market, shops, volcanoes and the picturesque common well where the native women launder their clothes by hand and catch up on the latest gossip.

OUR RETURN trip had its exciting moments, too. At the border we encountered a landslide that covered the highway with at least a two-story high pile of earth. Workmen cleared a one-way traffic path over the earth hump so we were delayed only a short time as a stalled truck was hauled over the incline.

Strangely enough, as we reached that last stretch of the trip between Santa Tecla and San Salvador, a road that had become familiar to me during the three weeks of my stay, I felt almost as though I were coming home, and a bit sad that I had to leave two days hence.



CAPITAL CITY of Guatemala two centuries ago before it was destroyed in an earthquake, the city of Antigua retains the Spanish colonial architecture of its early days right down to the cobblestone streets. Buildings at the right are typical. At left is the common well where native women are laundering clothes. At end of the street is one of the many ruins in Antigua, a mecca for Central American visitors.



FLOWERS AND GRASS add life to the ruins of the Convent of Santa Clara in Antigua, which was destroyed by earthquake on July 29, 1773. Before it was destroyed, Antigua was the third largest city in all the Americas and ranked with Mexico City and Lima, Peru, as one of the three great centers of Spanish culture in the western hemisphere. It is about an hour's drive from the present capital, Guatemala City.

Week's Best Food Buys

Weather continues to be a major market control. Future food prices hinge on growing conditions for the next few weeks. So far there are few market breaks. Sharp advance in pork prices is predicted. Center cut chops have moved up again to $1.19 a pound. Spareribs are mostly 75 to 79 cents. Bacon costs have boomed with retails to $1.09 a pound. Beef is firm to higher but being promoted.

Butter and eggs advance again. Melons and few summer fruits are the limited produce opportunities. For quality look to the following produce values:

MELONS: cantaloupe, casabas, Crenshaws, honeydews, Persians and watermelon.

Fruit: bananas, blackberries, blueberries, figs, grapes, lemons, nectarines, peaches, pears and plums.

Vegetables: beans, beets, cucumbers, eggplant, garlic, lettuce, lima beans, okra, onions, peppers, sweetcorn and tomatoes.

IN A SEASON of delayed food production expectations, the following are the more common Chicago area food values:

Meats: beef chuck roasts and steaks, rolled rump roasts, sirloin and porterhouse steaks, ground beef; pork butt roasts.

Poultry: fryers, smaller turkeys. (SH

Here's an idea for a gift to make for someone special.

You'll need a friend to help you make a silhouette to give your parents or grandparents.

Tape a piece of white paper to a smooth wall or door. Put a bright light in front of it. Now sit between the light and the paper. A shadow of your face should be cast on the paper.

Ask your friend to draw around the outline of your shadow. Cut it out. Trace around it on black paper. Cut this out. Paste it on white paper.

Now you have a gift that's sure to please!

Editor Sees Clinic, Coffee Farm, Guatemala

Highlights of Trip In Central America

Suburban Living Editor

As my recent trip to Central America was my first venture outside the United States except for a single day in Victoria, British Columbia, Canada, I was like a child at Christmas, delighted by every aspect. It would be difficult to pinpoint any one experience as the most interesting or most exciting.

However, there were a few memorable experiences that stand out, and these included a visit to a medical clinic for the poor, a tour of a coffee finca (farm) and a trip to Guatemala. Again I'd like to share what I saw and learned with our Suburban Living readers.)

The clinic we visited is one of several in El Salvador's capital city, San Salvador. Situated in a poor section of the city, it attracts patients from many of the country villages as well as the city.

The clinic is operated by a group of Spanish Catholic sisters and handles an average of about 350 patients a day, who may be suffering anything from a simple headache to a tetanus-infected wound or the common amoeba diseases. There are two doctors, one paid and one a volunteer. Women from the more well-to-do classes, including some Americans, donate their services to the clinic, and it was the wife of a Salvadoran businessman who helps at the clinic regularly who was our hostess the day we visited.

Carolyn Seng, Groom to Do Graduate Work at Northern

Beginning their marriage as graduate students at Northern Illinois University will be the new Mr. and Mrs. James Allen Kohler. The former Carolyn Willa Seng, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Seng, 725 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights, and her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kohler of Weston, Ill., were married June 18 in the First Presbyterian Chruch Chapel in Arlington Heights. Dr. Paul Stumpf officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The newlyweds, who will be working toward their master's degrees, have both received faculty assistantships at the university for the coming year.

FOR HER noon wedding, the bride wore a gown and mantilla made by her mother. The dress was of satin taffeta with elbow-length sleeves, and white lace appliques adorned the neckline and composed the detachable overskirt.

Maid of honor Beverly Seng, the bride's sister, wore a floor-length gown of pale yellow satin taffeta with a scooped neckline, elbow-length sleeves and graceful gathers at the waist. She carried a cascade of yellow gladiolus.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Shirley Wittekiend of Plainfield and Joan Hein of Melvin, Ill., wore pale green dresses similar to that of the maid of honor. They, too, carried bouquets of yellow gladiolus.

THE BRIDESMAIDS made their own dresses, and the attendants' hats, circles of yellow and green flowers with matching veils, were made by the mother of the bride.

The best man was Bruce Maki of Waukegan and groomsmen were James Hepperly of Pontiac and Robert Knautz of Belvidere. Michael Vitoux, the groom's cousin who resides in Arlington, and Wesley Bonde of Elmhurst served as ushers.

For the wedding, the bride's mother chose a deep rose silk sheath with a fitted jacket which she accented with a corsage of white carnations and pink rosebuds. The groom's mother chose a blue lace sheath with matching jacket and a corsage of white carnations and yellow roses.

FOLLOWING A reception for 120 guests at the Maitre d' in Elk Grove Village, the couple departed on a 2-week honeymoon to the Black Hills, Yellowstone Park and Glacier National Park.

They are now residing in DeKalb.

The bride was graduated from Arlington High School, and she and her husband both received their bachelor degrees from Northern Illinois University. The groom is spending the summer assisting in a research project at the university. (S

Drapery Tip

To give cotton draperies a custom-made look, make scalloped hems, using a plate or round dish for a pattern.

Place the dish on the wrong side of fabric and trace partly around it with pencil or chalk. Trim scallops with cotton tassel fringe. (S

Barbara Liston and Groom Return to U of I Studies

Friends from the University of Illinois served as bridal attendants of the former Barbara Liston, daughter of the John Listons, 111 N. Russell, Mount Prospect, for her June 25 wedding to Alan McIntosh, son of the Carl McIntoshes of Peotone, Ill.

Linda Mueller, maid of honor, wore an empire-style floor-length gown of textured linen. The bodice was turquoise blue, and the sheath skirt was white trimmed with Venice lace. Her headpiece was a petal cap accented with a nylon tulle veil, and she carried a cascade of white and pale yellow daisies.

THE BRIDESMAIDS, in the same style gowns as the maid of honor, were Linda Lenz and Margaret Rokop. The groom's 4-year-old niece, Liza McIntosh, was flower girl. She wore a dress similar to those of the other bridal attendants and carried a small nosegay of white and yellow daisies.

The bride came down the aisle in a silk organza gown trimmed with alencon lace and seed pearls. The gown was fashioned with an empire bodice, round neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The sheath skirt was completed with a detachable court train and her headpiece was an organza petal cap accented with pearls and a waist-length silk illusion veil.

The bride carried a cascade of stephanotis and butterfly orchids.

HERBERT HOTON, a friend of the groom, was best man, while the ushers were the groom's brother, Jerry McIntosh, and the bride's brother, James Liston.

The double ring ceremony, at which Pastor David Quill officiated, took place in St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect. It was followed by a buffet supper for 150 guests in the church hall. At this time the bride's mother greeted the guests in a green silk suit accented with a green cymbidium orchid, while the mother of the groom chose a pink silk suit and a cymbidium orchid.

After a 5-day honeymoon at Illinois Beach State Park Lodge, the couple is at home in Champaign, where the bride, a graduate of Prospect High School, will be a junior at the University of Illinois in September. Her husband, a graduate of the U. of I., received an assistantship and will continue there next year working for his master's degree.

For 2 Tots

In a bedroom for two tiny tots, build a low closet divider with a hanging rod that the wee ones can easily reach themselves. As they grow, the unit can be used for blouses or skirts, or shelving can be installed inside to convert it to a cupboard.

Use a pretty wood like incense cedar or Idaho white pine and the storage divider will please the children through many years. (S

Replace It

Failure to replace a missing tooth can endanger the entire remaining dental structure, the American Dental Association points out.

One result of tooth loss, without replacement, can be the failure of upper and lower teeth to come into contact correctly. Uneven pressure results, causing gum tissues to break down with probable additional loss of teeth.

CHAMPAGNE AND HORS D'OEUVRES at Poppe's Alpine House in Lake Zurich followed the recent wedding ceremony of the former Nancy Nesser, daughter of Mrs. F. Nesser of Palatine, and Ronald W. Guelzow, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Guelzow of McHenry. After the reception the couple departed on a wedding trip to California. They are now at home in San Francisco.

Carolyn Seng, Groom to Do Graduate Work at Northern

Beginning their marriage as graduate students at Northern Illinois University will be the new Mr. and Mrs. James Allen Kohler. The former Carolyn Willa Seng, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Roger W. Seng, 725 S. Dunton, Arlington Heights, and her husband, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Kohler of Weston, Ill., were married June 18 in the First Presbyterian Chruch Chapel in Arlington Heights. Dr. Paul Stumpf officiated at the double ring ceremony.

The newlyweds, who will be working toward their master's degrees, have both received faculty assistantships at the university for the coming year.

FOR HER noon wedding, the bride wore a gown and mantilla made by her mother. The dress was of satin taffeta with elbow-length sleeves, and white lace appliques adorned the neckline and composed the detachable overskirt.

Maid of honor Beverly Seng, the bride's sister, wore a floor-length gown of pale yellow satin taffeta with a scooped neckline, elbow-length sleeves and graceful gathers at the waist. She carried a cascade of yellow gladiolus.

The bridesmaids, Mrs. Shirley Wittekiend of Plainfield and Joan Hein of Melvin, Ill., wore pale green dresses similar to that of the maid of honor. They, too, carried bouquets of yellow gladiolus.

THE BRIDESMAIDS made their own dresses, and the attendants' hats, circles of yellow and green flowers with matching veils, were made by the mother of the bride.

The best man was Bruce Maki of Waukegan and groomsmen were James Hepperly of Pontiac and Robert Knautz of Belvidere. Michael Vitoux, the groom's cousin who resides in Arlington, and Wesley Bonde of Elmhurst served as ushers.

For the wedding, the bride's mother chose a deep rose silk sheath with a fitted jacket which she accented with a corsage of white carnations and pink rosebuds. The groom's mother chose a blue lace sheath with matching jacket and a corsage of white carnations and yellow roses.

FOLLOWING A reception for 120 guests at the Maitre d' in Elk Grove Village, the couple departed on a 2-week honeymoon to the Black Hills, Yellowstone Park and Glacier National Park.

They are now residing in DeKalb.

The bride was graduated from Arlington High School, and she and her husband both received their bachelor degrees from Northern Illinois University. The groom is spending the summer assisting in a research project at the university. (S

Drapery Tip

To give cotton draperies a custom-made look, make scalloped hems, using a plate or round dish for a pattern.

Place the dish on the wrong side of fabric and trace partly around it with pencil or chalk. Trim scallops with cotton tassel fringe. (S

Barbara Liston and Groom Return to U of I Studies

Friends from the University of Illinois served as bridal attendants of the former Barbara Liston, daughter of the John Listons, 111 N. Russell, Mount Prospect, for her June 25 wedding to Alan McIntosh, son of the Carl McIntoshes of Peotone, Ill.

Linda Mueller, maid of honor, wore an empire-style floor-length gown of textured linen. The bodice was turquoise blue, and the sheath skirt was white trimmed with Venice lace. Her headpiece was a petal cap accented with a nylon tulle veil, and she carried a cascade of white and pale yellow daisies.

THE BRIDESMAIDS, in the same style gowns as the maid of honor, were Linda Lenz and Margaret Rokop. The groom's 4-year-old niece, Liza McIntosh, was flower girl. She wore a dress similar to those of the other bridal attendants and carried a small nosegay of white and yellow daisies.

The bride came down the aisle in a silk organza gown trimmed with alencon lace and seed pearls. The gown was fashioned with an empire bodice, round neckline and elbow-length sleeves. The sheath skirt was completed with a detachable court train and her headpiece was an organza petal cap accented with pearls and a waist-length silk illusion veil.

The bride carried a cascade of stephanotis and butterfly orchids.

HERBERT HOTON, a friend of the groom, was best man, while the ushers were the groom's brother, Jerry McIntosh, and the bride's brother, James Liston.

The double ring ceremony, at which Pastor David Quill officiated, took place in St. Mark's Lutheran Church, Mount Prospect. It was followed by a buffet supper for 150 guests in the church hall. At this time the bride's mother greeted the guests in a green silk suit accented with a green cymbidium orchid, while the mother of the groom chose a pink silk suit and a cymbidium orchid.

After a 5-day honeymoon at Illinois Beach State Park Lodge, the couple is at home in Champaign, where the bride, a graduate of Prospect High School, will be a junior at the University of Illinois in September. Her husband, a graduate of the U. of I., received an assistantship and will continue there next year working for his master's degree.

For 2 Tots

In a bedroom for two tiny tots, build a low closet divider with a hanging rod that the wee ones can easily reach themselves. As they grow, the unit can be used for blouses or skirts, or shelving can be installed inside to convert it to a cupboard.

Use a pretty wood like incense cedar or Idaho white pine and the storage divider will please the children through many years. (S

AN IVORY peau de soie gown, empire styled with re-embroidered lace accents, was the choice of the bride for her wedding day attire. A chapel train attached to the waistline was also appliqued with lace, and a matching headpiece of peau and lace held her fingertip veil in place. Her bouquet was composed of pink and white roses, stephanotis, lilies of the valley and ivy.

Her only attendant was Mrs. Andrea Perkins of Arlington Heights who wore a floor-length pink silk dress with a matching bow headpiece and butterfly veil. She carried deep purple delphiniums and smilax in a cascade arrangement.

Replace It

Failure to replace a missing tooth can endanger the entire remaining dental structure, the American Dental Association points out.

One result of tooth loss, without replacement, can be the failure of upper and lower teeth to come into contact correctly. Uneven pressure results, causing gum tissues to break down with probable additional loss of teeth.

The Way We See It

Basis for Action

Involvement and organization.

These two factors are vital to the success of a new group which could become instrumental in improving the standard of living for Mexican-Americans in the northwest suburbs. This group is the Latin American Association, and as the name implies, it's set up to involve directly those most deeply concerned — the Latins themselves.

The plight of the so-called "migrants," many now permanent residents of the northwest area, has been made clear to the public in recent years. It's a familiar story, combining the elements of unskilled labor, low educational background, and language problems.

Several different organizations, representing church groups and other volunteers, have contributed their efforts to combat these problems, with various measures of success. But none of them has been able to come up with an answer to the central dilemma, the lack of suitable low-cost housing.

This dilemma has been dramatically heightened recently with word of impending court action by the county, seeking eviction of a number of families from their homes because of zoning, sanitation and fire violations.

Enter the Latin American Association, whose first goal is to determine the complexion of the scattered Mexican-American community—where they live, length of residence, occupations, number of children. Hopefully, with this beginning the association will serve as a unifying force, an agent to work on common problems. The cost of involvement is low; membership is a nominal $1 per year per family.

The cost of organization cannot be measured so easily, but its value cannot be underestimated. Dynamic leadership will be essential to establish the Latin American Association as a structure for action.

Airborne Experiment

Cook County Sheriff's Department has been experimenting in a new dimension of law enforcement for the past month. Regular weekend policing of the county's 950 square miles has been supplemented by a helicopter patrol.

When the experiment was first initiated, Cook County Sheriff Richard B. Ogilvie described the airborne patrol as an "eye-in-the-sky" to aid ground units. Its specific assignment was to serve as a watchdog over the remote county areas which are not easily accessible to patrol cars. It was also designed to assist any municipal police agency that requested help to apprehend lawbreakers.

Purpose of the patrol, therefore, was something more than the airborne traffic control units so well-known to Chicago area motorists.

County law enforcement officials have not yet fully measured the effectiveness of the helicopter as a police tool, but they are encouraged by its performance so far, and by the fact that it has been used with great success in Los Angeles County, Calif. The Los Angeles program was studied carefully before Cook County police launched their experiment.

The trial run of the helicopter patrol will continue until Labor Day weekend. A detailed report of the experiment will then be submitted to Sheriff Ogilvie. If satisfied, he will include in his 1967 budget to the county board a request for appropriations to make the patrol a regular part of county police activities.

Initiation of the program full-time would be expensive. Though the exact cost has not yet been determined, it is likely to run into many thousands of dollars annually. The experiment itself is costing more than $800 per weekend.

County officials are aware that something must be done to curb the rising crime rate. The current 175-man county police force is woefully inadequate to handle the law enforcement demands of a population growing as fast as Cook County.

Director of the experimental project, Major James McGuire, voices concern over these problems. "Since we can't get the people we need," he explains, "we have to come up with the instruments to make up for our shortage of personnel."

The helicopter patrol program deserves full consideration as one of these instruments. It should not be discarded as merely another extravagant program, for good law enforcement can never be short-changed.

Local Cooperation Urged

A year ago, we suggested a drivers' license examing center be established in the northwest suburbs; in response to that editorial appeal, Secretary of State Paul Powell has made a determined, though unsuccessful, attempt to locate a center in this area for the convenience of our fast-growing population.

We pointed out that aspiring drivers from the northwest suburbs must travel long distances to reach the nearest examining station in Libertyville, Elgin, Woodstock or Chicago. That situation still exists.

However, the secretary of state has had several agents working in this area. They had located potential facilities in the Westgate Shopping Center, on the border of Arlington Heights and Rolling Meadows, but reported that objections from the Village of Arlington Heights prevented their using that location.

The village indicated it opposed location of the center in such proximity to residential neighborhoods. While that is a legitimate concern, we doubt it is serious enough to block location of the center there. High school student driver cars frequent downtown areas of Arlington Heights without serious problem. It is difficult to see how aspiring drivers, with an examiner, could be any more of a hazard.

The secretary of state's office has subsequently decided to seek funds for a construction of a large examing center here, offering all the services of the center in Chicago; when such funds will become available is questionable.

If the funds are not made available in the next session of the Legislature, we hope the secretary of state will make another attempt to rent space in this area.

And we hope he will meet with success.

Labels Blind Suburbanites

by JOAN LORENSON
Staff Writer

The Mexican-American family in the suburbs is as the dwarf wild rose, the sandy slope's relief.

"Culturally deprived" . . . "economically disadvantaged" "marginal"—the labels blind the suburbanite, middle class and used to looking on hybrid tea roses edging greened plush.

The Mexican-American and the suburbanite families need each other as the plant needs the soil.

Mexican-American families generally produce children with few severe emotional problems, a school social worker's personal observations and tests have shown. Children bring joy to their families.

LORENSON

Many of these people, as anthropologist Oscar Lewis noted, share classic peasant values — love of land, reverence for nature, strong belief in the intrinsic good of agricultural labor, and deep seated loyalty to family and their ethnic community.

THEIR SENSE of family and help to even distant relatives or friends in need is known. Their folk tradition and sensitivity to color are evident.

Edgar Friedenberg, writer and social science professor, was talking of minorities not Mexican-Americans specifically, but many of them have developed the quality he talked about — an "aristocratic bent." Discrimination and their economic status has excluded them from some of the petty temptations and opportunities to "sell out" to a conformist, increasingly mechanistic society.

In looking at the Mexican-American in his midst, the suburbanite fails to see his values. He either wants to ignore him in terms of a human being needing minimum essentials so he may lead an unbent life, or, the suburbanite wants to put him in a ranch house on a development block with hopes he'll soon be the blend of his barbecue-deft neighbor; he'll be clean-happy.

TWO FEW help the Mexican-American help himself while respecting him.

Two few savor the experience and grow in humanness as a result of knowing a people with different values and viewpoints, those not completely caught in the upward mobility, "get-ahead" game. The Mexican-American can provide the middle class suburbanite with a meaningful yardstick to measure himself and his life.

Paul Goodman, author of "Growing Up Absurd" and critic of the environment of affluence, has talked with Puerto Rican youths of New York City to impress upon them their heritage and its value. He might have put the same things to Mexican-American youths. "The question . . . what is worth doing," he is quoted as asking. "My line is that the chief things in life are good sex, decent food to eat, a chance to think your own thoughts, shelter."

Mexican-Americans have a proud history with traditions derived from Indian, Spanish, and French cultures.

IT IS important for Americans to have a better understanding of Mexican history and culture. And the Mexican-Americans of the northwest suburbs might effect this. Some of the men have lived through or heard about the Mexican Revolution the late President John Kennedy considered one of the most progressive movements in mankind's history and a potential model for other Latin countries.

Certainly many Mexican-Americans need help in education, employment, housing. But suburbanites desperately need help in understanding and building a simpatico relationship.

The women of Illinois might defeat the revenue article scheduled for a blue ballot vote in the November elections.

If they don't, it won't be because Mrs. Andrew Koller of Inverness didn't try.

The suntanned, wiry housewife will be carrying the Illinois League of Women Voters' protest against the revenue article throughout the state.

Along with other crusaders from the LWV state board, she'll be working with any group which gives the least sign of indecision about the merits of the constitutional amendment.

SO FAR, the League is sure of the support of at least one group — the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers. That's a lot of women.

As state revenue chairman for the LWV, Mrs. Koller has a mighty job on her hands.

She'll head a committee to write brochures protesting the revenue article, and she'll speak before other organizations.

She'll also meet with local LWV revenue chairmen throughout the state to distribute literature, describe the revenue resolution, outline the League's formalized objections, and map out the campaign to defeat it.

MRS. ANDREW MILLER

ENERGETIC Mrs. Koller sort of gasps each time she launches into a description of her work—probably because she's been called upon to talk about it so often.

She seems a little—just a little—overwhelmed about the battle ahead.

The League will be crusading in the face of such mighty forces as the Illinois Chamber of Commerce and the Illinois Agricultural and Manufacturers Associations.

So far, only the ICPT and the Illinois Municipal League have pledged concerted opposition.

The Illinois League's decision to protest was not a hasty move. It followed months of surveying opinions in all local leagues and countless interviews with legislators.

MRS. KOLLER likes to play golf, but she said she expects this pastime to "fall by the wayside" in the weeks ahead.

"I don't expect to have much spare time," she commented, adding that she also is secretary of the Illinois LWV.

She said she does her own housework—not so much because she likes to, but because she likes "everything clean and sparkling."

Then, when she's not so rushed, she also likes to help her husband in his dentist's office in Palatine. She does office work and develops X-rays, among other things.

He trained her, about 20 years ago.

Mrs. Koller—who said she doesn't mind having people know she's in her forties—was an insurance adjuster when she met her husband, who had been in an auto accident.

THEY CLICKED then, and they click now, if his attitude about her League work is any indication.

"Andy, how do you feel about my League busy-ness?" she asked him.

He just laughed fondly, perhaps contentedly, and she answered for him: "League husbands usually are convinced their wives are doing a good thing."

Besides the present crisis of defeating the revenue article, Mrs. Koller conducts local LWV board training sessions, attends legislative commission hearings and reads "lots and lots of material."

She said, "The (current) League study is based on what should properly be in a revenue article. We applied these principles to the proposed revenue article and they didn't fit."

WITH A LONG background of League experience—at the local, almost rural level and on a statewide basis—Mrs. Koller is considered highly qualified for her big job.

She staunchly believes the Illinois League has taken responsible stands in the past—"We've worked very hard in supporting other legislative amendments"—and is taking just as responsible a stand now.

If it's true that more women vote than men, she could be speaking for the majority.

The most neglected, underrated person in the world is the spinster aunt of a third cousin of a murder suspect.

During the past few weeks, there has been more than a speck (oh, please forgive my little massacre) of news in the daily press about the killing of eight nurses. The killing of eight nurses does not happen every day. Therefore, it is news.

BAUMANN

For the least seven days running, through this writing, it has been front page news. Almost to the exclusion of the war in Viet Nam, the walk in space, race riots in Cleveland and other minor tidbits.

THE SUSPECT, Richard Speck, having been "duly" tried and convicted in everyone's mind, has also been analyzed and psychoanalyzed by reporters. So has his attorney, his mother, brother, former wife, alleged victims, alleged almost-victim, doctor, nurse, pastor.

One newspaper assigned several reporters to find out why the nurses didn't scream during their ordeal. As close as I could determine, their distinguished report settled to everyone's satisfaction this important phase of the investigation.

Another newspaper announced it was devoting eight full pages to a special report. This, hopefully, was a report-all to end-all.

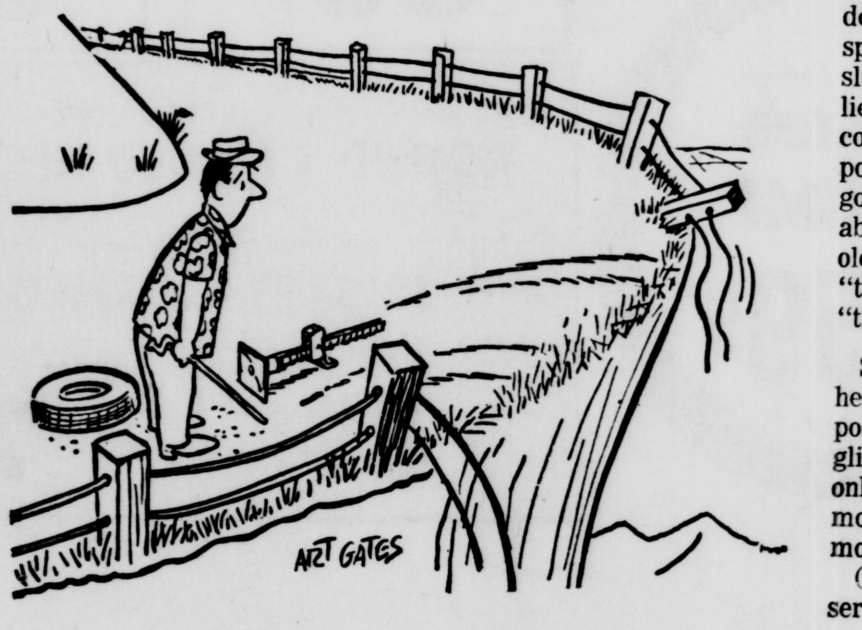
TELEVISION ALSO gave some treatment to the characters: the doctor who uncovered Speck's tatoo (he told cameras he spit on his hand and wiped blood off Speck's arm to uncover the tatoo) was shown on an interview for three days in a row. The cameras failed to show, however, whether any disciplinary action was due a doctor who would spit on a patient in a county hospital.

The man who runs the Philippine consulate and acted as the adviser to the surviving nurse has been interviewed. Secretaries and switchboard operators have been interviewed. Both mothers have been interviewed — Speck's and the mother of the surviving nurse — or at least have been cast in to the role of news sources. Hostilities among American and Philippine nursing students have been uncovered, analyzed.

HOBOES HAVE made the news, too. One, who spent some hours with a jug, listening to and rejecting Speck's requests for help, was talked to. An elevator man gave his version. A desk clerk had his say.

It has been a hectic few weeks since the slaying. On the whole, the press has failed to report the full story of the mass killing. No one — absolutely no one —bothered to talk to the spinster aunt of a third cousin of the murder suspect.

Suburbia Today



'Mighty Good' Revolts Spurred

Mr. Humphrey told a New Orleans audience that if he were living in a slum, "you'd have had more trouble than you have had already, because I've got enough spark left in me to lead a mighty good revolt . . . "

Little comment is needed on the imprudence of such a remark in a week when slum-dwellers were indeed revolting in several cities.

It would be interesting to know, though, how a slum-dwelling Mr. Humphrey might react to the patently false hope held out by Vice President Humphrey in that same speech. The answer to the slum problem, he proclaimed, lies in rent subsidies, planned communities, swimming pools, the creation of regional government bodies, and the abolition somehow of such old-fashioned distinctions as "the rich part of town" and "the poor part of town."

Some of these things might help a little—those that are possible, that is. But such glibly offered solutions can only, in the long run produce more disappointments and more "mighty good" revolts.

'Informing' the Public

by DAN BAUMANN
Managing Editor

The most neglected, underrated person in the world is the spinster aunt of a third cousin of a murder suspect.

During the past few weeks, there has been more than a speck (oh, please forgive my little massacre) of news in the daily press about the killing of eight nurses. The killing of eight nurses does not happen every day. Therefore, it is news.

BAUMANN

For the least seven days running, through this writing, it has been front page news. Almost to the exclusion of the war in Viet Nam, the walk in space, race riots in Cleveland and other minor tidbits.

THE SUSPECT, Richard Speck, having been "duly" tried and convicted in everyone's mind, has also been analyzed and psychoanalyzed by reporters. So has his attorney, his mother, brother, former wife, alleged victims, alleged almost-victim, doctor, nurse, pastor.

One newspaper assigned several reporters to find out why the nurses didn't scream during their ordeal. As close as I could determine, their distinguished report settled to everyone's satisfaction this important phase of the investigation.

Another newspaper announced it was devoting eight full pages to a special report. This, hopefully, was a report-all to end-all.

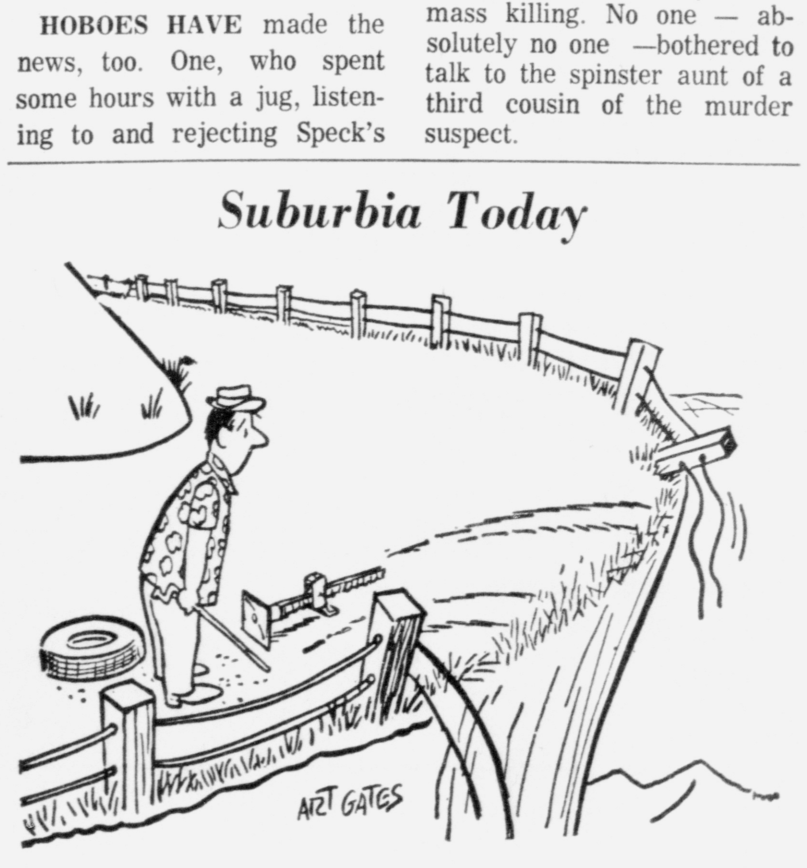
TELEVISION ALSO gave some treatment to the characters: the doctor who uncovered Speck's tatoo (he told cameras he spit on his hand and wiped blood off Speck's arm to uncover the tatoo) was shown on an interview for three days in a row. The cameras failed to show, however, whether any disciplinary action was due a doctor who would spit on a patient in a county hospital.

The man who runs the Philippine consulate and acted as the adviser to the surviving nurse has been interviewed. Secretaries and switchboard operators have been interviewed. Both mothers have been interviewed — Speck's and the mother of the surviving nurse — or at least have been cast in to the role of news sources. Hostilities among American and Philippine nursing students have been uncovered, analyzed.

HOBOES HAVE made the news, too. One, who spent some hours with a jug, listening to and rejecting Speck's requests for help, was talked to. An elevator man gave his version. A desk clerk had his say.

It has been a hectic few weeks since the slaying. On the whole, the press has failed to report the full story of the mass killing. No one — absolutely no one —bothered to talk to the spinster aunt of a third cousin of the murder suspect.

Suburbia Today



'Mighty Good' Revolts Spurred

Mr. Humphrey told a New Orleans audience that if he were living in a slum, "you'd have had more trouble than you have had already, because I've got enough spark left in me to lead a mighty good revolt . . . "

Little comment is needed on the imprudence of such a remark in a week when slum-dwellers were indeed revolting in several cities.

It would be interesting to know, though, how a slum-dwelling Mr. Humphrey might react to the patently false hope held out by Vice President Humphrey in that same speech. The answer to the slum problem, he proclaimed, lies in rent subsidies, planned communities, swimming pools, the creation of regional government bodies, and the abolition somehow of such old-fashioned distinctions as "the rich part of town" and "the poor part of town."

Some of these things might help a little—those that are possible, that is. But such glibly offered solutions can only, in the long run produce more disappointments and more "mighty good" revolts.
